Announcing a New Series

Old Testament Theology

Old Testament Theology is an important new series which helps students integrate their study of the bible with other courses in Religion and Theology.

Many factors have driven the publication of the Old Testament Theology series, just as they did with New Testament Theology more than a decade ago. Like its sister series, Old Testament Theology allows Old Testament scholars to write at greater length on the theology of individual biblical books and may do so without being tied to a linear, verse-by-verse commentary or a thematic structure imposed on the text from outside.

Each volume in the series seeks to describe the biblical book’s theology as well as to engage with the book theologically – it presents the theology with the biblical book under discussion, as well as delineates the theology contained within it.

The new series will contain highly-useful volumes that are ideally poised to make significant contributions on a number of fronts including:

- The ongoing discussion of biblical theology in confessional and non-confessional mode as well as in postmodern and canonical contexts.
- The theological exchange between Old Testament scholars and those working in cognate and disparate disciplines.
- Introducing students to the theology of the discrete canonical unit: the biblical books themselves.

KEY INFORMATION

Readership:
Undergraduate students, graduate students and academic researchers

Market:
biblical theology, biblical studies, systematic theology

For further information

www.cambridge.org/series
The Theology of the Book of Jeremiah
Walter Brueggemann

The study focuses on the theology of the Book of Jeremiah. Theology revolves around themes familiar from Israel’s covenantal faith. The God attested in the Book of Jeremiah invites its readers into and through any dislocations to new futures that combine divine agency and human inventiveness rooted in faithfulness.

Publication January 2007
2007 • 216 x 138 mm • 210pp
978-0-521-84454-3 • Hardback • c. £32.50
978-0-521-60629-5 • Paperback • c. £10.99

http://www.cambridge.org/uk/9780521606295

Proposed future Titles

The Theology of the Book of Genesis
by Walter L. Moberly

The Theology of the Book of Leviticus
by Brent A. Strawn

The Theology of the Book of Judges
by Joel S. Kaminsky

The Theology of the Book of Psalms
by Patrick D. Miller

The Theology of the Book of Ecclesiastes
by J. Gerald Janzen

The Theology of the Book of Daniel
by Anathea Portier-Young

The Theology of the Book of Hosea
by Christine Roy Yoder

The Theology of the Book of Amos
by John Barton