CAMBRIDGE

Cambridge University Press
978-0-521-82352-4 - Strange Parallels: Southeast Asia in Global Context, c. 800-1830
Victor Lieberman
Table of Contents
More information

Contents

List of Figures page xv

Abbreviations Used in the Notes xvii

Preface xxi

1. A Far Promontory: Southeast Asia and Eurasia 1

1. Rethinking Eurasia 1

Three Critiques of European Exceptionalism 3

New Axes of Comparison 9

2. Political and Cultural Integration in Mainland Southeast Asia c. 800–1830: A Précis 11

Territorial Consolidation: Overview of Mainland Southeast Asian Political History 12

Administrative Centralization 22

Cultural Integration 26

The Dynamics of Integration: Overview 31

The Dynamics of Integration: Expansion of Material Resources 32

The Dynamics of Integration: New Cultural Currents 37

The Dynamics of Integration: Intensifying Interstate Competition 43

The Dynamics of Integration: Intended and Unintended Consequences of State Interventions 44

3. Synchronized Trajectories in Mainland Southeast Asia, Europe, and Japan: A Preliminary Survey 49

Idiosyncrasies 49

© in this web service Cambridge University Press www.cambridge.org

CAMBRIDGE

Cambridge University Press
978-0-521-82352-4 - Strange Parallels: Southeast Asia in Global Context, c. 800-1830
Victor Lieberman
Table of Contents
More information

Shared Indices of Integration: Territorial, Administrative, and Cultural Trends 52
Pressures to Integration 67
Factors Promoting Eurasian Coordination 77
4. Areas of Inner Asian Conquest and Precocious Civilization: Preliminary Comments on China and South Asia 92
The Protected Zone and the Exposed Zone 92
Similarities Between the Two Zones 93
Distinguishing Features of China and South Asia 97
Europeans in India and Archipelagic Southeast Asia 114
5. Critiques and Caveats 117

2. Varieties of European Experience, I. The Formation of Russia and France to c. 1600 123
1. Charter Polities, Early and Late, c. 500–1240/1330 126
Introduction: Distinct Heritages, Comparable Rhythms 126
Kievan Genesis and Prosperity 130
Integration and Devolution in the Future Area of France: The Frankish/Carolingian Charter State, c. 500–1000 147
Sources of Renewed Vitality, c. 900–1328: The Capetian Achievement 154
Political and Cultural Cohesion in Kiev and Capetian France 170
2. Fragmentation, c. 1240–1450 182
The Poison Fruits of Growth: A Survey of 13th- to Mid-15th-Century Difficulties 182
Kiev's Collapse and the Era of Fragmentation to c. 1450 184
France, c. 1270–1450: A Conjuncture of Calamities 193
3. Broad Renewal, Brief Collapse, c. 1450–1613 205
A New European-Wide Cycle 205
Muscovite Construction, c. 1450–1580: Mongol-Tatar Patronage and Decline 212
Muscovite Construction, c. 1450–1580: Economic and Military Spurs 217
Muscovite Construction, c. 1450–1580: Administrative Creativity 224
Russian Cultural Integration to c. 1600 228

© in this web service Cambridge University Press www.cambridge.org

CAMBRIDGE

Cambridge University Press
978-0-521-82352-4 - Strange Parallels: Southeast Asia in Global Context, c. 800-1830
Victor Lieberman
Table of Contents
More information

Muscovite Crisis and Disintegration, c. 1560–1613 238
Factors Promoting the Revival of France, c. 1450–1560 241
Novel French Political Structures, c. 1450–1560: Comparisons with Southeast Asia 250
French Political Identities and Cultural Integration, c. 1400–1600 257
French Collapse, 1562–1598: The Wars of Religion 266
Interim Conclusion 269

3. Varieties of European Experience, II. A Great Acceleration, c. 1600–1830 271
1. Overview: Wider Differences, Closer Parallels 271
2. Russian Political and Cultural Trends to c. 1830 282
Stabilization and Renewal to c. 1650 282
Pressures to Territorial Expansion and Administrative Integration: Warfare, New Intellectual Currents, and Economic Growth, c. 1650–1830 286
Strengthening the Central State, c. 1650–1830; Frontier Revolts as a Sign of Success – Comparisons with Southeast Asia 299
Cultural Fracture and Integration in the Russian Imperial Core, c. 1650–1830 306
Culture and Control on the Imperial Periphery, c. 1650–1830 313
3. France During and After the Bourbons 318
The Construction of French "Absolutism," c. 1600–1720: Renewed Integrative Pressures 318
New Political Structures 323
Economic Trends c. 1620–1780 and the Problem of French–Southeast Asian Correlations 329
The French Revolution and Its Aftermath 340
French Cultural Integration and Fracture, c. 1600–1830 355
Conclusion: Europe and Southeast Asia During a Thousand Years 368

4. Creating Japan 371
1. Overview 371
2. The Formation and Evolution of an Integrated Polity, c. 600–1280 381
Charter Civilization: The Ritsuryo Order to c. 900 381

© in this web service Cambridge University Press www.cambridge.org

CAMBRIDGE

Cambridge University Press
978-0-521-82352-4 - Strange Parallels: Southeast Asia in Global Context, c. 800-1830
Victor Lieberman
Table of Contents
More information

The Stability and Longevity of the Charter Order 391
Evolution of the Heian-Centered Polity, c. 900 to 1280 398
3. Devolution and Reintegration, c. 1280–1603 407
Late Kamakura and Ashikaga Political Tensions, c. 1280–1467 407
The Warring States Era and Reunification, c. 1467–1603 411
Explaining and Correlating Japanese Reunification, c. 1450–1600 416
Warrior Arts, Buddhist Sects, and Oral Literature: Cultural Trends, c. 1200–1600 431
4. Tokugawa Idiosyncrasies, 1603–1854 438
Early Political Vigor 438
Tokugawa Economic Vitality to c. 1720 448
Political and Economic Strains, c. 1720–1840; Overarching Similarities to Other Eurasian Realms 457
The Dynamics of Cultural Integration Under the Tokugawa 469
The Implications of Cultural Change for Japanese Self-Images and Political Expression 482
Conclusion 490

5. Integration Under Expanding Inner Asian Influence, I. China: A Precocious and Durable Unity 494
Why China and South Asia? 494
1. Similarities Between China and the Protected Zone 497
Progressively Shorter Interregna: A Précis of Chinese Political History 497
Administrative Integration 504
Territorial Expansion 519
Horizontal Cultural Integration 524
Vertical Cultural Exchange 537
Economic and Demographic Cycles Coordinated with Other Sectors of Eurasia: Explaining Synchronization 548
Comparative Views of the High Qing Economy 565
2. Differences Between China and the Protected Zone 576
Distinctive Chinese Features: Civilizational Precocity 576
Distinctive Chinese Features: Inner Asian Domination 581
Distinctive Chinese Features: The Burdens of Size 603

© in this web service Cambridge University Press www.cambridge.org

CAMBRIDGE

Cambridge University Press
978-0-521-82352-4 - Strange Parallels: Southeast Asia in Global Context, c. 800-1830
Victor Lieberman
Table of Contents
More information

Distinctive Chinese Features: Modest Fiscal and Military Imperatives 613
Some Implications of Size and Pacific Environment 622
Conclusion 627

6. Integration Under Expanding Inner Asian Influence, II. South Asia: Patterns Intermediate Between China and the Protected Zone 631
1. Similarities Between South Asia, the Protected Zone, and China 635
Progressively Shorter Eras of Polycentrism: Overview of South Asian Political History 635
Long-Term Improvements in Administrative Coordination and Penetration 639
Territorial Expansion 656
Horizontal and Vertical Cultural Integration Across South Asia 658
Economic and Technological Spurs to Integration Synchronized with Other Sectors of Eurasia 681
2. Distinctive Features: Early State Formation, Growing Inner Asian and British Influence, Persistent Oscillations 705
Early Genesis of Civilization 706
Growing Exposure to Inner Asian Conquest: An Overview 709
The Recurrent Prosperity and Decline of Regional Polities: Why Were Such States Less Stable Than in the Protected Zone? 713
Phase One: Regional Florescence and Eclipse, c. 550–1206/1334 715
Phase Two: Regional Florescence and Eclipse, c. 1350–1560/1687 724
Phase Three: Regional Florescence and Eclipse, c. 1700–1800/1850 733
Why Were Empires Less Durable in South Asia Than in China? 738
Cohesion and Vulnerability Among Conquest Elites: Turks and Other Overland Immigrants 746
Cohesion Among Conquest Elites: The British 757
Conclusion 760

© in this web service Cambridge University Press www.cambridge.org

CAMBRIDGE

Cambridge University Press
978-0-521-82352-4 - Strange Parallels: Southeast Asia in Global Context, c. 800-1830
Victor Lieberman
Table of Contents
More information

7. Locating the Islands 763
Overview: The Relation of Maritime to Mainland Southeast Asia 763
1. The Charter Era in the Archipelago, c. 650–1350/1500 770
Early State Formation 770
An Archipelagic Charter State: Srivijaya 772
Charter States and Civilization in Pre-Muslim Java 780
Charter State Collapse in the Straits and in Java, c. 1300–1500 793
2. Trade, New States, and Islam, c. 1350–1511 797
Problems of Periodization and Regional Coherence 797
The Opening Phase of the "Age of Commerce," c. 1400–1511: Rising Global Demand 798
Major Port Polities, c. 1350–1511 802
Negeri Society, Islamization, and Malay Identity 809
3. European Interventions in an Era of Multistate Parity, 1511–c. 1660 820
Archipelagic Prosperity to c. 1640 820
Europeans as "White Inner Asians" 824
Creating the Spanish Philippines to c. 1660 830
Portugal's Impact to c. 1660 837
The Dutch in Southeast Asia to c. 1660 841
Major Archipelagic States, c. 1511 to 1660: Centralization, Militarization, and Commercial Controls 845
4. Strengthening the Dutch and Spanish Realms, c. 1660–1830 857
A Survey of Dutch Advances to 1784 858
Explaining Dutch Advances 864
18th-Century Commercial Dynamism: The Dutch as Victim 868
Early 19th-Century Upheavals: The Dutch as Phoenix 874
Cultural Cleavages in the Dutch Conquest State 878
Political and Cultural Integration in the Philippines, c. 1660–1830 883
Conclusion: The Islands and the Mainland 891

Conclusion 895

Index 909

© in this web service Cambridge University Press www.cambridge.org