The United States and Germany during the Twentieth Century presents a wide-ranging comparison of the development of two societies over an extended period of time. The two countries – the world's leading “rising powers” at the opening of the twentieth century – were both more similar and more different than is widely understood. Above all, their dual encounter with modernity brings out the richness of both societies as they faced unprecedented internal and external challenges, sometimes in isolation, but more often in combination or in parallel with one another.

Christof Mauch is Director of the Rachel Carson Center for Environment and Society and of the Lasky Center for Transatlantic Studies at Ludwig Maximilian University, Munich. Before joining Munich University, he was the director of the German Historical Institute in Washington, D.C. Dr. Mauch is the author or editor of more than thirty books, some of them award-winning, including Natural Disasters, Cultural Responses: Case Studies toward a Global Environmental History (2009, edited with Christian Pfister); The World beyond the Windshield: Landscapes and Roads in Europe and North America (2008, edited with Thomas Zeller); Rivers in History: Perspectives on Waterways in Europe and North America (2008, edited with Thomas Zeller); Shadow War against Hitler (2003); and Berlin–Washington, 1800–2000 (2005, edited with Andreas Daum).

Kiran Klaus Patel is Professor of European History and Transatlantic Relations at the European University Institute, Florence. He is the author of multiple publications, including Soldiers of Labor: Labor Service in Nazi Germany and New Deal America, 1933–1945 (2005) and Fertile Ground for Europe? The History of European Integration and the Common Agricultural Policy since 1945 (2009). Professor Patel has directed and co-directed several large projects, particularly “Imagined Europeans: The Scientific Construction of Homo Europaeus” and “Europeanization and History: Concepts, Conflicts, Cohesion.”
The German Historical Institute is a center for advanced study and research whose purpose is to provide a permanent basis for scholarly cooperation among historians from the Federal Republic of Germany and the United States. The Institute conducts, promotes, and supports research into both American and German political, social, economic, and cultural history; into transatlantic migration, especially in the nineteenth and twentieth centuries; and into the history of international relations, with special emphasis on the roles played by the United States and Germany.

Recent books in the series

Monica Black, Death in Berlin: From Weimar to Divided Germany

J. R. McNeill and Corinna R. Unger, editors, Environmental Histories of the Cold War

Roger Chickering and Stig Förster, editors, War in an Age of Revolution, 1775–1815

Cathryn Carson, Heisenberg in the Atomic Age: Science and the Public Sphere

Michaela Hoenicke Moore, Know Your Enemy: The American Debate on Nazism, 1933–1945

Matthias Schulz and Thomas A. Schwartz, editors, The Strained Alliance: U.S.–European Relations from Nixon to Carter

Suzanne L. Marchand, German Orientalism in the Age of Empire: Religion, Race, and Scholarship

Manfred Berg and Bernd Schaefer, editors, Historical Justice in International Perspective: How Societies Are Trying to Right the Wrongs of the Past

Carole Fink and Bernd Schaefer, editors, Ostpolitik, 1969–1974: European and Global Responses

Nathan Stoltzfus and Henry Friedlander, editors, Nazi Crimes and the Law
The United States and Germany during the Twentieth Century

COMPETITION AND CONVERGENCE

Edited by

CHRISTOF MAUCH
Ludwig Maximilian University, Munich

KIRAN KLAUS PATEL
European University Institute, Florence

GERMAN HISTORICAL INSTITUTE
Washington, D.C.

and

CAMBRIDGE UNIVERSITY PRESS
Contents

Contributors
page ix

Acknowledgments
xi

1 Modernities: Competition versus Convergence
Christof Mauch and Kiran Klaus Patel
1

2 Empires: Might and Myopia
Thomas Bender and Michael Geyer
13

3 Religion: Belief and Power
Simone Lässig and Rainer Prütorius
32

4 Law: Constitutionalism and Culture
Manfred Berg and Dieter Gosewinkel
52

5 Welfare: Entitlement and Exclusion
Daniel Letwin and Gabriele Metzler
70

6 Immigration: Myth versus Struggles
Tobias Brinkmann and Annemarie Sammartino
85

7 Masses: Mobilization versus Manipulation
W. Fitzhugh Brundage and Konrad H. Jarausch
102

8 Market: Consumption and Commerce
Heinz-Gerhard Haupt and Paul Nolte
121

9 Authority: Schools and Military
Dirk Schumann and Judith Seelander
144

10 Gender: Equality and Differences
Eileen Boris and Christiane Eifert
161
Contents

11 Environment: Conservation versus Exploitation 180
   Christof Mauch and Kiran Klaus Patel

12 Film and Television 194
   Edward Dimendberg and Anton Kaes

13 Education: Universities and Research 211
   Kathryn M. Olesko and Christoph Strupp

14 Media: Government versus Market 227
   Philipp Gassert and Christina von Hodenberg

Index 245
Contributors

Thomas Bender is University Professor of the Humanities and Professor of History at New York University.

Manfred Berg is Curt Engelhorn Professor of American History at the University of Heidelberg.

Eileen Boris is Hull Professor and Chair, Department of Feminist Studies, and Professor of History and Black Studies, University of California, Santa Barbara.

Tobias Brinkmann is Malvin and Lea Bank Associate Professor of Jewish Studies and History at Pennsylvania State University.

W. Fitzhugh Brundage is William B. Umstead Professor of History at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill.

Edward Dimendberg is Professor of Film and Media Studies, Visual Studies, and German at the University of California, Irvine.

Christiane Eifert is Lecturer in History at the Free University, Berlin.

Philipp Gassert is Professor of Transatlantic Cultural History at the University of Augsburg.

Michael Geyer is Samuel N. Harper Professor of German and European History at the University of Chicago.

Dieter Gosewinkel is Lecturer in History at the Free University of Berlin.

Heinz-Gerhard Haupt is Professor of History and Civilization at the European University Institute, Florence.

Christina von Hodenberg is Reader in European History at Queen Mary, University of London.
Contributors

Konrad H. Jarausch is Lurcy Professor of European Civilization at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill.

Anton Kae is Class of 1939 Professor of German and Film Studies at the University of California, Berkeley.

Simone Lässig is Professor of Modern History at the Technische Universität Braunschweig and Director of the Georg Eckert Institute for International Textbook Research, Braunschweig.

Daniel Letwin is Associate Professor of History at Pennsylvania State University.

Christof Mauch is Director of the Rachel Carson Center for Environment and Society and of the Lasky Center for Transatlantic Studies at Ludwig Maximilian University, Munich.

Gabriele Metzler is Professor of History at Humboldt University, Berlin.

Paul Nolte is Professor of History at the Free University of Berlin.

Kathryn M. Olesko is Associate Professor of History at Georgetown University, Washington, D.C.

Kiran Klaus Patel is Professor of European History and Transatlantic Relations at the European University Institute, Florence.

Rainer Prütorius is Professor of Public Administration at Helmut Schmidt University, Hamburg.

Annemarie Sammartino is Assistant Professor of History at Oberlin College, Ohio.

Dirk Schumann is Professor of Modern and Contemporary History at Georg August University, Göttingen.

Judith Sealander is Professor of History at Bowling Green State University, Ohio.

Christoph Strupp is Research Fellow at the Forschungsstelle für Zeitgeschichte, Hamburg.
Acknowledgments

The editors would like to voice their gratitude first and foremost to the contributors to this volume and the Robert Bosch Stiftung. Without the generous support the Robert Bosch Stiftung provided, this project would not have been possible. We give special thanks to Dieter Berg, the chairman of the Robert Bosch Stiftung’s Management Board, and Peter Theiner, the head of its Department for International Relations. We would also like to thank the German Historical Institute, Washington, D.C., and the Humboldt-Universität zu Berlin for their financial and organization support. We owe a special debt of gratitude to those who helped prepare the manuscript for submission: Michael Kimmage at the Amerika-Institut, Munich; Ken Weisbrode at the European University Institute, Florence; and Bryan Hart and David Lazar at the German Historical Institute, Washington. Finally, we would like to thank Eric Crahan and Frank Smith of Cambridge University Press for the encouragement and support they offered this project from the very outset.

Christof Mauch and Kiran Klaus Patel