Beyond Prejudice

Edited by John Dixon and Mark Levine

The concept of prejudice has profoundly influenced how we have investigated, explained and tried to change intergroup relations of discrimination and inequality. But what has this concept contributed to our knowledge of relations between groups and what has it obscured or misrepresented? How has it expanded or narrowed the horizons of psychological inquiry? How effective or ineffective has it been in guiding our attempts to transform social relations and institutions? In this book, a team of internationally renowned psychologists re-evaluate the concept of prejudice, in an attempt to move beyond conventional approaches to the subject and to help the reader gain a clearer understanding of relations within and between groups. This fresh look at prejudice will appeal to scholars and students of social psychology, sociology, political science and peace studies.

Dr John Dixon is a professor of social psychology at the Open University, having lectured previously at Lancaster University, the University of Worcester and the University of Cape Town. He has published widely on the topics of prejudice, intergroup conflict and prejudice reduction and is the coauthor, with Kevin Durrheim, of Racial Encounter: the Social Psychology of Contact and Desegregation (2005). He is currently a coeditor, with Jolanda Jetten, of the British Journal of Social Psychology.

Dr Mark Levine is a professor of social psychology at the University of Exeter. His research, which focuses on the relationship between social identity and pro-social behaviour, has appeared in a range of international journals, including the Journal of Personality and Social Psychology, American Psychologist and Psychological Science.
Beyond Prejudice

Extending the Social Psychology of Conflict, Inequality and Social Change

Edited by

John Dixon

and

Mark Levine
Contents

List of figures vii
List of tables viii
List of contributors ix
Acknowledgements xi

Introduction
JOHN DIXON AND MARK LEVINE 1

Part I Beyond prejudice 25

1 From perception to mobilization: the shifting paradigm of prejudice
STEPHEN REICHER 27

2 Prejudice, social identity and social change: resolving the Allportian problematic
KATHERINE J. REYNOLDS, S. ALEXANDER HASLAM AND JOHN C. TURNER 48

3 An ambivalent alliance: hostile and benevolent sexism as complementary justifications for gender inequality
PETER GLICK AND SUSAN T. FISKE 70

4 Prejudice and dehumanization
NICK HASLAM AND STEPHEN LOUGHNAN 89

5 Stereotyping, prejudice and discrimination revisited: from William James to W. E. B. Du Bois
STANLEY O. GAINES, JR 105

6 Beyond ‘old’ and ‘new’: for a social psychology of racism
SAMUEL PEHRSON AND COLIN WAYNE LEACH 120
Contents

7 The notion of ‘prejudice’: some rhetorical and ideological aspects
MICHAEL BILLIG 139

8 The prejudice problematic
MARGARET WETHERELL 158

9 Implicit prejudice in mind and interaction
KEVIN DURRHEIM 179

10 Rethinking the prejudice problematic: a collaborative cognition approach
SUSAN CONDOR AND LIA FIGGOU 200

Part II Prejudice and social change revisited 223

11 Models of social change in social psychology: collective action or prejudice reduction? Conflict or harmony?
STEPHEN C. WRIGHT AND GAMZE BARAY 225

12 From attitudes to (in)action: the darker side of ‘we’
JOHN F. DOVIDIO, TAMAR SAGUY, SAMUEL L. GAERTNER AND ERIN L. THOMAS 248

13 Contact and social change in an ongoing asymmetrical conflict: four social-psychological models of reconciliation-aimed planned encounters between Israeli Jews and Palestinians
IFAT MAOZ 269

14 From prejudice to collective action
CLIFFORD STOTT, JOHN DRURY AND STEPHEN REICHER 286

Conclusions and future directions: the nature, significance and inherent limitations of the concept of prejudice in social psychology
JOHN DIXON AND MARK LEVINE 304

Index 332
Figures

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Figure</th>
<th>Description</th>
<th>Page</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>3.1</td>
<td>Factor structure of the ambivalent sexism inventory</td>
<td>75</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>3.2</td>
<td>Hostile sexism across countries</td>
<td>81</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>3.3</td>
<td>Benevolent sexism across countries</td>
<td>82</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>11.1</td>
<td>Two models of social change</td>
<td>229</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>12.1</td>
<td>Confederate social identity and support for race-targeted policies</td>
<td>260</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>12.2</td>
<td>Intergroup contact, perceptions of fairness and support for social change</td>
<td>262</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>C.1</td>
<td>Indirect effects of contact on perceptions of group discrimination</td>
<td>319</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
Tables

3.1 Correlations between ambivalent sexism inventory (ASI) averages and national indexes of gender equality  page 80
Contributors

GAMZE BARAY is an instructor in the Psychology Department at Bilkert University.

MICHAEL BILLIG is Professor of Social Sciences at Loughborough University.

SUSAN CONDOR is a professor of social psychology and Director of the Social Conflict and Solidarity Research Unit at Lancaster University.

JOHN DIXON is a professor of social psychology at the Open University.

JOHN F. DOVIDIO is a professor of psychology at Yale University.

JOHN DRURY is a senior lecturer in social psychology at the University of Sussex.

KEVIN DURRHEIM is a professor of psychology at the University of KwaZulu-Natal.

LIA FIGGOU is a lecturer in social psychology at the Aristotle University of Thessaloniki.

SUSAN T. FISKE is the Eugene Higgins Professor of Psychology at Princeton University.

SAMUEL L. GAERTNER is a professor of psychology and Director of the Social Psychology Graduate Program at the University of Delaware.

STANLEY O. GAINES, JR is a senior lecturer in psychology at Brunel University.

PETER GLICK is the Henry Merritt Wriston Professor in the social sciences and a professor of psychology at Lawrence University.

NICK HASLAM is a senior lecturer in the School of Psychology at the University of Melbourne.

S. ALEXANDER HASLAM is Professor of Social and Organizational Psychology at the University of Exeter.

COLIN WAYNE LEACH is a professor of psychology at the University of Connecticut.

MARK LEVINE is a senior lecturer in social psychology at Lancaster University.

STEPHEN LOUGHNAN is a research associate in the School of Psychology at the University of Kent.
List of contributors

IFAT MAOZ is a professor in the Department of Communication and the Swiss Center for Conflict Studies at the Hebrew University of Jerusalem.

SAMUEL PEHRSON is a lecturer in the School of Psychology at Queen’s University, Belfast.

STEPHEN REICHER is a professor of social psychology at the University of St Andrews.

KATHERINE J. REYNOLDS is a research fellow and an associate professor in the Department of Psychology at the Australian National University.

TAMAR SAGUY is an assistant professor of psychology at the Interdisciplinary Center (IDC), Herzliya.

CLIFFORD STOTT is a senior lecturer in the School of Psychology at the University of Liverpool.

ERIN L. THOMAS is a third-year graduate student in the Social Psychology Program at Yale University.

JOHN C. TURNER is a professor of psychology and Australian Professorial Fellow at the Australian National University.

MARGARET WETHERELL is a professor of social psychology at the Open University.

STEPHEN C. WRIGHT is a professor of psychology at Simon Fraser University and the Canada Research Chair in Social Psychology.
Acknowledgements

This book has had a long gestation, during which we have benefited from the support, commentary and criticism of numerous people. First and foremost, we would like to thank our contributors. They facilitated the project not only by writing a series of scholarly, thought-provoking chapters on the theme ‘beyond prejudice’, but also by producing the work that originally inspired us to create this edited book. Sadly, this chapter’s third author, John Turner, died on the 24th of July, 2011. The ideas presented here form part of John’s strategic reconceptualization of the whole field of prejudice in which all intergroup attitudes are considered to be a product of a complex interaction between people’s collective psychology as group members and the reality of intergroup relationships as historically and collectively defined. Without John’s passion and brilliance this chapter would have been far less interesting to read and far less interesting to write. He was a towering, peerless figure whose leadership, intellect and friendship are greatly missed. We would also like to thank Hetty Marx, Josephine Lane and the rest of the production team at Cambridge University Press, who worked hard behind the scenes to ensure that the book came to a successful fruition, despite the inevitable delays that accompany the process of academic writing. Finally, we are grateful to the Economic and Social Research Council (ESRC), whose financial backing both indirectly and directly enabled this joint venture.