The current fascination with urban life has encouraged a growing interest in the Chicago School of sociology by students of sociological history. It is generally accepted that the field research practised by the Chicago sociologists during the 1920s – the ‘Golden Age of Chicago sociology’ – used methods borrowed from anthropology. However, Rolf Lindner also argues convincingly that the orientation of urban research advocated by Robert Park, the key figure in the Chicago School and himself a former reporter, is ultimately indebted to the tradition of urban reportage. The Reportage of Urban Culture goes beyond a thorough reconstruction of the relationship between journalism and sociology. It shows how the figure of the city reporter at the turn of the century represents a new way of looking at life, and reflects a transformation in American culture, from rejecting variety to embracing it.
IDEAS IN CONTEXT

THE REPORTAGE OF URBAN CULTURE
IDEAS IN CONTEXT

Edited by Quentin Skinner (General Editor)
Lorraine Daston, Wolf Lepenies and
J.B. Schneewind

The books in this series will discuss the emergence of intellectual traditions and of related new disciplines. The procedures, aims and vocabularies that were generated will be set in the context of the alternatives available within the contemporary frameworks of ideas and institutions. Through detailed studies of the evolution of such traditions, and their modification by different audiences, it is hoped that a new picture will form of the development of ideas in their concrete contexts. By this means, artificial distinctions between the history of philosophy, of the various sciences, of society and politics, and of literature may be seen to dissolve.

The series is published with the support of the Exxon Foundation.

A list of books in the series will be found at the end of the volume.
THE REPORTAGE OF URBAN CULTURE

Robert Park and the Chicago School

ROLF LINDNER
Professor of European Ethnology, Humboldt-Universität zu Berlin

translated by
ADRIAN MORRIS
Fellow of the Institute of Linguists with Jeremy Gaines and
Martin Chalmers
To Gudrun and Sarah
His favorite professor at the University of Chicago, Robert Park, had told Allan that he was an intelligent young man with closed eyes. Allan was working at getting them open, but it was hard to satisfy Mr. Park. Around the seminar table, whenever Allan or some of the other graduate students ventured an opinion, they risked having Mr. Park look at them owl-eyed and inquire, ‘Vas you dere, Cholly?’

Nicholas von Hoffman, Organized Crimes
Contents

List of illustrations  page xi
Acknowledgements  xii
List of abbreviations  xiii

Introduction  1

PART I
1 ‘News’: the reporter and the new  7
   News: the symbiosis of big city and press  7
   Types of reporters and styles of reporting  11
   The reporter as urban explorer  27
2 The sociologist as city editor: Robert Ezra Park  31
   Daily news and Thought News  31
   ‘. . . a good work as lieutenant’: Park in Tuskegee  44
   The big city as pars pro toto for society  48
   A massive research programme: The City  67
   The sociologist as city editor  80
   Adoption or stimulus? A summary  98
   Communication and society: Park’s theoretical concept  106
3 Reporters in depth: a comparison of journalistic and sociological studies  115
   Wanderlust and journeywork: on the ethnographical method  115
   Decline and career: on the biographical method  134

PART II
4 Marginality and experience  154
   Marginal man  154
   The wish for experience  164
Contents

5 ‘To see life’: the cultural undercurrent 175
   ‘To see life’ 175
   Shift in perspective 190

6 Uncle Sam and Young Sammy: sociology between reform and report 197

Bibliography 205
Index of names 228
Index of subjects 231
Illustrations

1. The drawings from Puck (March 1877) caricature the new ‘art’ of the interview page 12
2. Robert E. Park, Berlin, 1900; drawing by Clara Cahill Park
   33
3. Park’s entry for the National Cyclopedia of American Biography, with his own handwritten corrections
   42
4. Park’s original manuscript jottings for The Marginal Man: a study of the Mulatto Mind
   49
5. Ernest W. Burgess’ diagrammatic representation of the paradigmatic city
   73
   91
Acknowledgements

This book would not have been written without the continued encouragement and support of Wolf Lepenies.

My thanks go to him. My thanks also to Hermann Bausinger, Hans Peter Dreitzel, Hans Joas and Joachim Moebus for their help and advice. Martin Bulmer, Paul M. Hirsch, Edward Shils and above all Donald N. Levine gave up their time to talk with me; I hope they don’t regret it. Elizabeth Clemens, Wendy Espeland and Bruce Carruthers made sure that I was able to feel myself among friends during my time in Chicago. The Special Collections Department in the Joseph Regenstein Library, University of Chicago was an inexhaustible source; the library of the John F. Kennedy Institute for North American Studies in the Free University of Berlin made my work much easier. The generous and non-bureaucratic assistance given by the Fritz Thyssen Foundation in Cologne enabled the book to be completed successfully. Last but not least, I am grateful to Gudrun, who read through the manuscript with a critical eye, and to Sarah, who treated it kindly.
Abbreviations

EWB  Ernest W. Burgess Papers
JTC  James T. Carey Interviews
REP  Robert E. Park Papers
REPA Robert E. Park Addenda
SNF  Samuel N. Fuller Papers
SNH  Samuel N. Harper Papers
UCP  University of Chicago Press Collections

All are in the Joseph Regenstein Library, Special Collections Department, University of Chicago; the first number after the abbreviation refers to the box, the second to the folder.