These two ambitious volumes from one of the world’s most celebrated political philosophers present a new kind of political and legal theory that James Tully calls a public philosophy, and a complementary new way of thinking about active citizenship, called civic freedom. Professor Tully takes the reader step by step through the principal debates in political theory and the major types of political struggle today. These volumes represent a genuine landmark in political theory from the author of Strange Multiplicity, one of the most influential and distinctive commentaries on politics and the contemporary world published in recent years. The first volume of Public Philosophy in a New Key consists of a presentation and defence of a contextual approach to public philosophy and civic freedom, and then goes on to study specific struggles over recognition and distribution within states.

James Tully is Distinguished Professor of Political Science at the University of Victoria, Canada. He is one of the most influential and distinctive political philosophers writing today.
IDEAS IN CONTEXT 93

Public Philosophy in a New Key
Volume I: Democracy and Civic Freedom
The books in this series will discuss the emergence of intellectual traditions and of related new disciplines. The procedures, aims and vocabularies that were generated will be set in the context of the alternatives available within the contemporary frameworks of ideas and institutions. Through detailed studies of the evolution of such traditions, and their modification by different audiences, it is hoped that a new picture will form of the development of ideas in their concrete contexts. By this means, artificial distinctions between the history of philosophy, of the various sciences, of society and politics, and of literature may be seen to dissolve.

The series is published with the support of the Exxon Foundation.

A list of books in the series will be found at the end of the volume.

Acknowledgments

There are far too many people who have helped with these two volumes to mention them individually. Firstly, I would like to thank all the students who have kept me paddling hard to keep up with their questions and stimulating research. At the University of Victoria I would like to thank my colleagues, including staff members, and President David Turpin for making this university among the best in the world for interdisciplinary research, teaching and community outreach. I am also pleased to thank the Pierre Elliott Trudeau Foundation and its former director, Stephen Toope, for providing a community of engaged fellows and scholars in which many of my ideas were formulated. I would not have been able to benefit from a large range of debates without the discussions I have had with scholars and activists from around the world. I have tried to thank each one of you in the appropriate chapters. However, I must mention a few to whom I am exceptionally indebted: Annabel Brett, David Owen, Boaventura de Sousa Santos, Neil Walker and Antje Wiener.

There is one person without whom this project would have been impossible and to whom I owe my greatest debt. These studies have been written in continuous conversation with Quentin Skinner. His great insight that political philosophers are political actors engaged in the problems and conventions of their age is the starting point of my particular account of public philosophy. Moreover, his exemplary writing and teaching and his monumental contribution to European intellectual life have inspired this whole project.

I am most grateful to Richard Fisher at Cambridge University Press for his indispensable help, support, encouragement and advice over now many years of work and friendship. Many thanks go to Mike Simpson for his careful work on editing and improving the typescript and for helpful conversations. I also wish to express my gratitude to Jacqueline French for her exceptional care and proficiency in copy-editing and improving the final typescript, and Rosanna Christian and Jodie Barnes of Cambridge University Press for guiding it through the publication process. Finally, I am pleased to acknowledge the support of the Social Sciences and Humanities Research Council of Canada.

I owe a special kind of debt to the old growth forests of the Pacific Northwest. As the imperial alliance I write against in Volume II invaded and occupied Iraq and Afghanistan, these awe-inspiring ecosystems in their magnificent unity in diversity taught me another, pacific way of being in the world that could still be ours one day.
