CAMBRIDGE

Cambridge University Press
978-1-107-00480-1 - A Financial Centre for Two Empires: Hong Kong's Corporate, Securities and Tax Laws in its Transition from Britain to China
David C. Donald
Table of Contents
More information

CONTENTS

List of figures ix
List of tables x
Preface xi

1 History's marks on Hong Kong law: from British colony, to Chinese SAR 1
A Hong Kong's historically driven component culture 1
1 The endowments of an international financial centre 1
2 Accidental haven with unintended consequences 4
B Forming Hong Kong's 'caretaker' government model 9
1 Cutting in the middlemen 9
2 Institutions of intermediation 15
3 Cultivating community leaders 19
C Building the Hong Kong legal system 22
1 Laying the foundation 22
2 A 'colonization kit' of ordinances for the good order 25
3 Linking Hong Kong to the English Common Law 27
D Hong Kong as an exemplary jurisdiction in China 34
1 A new role for an old port 34
2 From caretaker society to civil society? 36
3 Laissez-faire policies are essentially fading path dependence 44
4 Hong Kong must begin to make common law 49

2 Hong Kong's economic structure: the corporate control context 54
A Two salient economic characteristics 54
1 The dominance of substantial shareholders 54
2 A stock market dominated by companies formed under foreign law 57
3 Data and methodology 59

© in this web service Cambridge University Press www.cambridge.org

CAMBRIDGE

Cambridge University Press
978-1-107-00480-1 - A Financial Centre for Two Empires: Hong Kong's Corporate, Securities and Tax Laws in its Transition from Britain to China
David C. Donald
Table of Contents
More information

B Hong Kong's corporate groups 62
1 The financial services sector 62
a The Bank of East Asia 62
b The Bank of China Group 64
c HSBC Holdings 66
d Standard Chartered 68
2 The property development sector 69
a Cheung Kong Holdings 71
b New World Group 73
c The Hang Lung Group 77
d Henderson Land 79
e Sun Hung Kai 83
3 The commerce and industry sector 85
a Jardine Matheson 86
b China Mobile Limited 88
c Hutchison Whampoa Limited 90
d Swire Pacific 91
e China Resources 93
f CITIC Pacific 95
4 Governance relevant information summarized for the dominant corporate groups 97
C An exchange dominated by other countries' companies 101

3 Hong Kong corporate and securities laws in response to the Region's role as China's international financial centre 104
A Evaluating Hong Kong law on the basis of local risks 104
B Law transplanted (only) as the need arose 111
1 Slowly evolving company law 111
2 Crisis-driven securities regulation 117
C How good are the Hong Kong company and securities laws? 123
1 Does company law protect against majority shareholder abuse? 123
a Public defence of minority shareholders 127
b Applying the unfair prejudice action to listed companies 131
2 Does company law address the specific risks of corporate groups? 133
3 Does company law protect both unsophisticated and sophisticated creditors? 140
4 Does company law sufficiently serve private companies? 147

© in this web service Cambridge University Press www.cambridge.org

CAMBRIDGE

Cambridge University Press
978-1-107-00480-1 - A Financial Centre for Two Empires: Hong Kong's Corporate, Securities and Tax Laws in its Transition from Britain to China
David C. Donald
Table of Contents
More information

5 Do company and securities laws sufficiently limit risks from foreign listed companies? 152
a Recognized and acceptable jurisdictions 153
b Required provisions in articles 154
c Outreach provisions of the Companies Ordinance 155 6 Do securities laws and regulations prevent market abuse? 157
a Rules against insider dealing 159
b Rules against price manipulation 162
c Rules on short sales 163
d Requirements for investment banks sponsoring public offerings 164
D Reducing the risks of algorithmic trading through taxation 165
E Do Hong Kong company and securities laws measure up? 168

4 The role of Hong Kong's tax policies 171
A Historical background 171
B Hong Kong's tax system today 173
C Hong Kong tax seen on a global scale 176
1 Exchange of information 176
2 Hong Kong as a 'tax haven'? 178
D Taxation and the financial centre 183
1 Stamp duty on stock transfers 183
2 Exemption of offshore investment funds from profits tax 185
E Taxation and the rule of law in Hong Kong 186

5 Enforcement of corporate and securities law in Hong Kong 188
A The institutional framework 188
1 Introduction 188
2 The courts 189
3 The Securities and Futures Commission (SFC) 191
4 Hong Kong Exchanges and Clearing Limited (HKEx) 193
B Private enforcement through litigation 196
1 Unfair prejudice actions 196
2 Shareholder derivative actions 201
3 Securities fraud actions 205
C Public enforcement 206
1 The range of the SFC's activity 206
2 Supervising licensed corporations 211
3 Policing the market against misconduct 213

© in this web service Cambridge University Press www.cambridge.org

CAMBRIDGE

Cambridge University Press
978-1-107-00480-1 - A Financial Centre for Two Empires: Hong Kong's Corporate, Securities and Tax Laws in its Transition from Britain to China
David C. Donald
Table of Contents
More information

4 Direct government action: a tale of two bailouts 216
D Contractual sanctions by the HKEx 220
1 The enforcement record 220
2 Quality versus volume 221

6 China's impact on Hong Kong's position as an international financial centre: the legal and policy dimensions 223
A Introduction: integration, competition and erosion 223
B CEPA's direct benefits for Hong Kong's financial sector 225
C Listing Chinese companies in Hong Kong: the regulatory and legal challenges 228
1 The China factor, especially SOE listings, in Hong Kong's stock market 228
2 The legal framework for corporatized SOEs: the law on paper 230
3 Legal-political governance of SOEs 234
a From traditional to corporatized SOEs 234
b SASAC as the de facto state shareholder 236
c Direct political control of SOEs by the party 238
4 Political and policy considerations behind the listing of SOEs in Hong Kong 240 a The good policy pursuance: financial and political reasons for listing SOEs in Hong Kong 240
b Bonding Chinese SOEs to Hong Kong's better regulatory regime 242
c Political control of SOE listings by the PRC 246
5 SOE listing: challenges for Hong Kong's regulatory and legal environment 249 a SOE operations: business judgement or political judgement? 249
b Challenges on cross-border enforcement of securities fraud between Hong Kong and mainland China 251
D The potential rise of Shanghai as a financial centre 254
E Concluding remarks 256

References 258
Index 269

© in this web service Cambridge University Press www.cambridge.org