Acknowledgments

The source material for this book comes from the residents of a state school for the mentally retarded. Each contributed in his or her own way. I am grateful for their participation. The staff of the school granted me access to the residents' lives. I hope this study will increase our understanding of persons with developmental disabilities.

The faculty at Harvard University influenced my development and the evolution of my inquiry. Dr Karen Watson-Gegeo cultivated my achievement by her own example as teacher, scholar, and researcher. Our conversations echo in the words of this book.

The administration of Rhode Island College and the faculty of the Department of Special Education provided me the opportunity for the development of this text. The editorial suggestions of the staff of Cambridge University Press enhanced the presentation of the content. The careful preparation of the manuscript is the work of Joyce Turner. Paul Weiner's illustrations were adapted by Jane Wilson.

This story is told as the result of a decade of personal sacrifice, financial support, and editorial assistance of my wife, Barrie. Words on a page cannot describe my love and appreciation. She touches every aspect of my life.
