CAMBRIDGE

Cambridge University Press
0521849276 - The Atlantic Alliance Under Stress: US-European Relations after Iraq
Edited by David M. Andrews
Table of Contents
More information

Contents

List of contributors page vii
Preface ix

Introduction 1

I The Iraq War and the Atlantic alliance

1 Toward transatlantic drift?
GEIR LUNDESTAD 9
2 The dynamics of the feud over Iraq
ELIZABETH POND 30
3 The United States and its Atlantic partners
DAVID M. ANDREWS 56

II National policies within the Alliance

4 US politics and transatlantic relations: we are all Europeans now
MILES KAHLER 81
5 Three rifts, two reconciliations: Franco-American relations during the Fifth Republic
GEORGES-HENRI SOUTOU 102
6 Security exporters: Germany, the United States, and transatlantic cooperation
HUBERT ZIMMERMANN 128
7 A bridge too far: the United Kingdom and the transatlantic relationship
WILLIAM WALLACE AND TIM OLIVER 152
8 The richest and farthest master is always best: US–Italian relations in historical perspective
LEOPOLDO NUTI 177

© Cambridge University Press www.cambridge.org

CAMBRIDGE

Cambridge University Press
0521849276 - The Atlantic Alliance Under Stress: US-European Relations after Iraq
Edited by David M. Andrews
Table of Contents
More information

III Prospects for the Alliance

9 The Iraq crisis and the future of the Western alliance
MARC TRACHTENBERG 201
10 Military competence versus policy loyalty: central Europe and transatlantic relations
WADE JACOBY 232
11 Is Atlanticism dead?
DAVID M. ANDREWS 256

References 267
Index 282

© Cambridge University Press www.cambridge.org