Experience the glory and wonder of the Renaissance
Volumes in the series focus on several Italian city-states that were particularly active during the period 1300–1600. They chart their “rise and fall”, a drama that is often related to their political and economic fortunes.

Each volume will examine regional visual traditions and the political, social and general cultural contexts in which art was created. It will also look at patronage, both corporate and individual, and changes in religious and devotional practices, in particular how these affected the form and content of art works.

Richly illustrated, volumes in this series will provide an up-to-date and comprehensive overview of Italian art at a pivotal moment in its history.

Volumes will cover all media, including painting, sculpture and architecture. Emphasis is placed on the decorative arts, including manuscript illumination, medals, cassoni and tapestries, which played a far more important role than has previously been acknowledged.

These volumes will be designed and produced to the highest standards. Ranging from 400–450 pages in a large format, they will include a full illustration programme of 250 halftones and 32 colour plates.
Contents

Part I Introduction
1. Cultural Introduction to Renaissance Rome by Ingrid D. Rowland
2. Introduction to the Art History of Renaissance Rome by Marcia B. Hall

Part II
1. The Fourteenth and Fifteenth Centuries by Meredith J. Gill
2. 1503–1534 by Marcia B. Hall
3. Phoenix Romanus: Rome 1534–65 by Clare Robertson
4. The Counter Reformation and the End of the Century by Steven F. Ostrow

450 pages 32 colour plates 220 half-tones
0 521 62445 2 HB £80.00

Rome
Edited by Marcia B. Hall

This is the ONLY comprehensive history of Roman art in the Renaissance. All the arts, from architecture and painting to sculpture and the decorative arts, are studied together in their social, religious, economic and political context.

Beautifully illustrated, the volume presents an unprecedented visual survey of a three hundred year period.

At the core are the great masters of the High Renaissance: Michelangelo, Raphael, and Brumante.

• There is nothing else like it.
• Includes photographs of many monuments that were not previously published.
• The approach is contextual, particularly from the point of view of the history of the papal patronage.

All images used with the kind permission of Art Resource NY