

Contents

Preface	page vii
List of contributors	ix
1. Prospects and limits of the empirical study of expertise: an introduction K. Anders Ericsson and Jacqui Smith	1
2. Expertise in chess: the balance between knowledge and search Neil Charness	39
3. Learning and use of representations for physics expertise Yuichiro Anzai	64
4. The general and specific nature of medical expertise: a critical look Vimla L. Patel and Guy J. Groen	93
5. Motor-skill experts in sports, dance, and other domains Fran Allard and Janet L. Starkes	126
6. Musical expertise John Sloboda	153
7. Literate expertise Marlene Scardamalia and Carl Bereiter	172
8. The process–performance paradox in expert judgment: How can experts know so much and predict so badly? Colin F. Camerer and Eric J. Johnson	195
9. Controlling complex systems; or, Expertise as “grandmother’s know-how” Dietrich Dörner and Julia Schölkopf	218
10. Techniques for representing expert knowledge Judith Reitman Olson and Kevin J. Biolsi	240

Cambridge University Press

0521406129 - Toward a General Theory of Expertise: Prospects and Limits - Edited by K. Anders

Ericsson and Jacqui Smith

Table of Contents

More information

vi	Contents
11.	Expertise as the circumvention of human processing limitations Timothy A. Salthouse	286
12.	Symbolic connectionism: toward third-generation theories of expertise Keith J. Holyoak	301
	Index	337