Preface and acknowledgments	page ix
Introduction: The place of the Metaphysical Foundations in the critical system	1
Chapter One: Phoronomy	34
1 Matter as the movable in space	34
2 Motion (and rest) as an enduring state	46
3 Motion as a magnitude	52
4 The construction of motion as a magnitude	67
5 Kant's principle of the relativity of motion	76
6 Mathematical and empirical motion	83
7 Motion and the categories of quantity	90
Chapter Two: Dynamics	97
8 The place of the Dynamics within the Metaphysical Foundations	97
9 Matter as the movable in so far as it fills a space	104
10 Repulsive force	109
11 Kant, Lambert, and solidity	121
12 Matter as an originally fluid and elastic medium	130
13 Material substance as infinitely divisible	143
14 Matter, motion, and the mathematical antinomies	154
15 From repulsion to attraction	170
16 Quantity of matter and the two fundamental forces	180
17 True and apparent attraction: aether, light, and cosmos	194
18 Original attraction as immediate and universal	203
19 The dynamical theory of matter and mathematical construction	221
20 The dynamical theory of matter, the mechanical philosophy, and chemistry	234
21 The dynamical theory of matter and the categories of quality	258
Chapter Three: Mechanics	275
22 Moving force and the communication of motion	275
23 Quantity of matter and quantity of motion	282

Contents

24	Estimating quantity of matter	293
25	Material substance and the conservation of matter	311
26	Inertia	335
27	Action and reaction	347
28	Moving force, quantity of matter, and the laws of mechanics	369
29	Continuity, time determination, and the categories of relation	383
Chapter Four: Phenomenology		413
30	The movable as an object of experience	413
31	Kant, Lambert, and phenomenology	421
32	Reconsidering the relativity of motion	431
33	Determining true circular motion	460
34	Reducing all motion and rest to absolute space	474
	Technical note: inertial frames and Kantian absolute space	503
35	Phenomenology and the dynamical theory of matter	509
36	Reason, the empirical concept of matter, and the categories of modality	531
Conclusion: The complementary perspectives of the Metaphysical Foundations and the first Critique		563
Bibliography		609
Index		617
