Contents

Editors’ preface vii  Contributors xi

The historical background: the past 25 years since the Mental Health Act of 1959
Martin Roth 1

The social and medical consequences of recent legal reforms of mental health law in the USA: the criminalization of mental disorder
Alan A. Stone 9

The recent Mental Health Act in the United Kingdom: issues and perspectives
Robert Bluglass 21

Medical and social consequences of the Italian Psychiatric Care Act of 1978
P. Sarteschi, G.B. Cassano, M. Mauri and A. Petracca 32

Lessons for the future drawn from United States legislation and experience
Robert J. Campbell 43

Recent developments in relation to mental health and the law in the Federal Republic of Germany
H. Helmchen 58

Psychopathy and dangerousness
William H. Reid 72

Dangerousness in social perspective
Jean Floud 81

Psychiatric explanations as excuses
Nigel Walker 96
Contents

Detention of patients: administrative problems facing Mental Health Review Tribunals
Sir John Wood 114

Developments in forensic psychiatry services in the National Health Service
John R. Hamilton 123

The role of psychiatry in prisons and ‘the right to punishment’
John Gunn 138

Human rights in mental health
Larry Gostin 148

Changes in mental health legislation as indicators of changing values and policies
Margaret A. Somerville 156

The Danish experience: one model of psychiatric testimony to courts of law
Villars Lunn 215

A postscript on the discussions at the Cambridge Conference on Society, Psychiatry and the Law
Martin Roth and Robert Bluglass 228