Lyndon Johnson Confronts the World

This book is the most comprehensive, perceptive, and nuanced review to date of the foreign policy of the Lyndon Johnson era. It demonstrates not only U.S. concern with the Soviet Union, Europe, and nuclear weapons issues but also the overwhelming preoccupation with Vietnam that shaped policy throughout the world. During this period, Johnson also faced a series of emergencies ranging from turmoil in the Congo, to war in the Middle East, to a perceived communist challenge in the Caribbean, to a lingering hostage crisis in Asia. Using the most recently declassified documents, it explains in thoroughly readable prose the intricacies of the foreign policy dilemmas that forced Johnson's Great Society domestic agenda into retreat.

Acknowledgments

The man who made this all possible was David C. Humphrey, senior archivist of the LBJ Library, University of Texas, Austin. David and his staff went well beyond the call of duty to process documents with alacrity, call our attention to files of value, recommend restaurants, and facilitate our research generally. Most of us also received financial assistance from the Library in the form of Moody travel grants. The Johnson Library is everything a presidential library should be, everything LBJ would have insisted it be – and it was a pleasure to work there.

The editors are grateful to Georgetown and Michigan State universities for continual support of their research and writing. They are especially grateful to John Eadie, dean of the College of Arts and Letters, Michigan State University, for all he did to ameliorate the complications of their commute between Washington and East Lansing from 1988 to 1993. Eileen Scully of Georgetown University provided research assistance, limousine service, and the kind of bagels only the Irish could eat.

Sam Wells of the Wilson Center called our attention to an important document assessing the Soviet–American strategic relationship, and Bill Burr of the National Security Archives (an important national treasure) obtained a copy for us.

The editors are also grateful to the contributors, all of whom turned in their manuscripts within seven months of the deadline we established. LBJ would have snorted in contempt at our failure to strong-arm the tardiest. We shudder to think of what he might have said.
