CAMBRIDGE

Cambridge University Press
978-0-521-43833-9 - The Arab Predicament: Arab Political Thought and Practice Since 1967, Updated Edition
Fouad Ajami
Table of Contents
More information

Contents

Preface to the Canto edition page ix
Note to the nonspecialist reader xiii

Introduction 1

1 One's world as it really is 29
The radical sensibility 32
The Ba'th Party: a retrospect 48
The Islamic response: radical fundamentalism 60
Conservative fundamentalism 74

2 Egypt as state, as Arab mirror 89
The legacy reassessed 96
The Egyptian search 108
The ways of the pharaoh, the ways of others 115
The push of the desert, the pull of the Mediterranean 124
Egypt as mirror, as state 139
Beyond the pharaohs: the ''normal'' polity, the burdened land 155

3 Fractured tradition: the claims of authenticity, the realities of dependence 169
The ''revolution'' contained 174
The dominant order's brief triumph 182
The question of authenticity and collaboration 199
The rulers' Islam, Islam of the ruled 213
The ways of the ancestors, the ways of the world 233

Notes 253
Index 269

© Cambridge University Press www.cambridge.org