

Contents

List of figures	page vii
List of tables	ix
List of contributors	xi
Acknowledgements	xii
1 Introduction: the transmission mechanism and monetary policy LAVAN MAHADEVA AND PETER SINCLAIR	1
2 Are the effects of monetary policy in the euro area greater in recessions than in booms? GERT PEERSMAN AND FRANK SMETS	28
3 Supply shocks and the ‘natural rate of interest’: an exploration JAGJIT S. CHADHA AND CHARLES NOLAN	49
4 Some econometric issues in measuring the monetary transmission mechanism, with an application to developing countries DERICK BOYD AND RON SMITH	68
5 Central bank goals, institutional change and monetary policy: evidence from the United States and the United Kingdom V. ANTON MUSCATELLI AND CARMINE TRECROCI	100
6 The transmission mechanism of monetary policy near zero interest rates: the Japanese experience, 1998–2000 KAZUO UEDA	127
7 What does the UK’s monetary policy and inflation experience tell us about the transmission mechanism? EDWARD NELSON	137

vi	Contents
8	Modelling the transmission mechanism of monetary policy PETER WESTAWAY	156
9	Empirical evidence for credit effects in the transmission mechanism of the United Kingdom K. ALEC CHRYSTAL AND PAUL MIZEN	167
10	Uncovered interest parity with fundamentals: a Brazilian exchange rate forecast model MARCELO KFOURY MUINHOS, PAULO SPRINGER DE FREITAS AND FABIO ARAUJO	191
11	Uncovered interest parity and the monetary transmission mechanism GUY MEREDITH	208
	Bibliography	237
	Index	254

Figures

2.1	Detrended industrial production in eight euro-area countries	page 33
2.2	Detrended industrial production and the probability of being in a recession	36
2.3	Industrial production growth and the probability of being in a recession	37
2.4	Impulse responses to a monetary policy shock in the euro area	39
2.5	Contribution of the monetary policy shock to the short-term interest rate	40
2.6	Impulse responses to a monetary policy shock	41
2.7	Impulse response to a monetary policy shock: individual countries	45
3.1	Histogram of standard Solow residual	51
3.2	Histogram of corrected Solow residual	51
3.3	Real rates and the business cycle, 1871–1998	53
3.4	Wicksell gap for TFP and corrected TFP	63
3.5	Nominal income growth and the UK Wicksell gap, 1965–98	65
5.1	Output gaps: UK	104
5.2	Output gaps: USA	104
5.3	Standard trivariate VAR model: UK	108
5.4	Standard trivariate VAR model: USA	110
5.5	UK Bayesian VAR: effect on interest rate of an inflation shock	116
5.6	UK Bayesian VAR: effect on interest rate of an output gap shock	117
5.7	UK Bayesian VAR: effect on inflation rate of an output gap shock	118
5.8	UK Bayesian VAR: effect on output gap of an interest rate shock	118
		vii

viii	List of figures
5.9	US Bayesian VAR: effect on interest rate of an inflation shock	119
5.10	US Bayesian VAR: effect on interest rate of an output gap shock	120
5.11	US Bayesian VAR: effect on output gap of an interest rate shock	121
5.12	US Bayesian VAR: effect on inflation rate of an output gap shock	121
6.1	The monetary base in Japan, 1995–2000	129
6.2	Measures of real economic activity, 1997(Q1)–2000(Q2)	131
7.1	Recursive least squares estimates of b in equation (7.2), UK data	141
7.2	Actual nominal interest rate in the United Kingdom and the value implied by a Taylor rule	143
8.1	Interest rates to inflation	160
8.2	The transmission mechanism of monetary policy	160
8.3	Effects on the inflation rate of an interest rate shock under different policy assumptions	161
9.1	Actual and fitted values for the dynamic equations of the PNFC structural model	182
9.2	Actual and fitted values for the dynamic equations of the household structural model	185
10.1	Impulse responses to an inflation shock	198
10.2	Impulse responses to an output gap shock	200
10.3	Impulse responses to a risk shock	201
10.4	Impulse responses to an interest rate shock	202
10A.1	Balance of payments as a function of θ	205
11.1	Alternative liquidity trap scenario	232

Tables

1.1	The effects of supply and demand shocks on the output gap, inflation and expected inflation, decomposed into the underlying shock, a transparency error and a control error	page 13
2.1	Test for a common business cycle in the euro area	34
2.2	The cyclical effects of monetary policy	35
2.3	The cyclical effects of monetary policy in the individual countries	43
2.4	The effects of monetary policy on state switches	46
3.1	Observed data: summary UK facts	52
3.2	Real rates and the business cycle	53
3.3	Fundamental parameters: quarterly percentages	61
3.4	Model output: total factor productivity	62
3.5	Model output: capacity utilisation stripped TFP shock, $\rho = 0.99$	63
3.6	Model output: capacity utilisation stripped TFP shock, $\rho = 0.70$	63
3.7	Model output: capacity utilisation stripped (by Kalman Filter) TFP shock, $\rho = 0.99$	64
3.8	Wicksell gap and inflation output outcomes	65
4.1	The effect of removing insignificant estimates	81
4A.1	Inflation persistence equation	87
4A.2	Purchasing power parity equation	90
4A.3	IS equation	93
4A.4	Trade balance equation	96
5.1	Backward-looking conditional models of output and inflation	103
5.2	Marginal models of the interest rate, output and inflation	106
5.3	Invariance/superexogeneity tests	107

x	List of tables
5A.1	Data sources	124
5A.2	Definition of variables	124
6.1	Movements in components of GDP in terms of contribution to GDP changes, 1997–8	128
9.1	Long-run estimate for the PNFC sector	179
9.2	Estimates of the dynamic structural model for PNFCs	180
9.3	Long-run estimated equations for the household sector	182
9.4	Estimates of the dynamic structural model for households	184
9.5	Financial linkages between sectors	188
10A.1	Description of the variables in the model	204
11.1	Results of long-horizon UIP regressions	216
11.2	Simulation model	218
11.3	Standard deviations of actual and simulated data	220
11.4	Results of synthetic UIP regressions	221
11.5	Decomposition of $\hat{\beta}$ from synthetic regressions	223
11.6	Decomposing simulated exchange rate variance	224
11.7	First-year impact of various shocks on interest rates and exchange rates	228