

Cambridge University Press

978-0-521-51322-7 - Mass Migration Under Sail: European Immigration to the Antebellum United States

Raymond L. Cohn

Frontmatter

More information

Mass Migration Under Sail

European Immigration to the Antebellum United States

Dr. Cohn provides an in-depth and comprehensive analysis of the economic history of European immigration to the antebellum United States, using and evaluating the available data as well as presenting new data. This analysis centers on immigration from the three most important source countries – Ireland, Germany, and Great Britain – and examines the volume of immigration, how many individuals came from each country during the antebellum period, and why those numbers increased. The book also analyzes where they came from within each country; who chose to immigrate; the immigrants' trip to the United States, including estimates of mortality on the Atlantic crossing; the jobs obtained in the United States by the immigrants, along with their geographic location; and the economic effects of immigration on both the immigrants and the antebellum United States. No other book examines so many different economic aspects of antebellum immigration.

Raymond L. Cohn is Professor of Economics at Illinois State University. Over the last twenty years, he has written for the following journals: Explorations in Economic History, the Journal of Economic History, Social Science History, and the International Journal of Maritime History. Dr. Cohn is also a member of the following associations, among others: the American Economic Association, the Economic History Association, and the International Maritime Economic History Association.

Cambridge University Press

978-0-521-51322-7 - Mass Migration Under Sail: European Immigration to the Antebellum
United States

Raymond L. Cohn

Frontmatter

More information

Mass Migration Under Sail

*European Immigration to the Antebellum
United States*

RAYMOND L. COHN

Illinois State University

CAMBRIDGE
UNIVERSITY PRESS

Cambridge University Press

978-0-521-51322-7 - Mass Migration Under Sail: European Immigration to the Antebellum United States

Raymond L. Cohn

Frontmatter

More information

CAMBRIDGE UNIVERSITY PRESS

Cambridge, New York, Melbourne, Madrid, Cape Town, Singapore, São Paulo, Delhi

Cambridge University Press

32 Avenue of the Americas, New York, NY 10013-2473, USA

www.cambridge.org

Information on this title: www.cambridge.org/9780521513227

© Raymond L. Cohn 2009

This publication is in copyright. Subject to statutory exception and to the provisions of relevant collective licensing agreements, no reproduction of any part may take place without the written permission of Cambridge University Press.

First published 2009

Printed in the United States of America

A catalog record for this publication is available from the British Library.

Library of Congress Cataloging in Publication data

Cohn, Raymond L., 1950–

Mass migration under sail : European immigration to the antebellum United States / Raymond L. Cohn.

p. cm.

Includes bibliographical references and index.

ISBN 978-0-521-51322-7 (hbk.)

1. European Americans – History – 19th century. 2. Immigrants – United States – History – 19th century. 3. United States – Emigration and immigration – History – 19th century. 4. Europe – Emigration and immigration – History – 19th century. 5. European Americans – Economic conditions – 19th century. 6. Immigrants – United States – Economic conditions – 19th century. 7. United States – Emigration and immigration – Economic aspects – History – 19th century. 8. Europe – Emigration and immigration – Economic aspects – History – 19th century. 9. Europe – Economic conditions – 19th century. 10. United States – Economic conditions – 19th century. I. Title.

E184.E95C64 2009

304.873094–dc22 2008023219

ISBN 978-0-521-51322-7 hardback

Cambridge University Press has no responsibility for the persistence or accuracy of URLs for external or third-party Internet Web sites referred to in this publication and does not guarantee that any content on such Web sites is, or will remain, accurate or appropriate. Information regarding prices, travel timetables, and other factual information given in this work are correct at the time of first printing, but Cambridge University Press does not guarantee the accuracy of such information thereafter.

Cambridge University Press

978-0-521-51322-7 - Mass Migration Under Sail: European Immigration to the Antebellum
United States

Raymond L. Cohn

Frontmatter

More information

To Scotti, who has always been with me

Cambridge University Press

978-0-521-51322-7 - Mass Migration Under Sail: European Immigration to the Antebellum United States

Raymond L. Cohn

Frontmatter

More information

Contents

List of Tables and Figures	page xi
Preface	xiii
1 A Unique Period for Immigration	1
Structure of the Book	3
Argument of the Book	5
The Current Migration Paradigm	8
2 The Onset and European Origins of Mass Immigration	14
Determining the Beginning of Mass Migration	15
The European Countries of Origin	23
Immigration from Germany	32
Immigration from France (and Switzerland)	34
Immigration from Ireland	35
Immigration from Great Britain	40
Summary	43
Appendix 2.1 Estimating the Origins of the German Immigrants	43
3 The Jump in Immigrant Volume Around 1830	47
The Theory of Immigration and the Rise in Volume	47
Conditions in Europe Before the Potato Famine	49
Developments in Shipping	60
Declines in the Cost of Immigration	64
Summary	68
4 Push, Pull, and Other Factors in Antebellum Immigration	70
Push and Pull Factors: A Definition and Previous Work	70
The Importance of Push, Pull, and Other Factors: 1832–1860	74

Cambridge University Press

978-0-521-51322-7 - Mass Migration Under Sail: European Immigration to the Antebellum United States

Raymond L. Cohn

Frontmatter

More information

viii

Contents

	The Immigration–Economic Downturn Connection	76
	The Immigration–Economic Expansion Connection	88
	Summary	91
	Appendix 4.1 Theoretical and Data Issues in Relating Immigration to Unemployment	92
5	Who Were the Immigrants?	98
	Information on Age and Gender	99
	Data on Occupations and Their Use	100
	The Occupations of Pre-1820 Immigrants	103
	The Occupations of Immigrants to 1860	106
	Comparisons to European Labor Forces	113
	Comparison Among Countries of Origin	119
	Summary	120
	Appendix 5.1 The Believability of the Occupational Information on the Passenger Lists	121
	Appendix 5.2 Classification of Occupations	123
6	The Trip from Europe to the United States	125
	The Ports of Embarkation	126
	Traveling to the Port of Embarkation	130
	Estimates of Mortality on the Ships and After Arrival	137
	Reasons for the Higher Mortality	150
	Other Aspects of the Immigrants' Trip	152
	Summary	154
7	The Immigrants in the United States	155
	The Ports of Arrival in the United States	155
	Assistance on Arrival (Mainly in New York)	159
	The Geographic Location of the Immigrants	167
	The U.S. Occupations of the Immigrants	173
	Occupations and Geographic Location	180
	Summary	185
	Appendix 7.1 Occupational Data in the 1870 Census	186
8	The Effects of Immigration on the United States	190
	The Skill Level and Rate of Immigration	190
	The Theoretical Effects of Immigration on the Antebellum United States	197
	Developments in Manufacturing	202
	Developments in Transportation	208
	Antebellum Real Wages	211
	Immigration and Nativism	214
	Immigrants, the Capital Stock, and Economic Growth	218
	Summary	221

Cambridge University Press

978-0-521-51322-7 - Mass Migration Under Sail: European Immigration to the Antebellum
United States

Raymond L. Cohn

Frontmatter

More information

Contents		ix
9	The End of Mass Migration Under Sail	223
	The Steamship and Its Effects	223
	What We Know and Could Still Learn	226
	References	233
	Index	251

Cambridge University Press

978-0-521-51322-7 - Mass Migration Under Sail: European Immigration to the Antebellum United States

Raymond L. Cohn

Frontmatter

More information

List of Tables and Figures

Tables

2.1	Average Yearly Immigration to the United States, 1700–1860	page 15
2.2	U.S. Immigration, by Country and Time Period	24
2.3	Immigration from the United Kingdom, 1825–1846	26
2.4	U.S. Immigration and the Foreign-Born 1860 Population	29
2.5	Antebellum Immigration from the German Regions	33
2.6	Antebellum Emigration and Immigration of the Irish	37
A2.1	Estimates of Immigration from the German States	44
3.1	Population of Europe, by Country, 1750–1850	50
4.1	U.S. Industrial Production and Immigration from the United Kingdom and Germany, Selected Years	80
A4.1	Immigration from Europe, Calendar Year Estimates, 1819–1860	96
5.1	Age and Gender of the Immigrants, 1820–1860	99
5.2	Male Immigrant Occupations, by Country of Origin, 1709–1820	104
5.3	Immigrant Occupations, 1820–1860	107
5.4	Male Immigrant Occupations, by Country of Origin, 1815–1860	109
5.5	Male Labor Force Distributions, by Country and Occupation	113
A5.1	Occupational Distribution of Male German Immigrants, by Port, 1836–1853	123
6.1	Number of Ships, by Ports of Embarkation and Arrival, 1820–1860	127
6.2	Number of Passengers, by Ports of Embarkation and Arrival, 1820–1860	128

Cambridge University Press

978-0-521-51322-7 - Mass Migration Under Sail: European Immigration to the Antebellum United States

Raymond L. Cohn

Frontmatter

More information

xii

List of Tables and Figures

6.3	Distribution of Deaths by Voyage, 1820–1860	146
7.1	Immigrant Volume by Port of Arrival, 1823–1860	156
7.2	Data on Immigrant Assistance at Marine Hospital and Ward’s Island, 1847–1860	162
7.3	Data on Non-Medical Forms of Assistance by the Commissioners of Emigration, 1847–1860	163
7.4	Distribution of the Foreign Born and Manufacturing in 1850, by State	168
7.5	Foreign Born in the United States in 1850, by Country of Origin and State of Location	170
7.6	Foreign-Born Population of Largest Cities in 1850	172
7.7	White Male Occupational Distributions, 1850–1870, by Country of Birth	175
A7.1	Occupational Distribution in 1870, by Country of Birth	187

Figures

2.1	Immigration to the United States, 1815–1860	16
3.1	Seasonal Migration Areas in Europe Around 1800	56
4.1	Fluctuations in Immigration and Industrial Production	78
5.1	U.S. Immigrant Occupations, 1820–1860	107
6.1	Percentage Loss Rates on Ships Arriving in New York, 1820–1860	143
7.1	Passenger Arrivals by Port, 1820–1860	157
8.1	Immigrant Occupations Relative to Native-Born Adult White Males, 1836–1860	191
8.2	Immigration Relative to White Population and Labor Force, 1820–1860	195
8.3	Theoretical Effects of Antebellum Immigration on Returns to Resources	199
8.4	Developments in Antebellum Manufacturing	203
8.5	Ratio of Artisan Wages to Common Laborer Wages, 1820–1860	207

Cambridge University Press

978-0-521-51322-7 - Mass Migration Under Sail: European Immigration to the Antebellum United States

Raymond L. Cohn

Frontmatter

More information

Preface

The genesis for this book came from the many years I have spent investigating economic aspects of European immigration to the United States during the antebellum period. Although my initial interest concerned the mortality experienced by the immigrants on the voyage, soon I began working on broader topics. However, writing this book quickly convinced me how little I really knew about many aspects of antebellum immigration. I have increased my knowledge of the economics of antebellum immigration many times over because I have been required to address topics I had not previously considered. The result is a comprehensive economic analysis of European immigration to the antebellum United States. I consider the immigrants in the various European countries, on the voyage, and in the United States, as well as analyze the reasons that immigration occurred and its effects on the United States. Thus, although parts of this book repeat the findings in some of my earlier work, much of the material and explanations are new.

Although my ancestors arrived in the United States well after the antebellum period, the years before the Civil War have always fascinated me. Fundamental changes occurred in the economy, as Jefferson's dream of a country of gentlemen farmers was overtaken by the reality of the growth of manufacturing and large cities. Immigration certainly played a part in these changes, a part I believe has never been fully appreciated. The effects of immigration during the antebellum years were considerable because it was the first time the volume of immigration became large, a development explored in this book. During these years, people also came to live permanently in a new place. The thought of going back to Europe, although certainly possible, was not very practical given the many days

Cambridge University Press

978-0-521-51322-7 - Mass Migration Under Sail: European Immigration to the Antebellum United States

Raymond L. Cohn

Frontmatter

More information

required to travel between the United States and Europe on a sailing ship. The permanence of the move to the United States during the antebellum years made immigration quite different from that at later times – or during the present day – when many people came to work and planned on (or at least strongly considered) going back to their homes at some future date. It is the large volume of permanent immigrants arriving during the antebellum years that caused immigration to have widespread effects on the United States for the first time.

Two important features of this book deserve mention. The first is the emphasis on presenting and discussing the available data on antebellum immigration. Although some of the data presented are new, most are available in various government publications. However, I have attempted to present as much data as possible in a logical manner in an effort to provide a reference for anyone searching for numerical information on European immigration to the antebellum United States. Of equal importance, the book also provides an analysis of the data, both as to its quality and its accuracy, so that the reader can appreciate its shortcomings. The second feature of the book is that I have written it in a manner that is as non-mathematical and non-econometric as possible. Although economic models and reasoning lie behind the analysis in the book, no formal models are presented or tested. My reasons are twofold. First, I want the book to appeal not only to my fellow economic historians but also to as many researchers as possible in other fields. Second, much of the discussion of the data emphasizes the uncertainty and imprecision in many of the numbers that exist. Empirical tests of economic models are only as good as the available data, and a number of problems exist with those for the antebellum period. In writing the book in the manner I have, I hope to interest more researchers who work in economic history and other fields in the subject of historical immigration, with the hope that they will improve or expand upon the arguments presented here.

In writing a book, the author always incurs a debt to a number of individuals who provide assistance along the way. In my case, three economic historians read each chapter as it was written and provided me with invaluable feedback. I want to especially thank these individuals: Drew Keeling, Cormac Ó Gráda, and Simone Wegge. Their comments vastly improved this book and kept me from making a number of errors. I also wish to thank two individuals who read the entire manuscript for Cambridge University Press and provided me with numerous helpful comments. I would be remiss if I did not also thank Marianne Hinds Wanamaker and Joel Mokyr, both of whom read an earlier draft of this

Cambridge University Press

978-0-521-51322-7 - Mass Migration Under Sail: European Immigration to the Antebellum United States

Raymond L. Cohn

Frontmatter

More information

Preface

xv

manuscript and provided me with helpful comments. I did not incorporate every comment provided by the readers, so none of the previously mentioned individuals should be held responsible for anything said in this book or for any remaining errors. However, I always appreciated each person's willingness to help as well as his or her time and effort. I also thank the interlibrary loan staff at Milner Library for procuring copies of numerous books that are cited in the manuscript and Illinois State University for granting me the sabbatical that allowed me to begin writing the book. Finally, thanks go to my wife, Scotti, whose love, encouragement, patience, and willingness to listen have always been highly appreciated.