INTERNATIONAL STUDIES

Britain and the Origins of the New Europe 1914–1918
INTERNATIONAL STUDIES

PUBLISHED FOR THE CENTRE FOR INTERNATIONAL STUDIES, LONDON SCHOOL OF ECONOMICS AND POLITICAL SCIENCE

Editorial Board
Professor G. L. Goodwin  Professor D. C. Watt
Professor J. B. Joll  Mr P. Windsor
Professor J. P. de la Wiles  Dr M. Leifer
Professor L. B. Schapiro  Dr I. Nish

The Centre for International Studies at the London School of Economics was established in 1967 with the aid of a grant from the Ford Foundation. Its aim is to promote research and advanced training on a multi-disciplinary basis in the general field of International Studies, particular emphasis being given to contemporary China, the Soviet Union and Eastern Europe and their relationship with the outside world, and also to European Studies. To this end the Centre, in collaboration with other bodies (such as the Social Science Research Council), sponsors research projects and seminars.

The Centre is undertaking a series of publications in International Studies, of which this volume is the sixth.

Whilst the Editorial Board accepts responsibility for recommending the inclusion of a volume in the series, the author is alone responsible for the views and opinions expressed.

ALSO IN THIS SERIES
BLIT: The Origins of Polish Socialism
STEINER: The Slovak Dilemma
VAN CREVELD: Hitler’s Strategy 1940–1941: The Balkan Clue
OGUNSANWO: China’s Policy in Africa 1958–71
UNGER: The Totalitarian Party: Party and People in Nazi Germany and Soviet Russia
CONTENTS

Acknowledgements vii
Map ix
Introduction 1

1 The initial contact 12
2 Yugoslavia in the Balkan negotiations, 1914–15 29
3 Espionage and propaganda, 1914–16 47
4 War aims, 1916 79
5 Britain and Austria-Hungary, 1917–18 108
6 The recognition of the Polish National Committee, 1917 145
7 Commitment by implication, 1918 175

Conclusion 214
Notes 220
Bibliography 252
Index 263
To Mother and Ernie
ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

During the research and writing of this book I was fortunate in receiving the assistance of many people to whom I would like to express my appreciation. Foremost among these was Professor James Joll of the London School of Economics and Political Science without whose encouragement, advice and assistance this book might never have been completed. To him I owe a debt of gratitude which cannot be adequately expressed. Professor Hugh Seton-Watson supplied me with invaluable information about his father and was kind enough to share with me his thoughts on the subject of this book. From Lady Namier I received insights into the youth as well as the wartime activities of Sir Lewis Namier. Professor H. N. Fieldhouse and Mr Martin Gilbert were kind enough to answer my queries thus enabling me to benefit from their research. Mr A. J. P. Taylor discussed the topic with me when I began my research and after reading an earlier draft of the book pointed out a number of flaws in it. I was privileged to have the opportunity to discuss with the late August Zaleski, then President of the Polish Republic-in-Exile, his role in the movement for Polish independence. I also benefited from discussions with Professor A. Headlam-Morley, Professor M. G. Fry, Dr F. R. Bridge, and Dr M. Ekstein Frankl. I am particularly grateful to Sir Steven Runciman not only for permitting me to examine his father’s papers but also for being a most gracious host.

I would like to express my appreciation to the Commonwealth Scholarship and Fellowship Commission and the Canada Council for the financial assistance that made this project possible.

I am grateful to the officials and staffs of the Public Record Office; the British Museum; the Bodleian Library; the Beaverbrook Library; the Cambridge University Library; the Institute of Historical Research; the School of Slavonic and East European Studies; The Times Archives; the Yale University Library; New College, Oxford; the Douglas Library, Queen’s University, Kings-viii Acknowledgements

I would also like to thank Professor G. L. Goodwin, the Editorial Board of the Centre for International Studies, and the staff of Cambridge University Press for their advice and assistance in the process of preparing the book for publication.

To the Controller and Staff of London House, I would like to express my appreciation for making my stay in London both pleasant and rewarding.

To my brother, Dr Robert Lorin Calder and my sister-in-law, Barbara, I am indebted for unfailing hospitality on many memorable weekends, and for being a constant source of encouragement and support.

For her patience, assistance and encouragement I would like to express my gratitude to my wife, Odile.

K.J.C.
The nationalities of eastern Europe, c. 1918.