

Index

- action-oriented ethics 85–86
  - abstract views of 86–87
  - and paternalism 88–89
- active / passive behavior 58–59
  - and functional impairment 122–123
- activities of daily living (ADL), and nursing home care 59
- actual autonomy
  - action-oriented ethics 85–89
  - biographical narrative 98–101
  - and choices of individuals 117–119
  - consent 89–93
  - development of persons see development of persons
  - and functional impairment 120–123
  - identification 108–112
    - developmental perspective 112–117
  - illness as dependence 104–108
  - responsibilities of elders 119–120
  - result-oriented ethics 84–85
  - and theories of autonomy 174–177
  - see also* phenomenological analysis of long-term care; phenomenological view of autonomy
- admission to nursing home
  - and monitoring actions of staff 168–169
  - and negative freedom 25–27
  - negotiation strategies of elders 165–167
    - conflict 170–171
    - denial 169–170
  - and social sense of self 171–172
  - and support from others 169
- affectivity
  - caregiver relationship with elders 163
  - and commitment to elders 159
  - coping strategies 161
  - and development of persons 101–102
  - and everyday experience 160–161
  - and fatigue 161
  - and illness 161–163
  - and sense of self 159–160
  - and theories of autonomy 176–177
- ageism 52–53
- agency, and competence 97–98
- agitated behavior, and temporal experience 151–152
- authoritarian view, and positive autonomy 22–23
- autism, and sociality 134–135
- autonomy
  - concepts of 6–8
  - and long-term care 8–11
  - theories of 174–177
  - see also* actual autonomy; liberal theory of autonomy; phenomenological view of autonomy
- baby talk 157–158
- behavior
  - active/passive 58–59
  - and functional impairment 122–123
  - and temporal experience 151–152
- beneficence
  - and paternalism 43–44
  - and theories of autonomy 175
- biographical narrative
  - and personal autonomy 98–101
  - and temporal experience 150–151
- body
  - posture and spatial experience 138–139
  - unity of self with, and illness 104–108
- caregivers
  - relationship with elders 163
  - working conditions 57–58
- caregiving
  - and illness as dependence 104–108
  - therapeutic relationships 67–69
- choice
  - free exercise of 29–31
  - identification with 117–118
  - meaningful choices 147–148
- chronic illness
  - as dependence 104–108
  - and functional impairment 120–123
  - and models of care 71–74
  - see also* illness

Cambridge University Press

0521009200 - Dependence and Autonomy in Old Age: An Ethical Framework for Long-Term Care,
Second and Revised Edition

George J. Agich

Index

More information204 Index

- classical view of therapy, and therapeutic relationships 67–69
- cognitive impairment, and nursing home care 59–60
- common culture, and sociality 133–134
- communication 152–154
  - assessment of 158–159
  - baby talk 157–158
  - and informed consent 154
  - negative communication style 155–156
  - positive communication style 156–157
  - and privacy 155
- communitarianism 31–35
  - long-term care implications 35–37
  - and sociality 125–126
- competence, and development of persons 97–98
- consent
  - and communication 154
  - models of 89–93
  - and nursing home admission 26–27
- consequentialist ethics 84–85
- contextualism 34–35
- contracts for nursing home admission, and negative freedom 25–26
- coping strategies 131–132, 161
- counterdependence 6–7
- critical reflection, and identification 114
- cultural routines, and sociality 133–134
- cultural values, and old age 54–55
- decision making, surrogate 41–43
- decisional autonomy 63–64
- delegated autonomy, and parentalism 48
- demographic trends in long-term care 3
- dependence
  - and activities of daily living 59
  - and development of persons 101–104
  - and illness 104–108
- depersonalization 60
- development of persons
  - and agency 97–98
  - and dependence 101–104
  - and identification 112–117
  - masculine/feminine ethic 94
  - maturity 93–94
  - and paternalism 44–45
  - process of 94–95
  - social phenomenological approach 95–96
  - and sociality 135–136
- direct autonomy, and parentalism 48
- disease see illness
- disengagement theory of ageing 53–54
- economic factors 4
  - funding of long-term care 19–20, 63–64
  - and liberty 19
- elderly mystique 52–53
- ethics
  - action-oriented 85–89
  - consent 89–93
  - and development of persons 93–98
  - foundations of, and long-term care 35–37
  - function of rights 39–41
  - practical ethical problems in long-term care 29–31
  - result-oriented 84–85
- everyday life
  - sociality see sociality
  - and theories of autonomy 176–177
- executorial autonomy 63–64
- expressivist perspective, and liberal theory of autonomy 16–17
- fatigue, affective nature of 161
- functional impairment
  - affective implications of 161–163
  - and long-term care 120–123
  - and nursing home funding 63–64
  - and theories of autonomy 175
- fundamental anxiety, and temporal experience 152
- funding of long-term care 19–20, 63–64
- higher self
  - and identification 114–115
  - and positive autonomy 22–24
- home care
  - care providers 77
  - concept of practices 74–77
  - ethics of care receivers 79–80
  - and medical model 77–78
  - patient rights 80–81
  - professionalization of 80
  - responsibilities of elders 78–79
- human development see development of persons
- identification
  - and choices of individuals 117–119
  - developmental perspective 112–117
  - and freedom of action 108–110
  - and self-identity 110–112
  - and theories of autonomy 176
- illness
  - affective implications of 161–163
  - concepts of 69–71
  - coping strategies 131–132
  - as dependence 104–108
  - and functional impairment 120–123
  - and models of care 71–74
  - and sociality 134–135
  - and spatial experience 136–137
  - therapeutic relationships 65–69
- immaturity, and development of persons 93–94

Cambridge University Press

0521009200 - Dependence and Autonomy in Old Age: An Ethical Framework for Long-Term Care,
Second and Revised Edition

George J. Agich

Index

More information

- independence 6–8, 10–11
  - see also* negative freedom
- individual freedom 6–8
- infantilization of elders 60
  - and baby talk 157–158
- informed consent
  - and communication 154
  - models of 89–93
- institutional care
  - and concept of autonomy 4–5
  - demographic trends 3
  - images of 2–3
  - physical environment of, and spatial experience 137–140
  - practical ethical problems 29–31
  - time structures in 148–150
  - see also* nursing homes
- interdependence, and development of persons 101–104
- legal rights
  - and home care services 80–81
  - and nursing home admission 25–27
- liberal State, and positive autonomy 21–22
- liberal theory of autonomy 175
  - and ethical foundations 35–37
  - expressivist perspective 16–17
  - and funding of long-term care 19–20
  - and liberty 17–19
  - negative freedom 14–16, 24–25
  - neutrality and toleration 37–38
  - and nursing home admission practices 25–27
  - paternalism 43–47
  - and physical restraints 27–29
  - positive autonomy 22–24
  - role of the State 21–22
  - practical ethical problems in long-term care 29–31
  - respect for persons 18
- rights
  - function of 39–41
  - and morality 41
  - and surrogate decision making 41–43
  - and sociality 125–126
- liberty
  - and economic conditions 19
  - positive and negative concepts 18–19
  - rights of 17–18
- life stories
  - and personal autonomy 98–101
  - and temporal experience 150–151
- loneliness 173
- long-term care
  - and concept of autonomy 4–5, 8–11
  - and concepts of illness 69–71
  - demographic trends 3
  - and ethical foundations 35–37
  - and functional impairment 120–123
  - funding 19–20
  - home care see home care
  - images of 2–3
  - and liberal theory of autonomy see liberal theory of autonomy
  - models of care 71–74
  - move to see nursing homes, move to
  - and myths of old age 52–56
  - nursing homes see nursing homes
  - phenomenological analysis see phenomenological analysis of long-term care
  - practices 74–77
  - responsibilities of elders 119–120
  - and spatial experience 136–140
  - practical implications 140–143
  - and temporal experience
    - agitated behavior 151–152
    - biographical narrative 150–151
    - distortions in sense of time 151
    - fundamental anxiety 152
  - therapeutic relationships see therapeutic relationships 65–69
  - time structures in 148–150
- maternal role in parenting 44–45
- maturity, and development of persons 93–94
- medical ethics
  - and models of care 71–74
  - therapeutic relationships see therapeutic relationships
- medical insurance 4
  - and home care services 80
- medical models
  - chronic illness 120–123
  - concepts of illness 69–71
  - nursing home care 60–61
  - funding implications 63–64
  - and practices 74–77
- Medicare 4
  - and home care services 80
- mental impairment, and nursing home care 59–60
- metaphysical view of self, and positive autonomy 22–24
- middle age, and disengagement theory of ageing 53–54
- modern view of therapy, and therapeutic relationships 67–69
- modus vivendi 17
- narrative, biographical
  - and personal autonomy 98–101
  - and temporal experience 150–151
- negative freedom
  - and liberal theory of autonomy 14–16
  - and liberty 17–19

Cambridge University Press

0521009200 - Dependence and Autonomy in Old Age: An Ethical Framework for Long-Term Care,
Second and Revised Edition

George J. Agich

Index

More information206 Index

- negative freedom (cont.)
    - and long-term care 24–26, 175–176
    - nursing home admission practices 25–27
    - physical restraints 27–29
    - and respect for persons 18
  - negotiation
    - and move to nursing home 165–167
    - conflict 170–171
    - denial 169–170
    - and sociality 130–131
  - neutral State, and positive autonomy 22
  - neutrality, and liberal theory of autonomy
    - 14–16, 37–38
  - nursing assistants
    - relationship with elders 163
    - working conditions 57–58, 61
  - nursing homes
    - and activities of daily living 59
    - admission practices, and negative freedom 25–27
    - and concept of autonomy 4–5
    - demographic trends 3
    - depersonalization of residents 60
    - environment of change in 61
    - experience of 56–58
    - funding of 63–64
    - images of 2–3
    - and loneliness 173
    - as medical environment 60–61
    - mental impairment of residents 59–60
    - models of care 73
    - move to
      - and conflict 170–171
      - and denial 169–170
      - and monitoring actions of staff 168–169
    - negotiation strategies of elders 165–167
    - and social sense of self 171–172
    - and support from others 169
  - need for reform 64–65
  - passive/active behavior of residents 58–59
  - physical environment of, and spatial experience 137–140
  - physical restraints 27–29
  - practical ethical problems 29–31
  - regulatory requirements 74
  - sense of community in 62
  - types of 4
  - working conditions 57–58
- old age
    - ageism 52–53
    - disengagement theory of ageing 53–54
  - parentalism 45–46, 47–50
  - passive/active behavior 58–59
    - and functional impairment 122–123
  - paternalism
    - and development of persons 43–47
    - and parentalism 47–50
  - personal autonomy, and biographical narrative 98–101
  - personal preference 7–8
  - phenomenological analysis of long-term care
    - conflict 170–171
    - denial 169–170
    - ethical complexity 173–174
    - loneliness 173
    - monitoring actions of staff 168–169
    - social sense of self 171–172
    - support from others 169
  - phenomenological view of autonomy
    - affectivity 159–163
    - communication see communication
    - sociality and everyday life 125–129
    - spatial experience see space, role in human experience
    - temporal experience see time, role in human experience
  - physical impairment
    - in older population 4
    - and spatial experience 136–137
    - and theories of autonomy 176–177
  - physical restraints
    - and negative freedom 27–29
    - and spatial experience 142–143
  - pluralism 14–15
  - political liberalism
    - and expressivist perspective 16–17
    - and individual autonomy 18–19
    - and liberal theory of autonomy 14–16
    - and liberty 17–19
  - positive autonomy
    - and authoritarian views 22–23
    - and higher self 22–24
    - role of the State 21–22
  - practices, concepts of 74–77
  - privacy 155
  - private funding of long-term care 19–20
  - psychosocial development, and dependence
    - 101–104
  - public funding of long-term care 19–20
  - real self
    - and identification 114–115
    - and positive autonomy 22–24
  - reflection, and sociality 132
  - regulatory requirements, for nursing homes
    - 74
  - relationship with others
    - affective relationship with caregiver 163
    - and sociality 129–130
  - respect for persons 18
  - responsibilities of elders 78–79

Cambridge University Press

0521009200 - Dependence and Autonomy in Old Age: An Ethical Framework for Long-Term Care,
Second and Revised Edition

George J. Agich

Index

More information

- restraints, physical
  - and negative freedom 27–29
  - and spatial experience 142–143
- result-oriented ethics 84–85
- rights
  - function of 39–41
  - and home care services 80–81
  - and morality 41
  - and nursing home admission 25–27
  - ‘right to rot’ 24–25
  - and surrogate decision making 41–43
- routines of social life 133–134
- safety regulations 74
- self-assertion 8
- self-reliance 7
- self, sense of
  - and affectivity 159–160
  - and positive autonomy 22–24
- self, unity of body with, and illness as
  - dependence 104–108
- sensory impairment, and nursing home
  - care 59–60
- sick role
  - and move to nursing home 165–167
  - and therapeutic relationships 66–67
- sickness see illness
- social attitudes to old age 52–56
- sociality
  - and abstract views of autonomy 131
  - and development of persons 135–136
  - and illness 134–135
  - coping strategies 131–132
  - negotiation 130–131
  - phenomenological view 125–129
  - reflection 132
  - relationship with others 129–130
  - and routines 133–134
  - and theories of autonomy 174
  - typifications 130
- space, role in human experience
  - body posture 138–139
  - change of environment 139–140
  - long-term care implications 140–143
  - and nursing home environment
    - 137–138
  - and physical impairment 136–137
- split-level theories of self, and
  - identification 112–117
- State, the, and positive autonomy 21–22
- surrogate decision making 9, 41–43
- therapeutic relationships
  - classical/modern views of therapy 67–69
  - definition 65–66
  - and sick role 66–67
- time, role in human experience 143–144
  - and choices of individuals 147–148
  - long-term care implications
    - agitated behavior 151–152
    - biographical narrative 150–151
    - distortions in sense of time 151
    - and fundamental anxiety 152
  - institutional structures 148–150
  - and personal history 146–147
  - and schedules 146
  - shared sense of time 144–145
- toleration 14–15
  - and liberal theory of autonomy 37–38
- typifications 130
- utilitarian theory 84–85
- wandering, and spatial experience
  - 140–143
- Western/non-Western societies, attitudes
  - to old age 55–56
- youth, and disengagement theory of ageing
  - 53–54