

Cambridge University Press

978-0-521-51376-0 - The Mind of the Criminal: The Role of Developmental Social Cognition in Criminal Defense Law

Reid Griffith Fontaine

Index

More information

Index

- abnormal development, moral cognition and, 129–32
- abuse/trauma person defense, proposal for, 233–37
- acts vs. actors
 - antisocial behavior and, 248
 - instrumental/reactive violence distinction and, 166
- actus reus*
 - in criminal law, 12–13
 - motive in homicide law and, 163–66
- adequate provocation criterion, 154–56, 202–203
- adult human behavior, legal model for
 - duress defense and, 203–04
 - rational decision making and, 81
- adult offenders, moral cognition and
 - abnormal development and, 131
- affect attributions, social cognitive perspective on culpability and, 113–16
- affirmative criminal defense, 19–21.
 - See also* duress; mistaken self-defense
 - battered woman defense as, 213–17
 - diminished capacity and, 72–78
 - duress defense as, 62, 62n.129, 195–209, 198n.49
 - excuse defense and diminished capacity, 69–72
 - fear as component of, in duress crimes, 62, 62n.129
 - heat of passion/provocation as, 149–77
 - justification/excuse distinction, xii
 - mistaken self-defense as, 178–95
 - vulnerability to coercion and, 103–05
- aggression-as-instinct theory, 33n.14–34, 34, 181
- aggressive behavior
 - Bandura's social learning theory and, 36–39
 - Berkowitz's frustration-aggression hypothesis, 34–36
 - in chronic abuse and trauma victims, 228–29
- early social-cognitive models of, 34–39
- encoding-of-cues processes, social-information processing model, 41–44
- hostility and, 191–94
- interpretation-of-cues processes, social-information processing model, 44–46
- provocation interpretational bias and, 169–71
- response access or construction, social-information processing model, 49–50
- response evaluation and decision (RED) model, 50–53
- response to threats vs. provocation and, 180
- social cognitive perspective on culpability and, 115–16
- social-information processing model, 39–58
- subrationality and, 171–72
- threat interpretational bias and, 191–94
- alcohol/substance abuse, failure of
 - noncognitive culpable cognitive dysfunction requirement and, 86
- ambiguous provocateurs, provocation interpretational defense and, 160, 160n.34
- American criminal law, jurisprudence in, xii
- anger, provocation interpretational bias and, 169–71
- animal studies, instrumental vs. reactive violence and, 157–59
- antisocial behavior
 - Bandura's social learning theory and, 36–39
 - chronic abuse and trauma and, 228–29
 - criminal law and, 140–48
 - developmental social cognition and, 31–66
 - duress defense and, 204–07
 - goal clarification in social-information processing model and, 47–49
 - insanity doctrine and, 124–25
 - juvenile justice research and, 119–20

Cambridge University Press

978-0-521-51376-0 - The Mind of the Criminal: The Role of Developmental Social Cognition in Criminal Defense Law

Reid Griffith Fontaine

Index

More information

252

Index

- antisocial behavior (cont.)
 - moral cognitive development and, 128
 - moral disengagement and, 58–61, 132–33
 - moral vs. legal insanity and, 143–44
 - social-information processing and subtypes of, 52–53, 109–20
 - subrational framework for, 90–91
 - threat interpretational bias and, 194–95
 - unformed character/identity and, 107
 - violent crime and subtypes of, 241–49
- antisocial personality disorder (APD)
 - moral cognitive deficits and, 134–40
 - “morally uncomprehending criminal” and, 145–46
- anxiety, threat interpretational bias research and role of, 190–95
- appraisal theory
 - basic principles, 61–63
 - cognitive patterns and, 171
 - criminal behavior research and, 32–33
 - duress defense and, 207–08
 - interpretation-of-cues processes, 65–66
 - provocation interpretational bias and, 170–71
- attributional theory
 - social cognitive perspective on culpability and, 113–16
 - threat interpretational bias research and, 189–95
- automaticity, implicit social cognition and, 63n.133, 63–64
- Bandura, Al, 34, 36–39, 58–61, 147–48
 - social-information processing model and, 54
 - social learning theory and moral disengagement, 36–39, 132–33
- Bargh, John, 63–64
- Barnett, Ola, 220–21, 221n.34
- battered child syndrome, 216–17
 - parricide and, 233–34
- battered person/battered woman defense
 - abuse/trauma person defense proposal and, 233–37
 - antisocial behavioral subtypes and, 241–49
 - battered woman syndrome and, 213–17
 - developmental social cognition and nonconfrontational killings, 223–33
 - feminist perspective on, 83n.44
 - increased support for, 234–35
 - justifiable homicide and, 210n.1, 217–23
 - recurrent victimization and, 178n.1
 - research on, xiv
- battered woman syndrome, 213–17
 - developmental social cognition and, 223–33
 - internalization and, 229–30
 - learned helplessness and, 231–33
 - nonconfrontational killings and, 223–33
- behavioral science
 - chronic trauma and abuse and, 223–33
 - criminal behavior research in, 31–33
 - criminal law and, 24, 30
 - instrumental vs. reactive aggression and violence and, 156
 - limitations of, 28–30
 - moral disengagement model and, 58–61
 - reactive aggression and, 167
 - social science and, 23–24
 - threat interpretational bias research and, 189–95
 - youth delinquent behavior and, 92–95
- behavioral scripts
 - Huesmann’s social-information processing model and, 53–55
 - social-information processing model, response access or construction in, 49–50
- Bergelson, Vera, 78
- Berkowitz, Len, 34–36
- Berkowitz’s frustration-aggression hypothesis, 34–36
 - social-information processing model and, 54
- Blair, James, 135–36, 137–38, 139
- blame assignment, provocation
 - interpretational bias and, 170–71
- Blasi, Augusto, 127
- brain imaging studies, criminal behavior research and, 31–33
- Browne, Angela, 235n.79
- burglary, criminal liability and, 162–63
- Capara, Gian Vittorio, 38–39
- Cauffman, Elizabeth, 95n.9, 95–97
- causality
 - correlation and, 28–29
 - experiments involving, 29
 - failure of noncognitive culpable cognitive dysfunction requirement and, 86
 - heat of passion homicide defense and, 167–71
 - interpretation-of-cues processes, social-information processing model, 44–46
 - social cognitive perspective on culpability and, 113–16
- challenge situations, rational decision making in face of, 80
- character and identity development
 - developmental immaturity and, 96–97, 105–09
 - progressive construction of juvenile justice and, 116–17
- Child Development Project, 228–29

Cambridge University Press

978-0-521-51376-0 - The Mind of the Criminal: The Role of Developmental Social Cognition in Criminal Defense Law

Reid Griffith Fontaine

Index

More information

- chronic abuse and trauma
 - aggressive behavior by victims of, 228–29
 - battered woman syndrome and, 213–17
 - developmental social cognition and, 234n.73, 224–33
 - hybrid instrumental/reactive violence and
 - reactive homicides by, 211–13
 - justifiable homicide and, 217–23
 - learned helplessness and, 231–33
 - parricide and, 233–34
 - as post-traumatic stress disorder and, 225–26
 - reactive homicide and, 210–37
 - social-information processing model and, 226–28
- coercion. See also duress, defense of
 - developmental immaturity and, 96–97, 99n.21, 103–05
 - diminished rationality and, 200–01
 - social-information processing model and, 109–12
 - vulnerability to, 201–09
- cognitive behavioral therapies
 - instrumental aggression and violence and, 118–19
 - threat interpretational bias research and, 190
- cognitive dissonance
 - adolescent delinquency and, 100–01, 101n.29
 - moral disengagement and, 132–33
- cognitive dysfunction
 - duress defense and, 207–08
 - heat of passion doctrine and, 167–71
- cognitive jurisprudence, social rationality
 - concerning excuse-based defenses in, 238–50
- cognitive mediation
 - chronic abuse and trauma and, 228–29
 - in social-cognitive models, 65–66
- complete defense, 20–21
- consequences
 - comprehension of, capacity for, 78–83
 - disregard or distortion of, moral disengagement, 60
- consequential retributivism, 12n.26
- controllability attribution, social cognitive
 - perspective on culpability and, 113–16
- “cooling off” period, heat of passion doctrine and, 157, 167–71
- Crick, Nicki, 40, 50–53, 65–66
- crime, basic elements of, 12–13
- crime opportunity paradigm, precriminal context and, 247–49
- criminal justice theories, justifications of punishment in, 8
- criminal law
 - absence of utilitarianism in, 11–12
 - Anglo-American vs. United States comparisons, 27
 - behavioral science and, 24
 - developmental social cognition and, 1–30
 - duress defense under, 196–97
 - free will concept in, 15–18
 - goal clarification in social-information processing model and, 48–49
 - instrumental and reactive violence in, 212–13
 - “morally uncomprehending criminal” and, 145–48
 - moral subrationality and, 140–48
 - moral vs. legal insanity in, 142–45
 - negative vs. affirmative defenses in, 19–21
 - psychiatry and, 25–27
 - response evaluation and decision model and, 161–66
 - social cognitive jurisprudence and, 6–8
 - social rationality concerning excuse-based defenses in, 238–50
- Criminal Law and Responsibility* (Garvey and Bergelson), 78
- criminal negligence, “reasonable person” standard and, 13
- criminal rationality, moral cognitive development and, 126–33
- criminal responsibility
 - diminished rationality and, 76–77
 - excuse and justification defenses and, 69–72
 - retributive theory of punishment and, 14–15
 - substandard rational capacity, 67–91
- criminal trespass, duress defense and, 197
- cross-cultural relativity, criminal behavior and, 31–33
- cue interpretation, provocation
 - interpretational bias and, 170–71
- culpability
 - developmental immaturity and, 95–109
 - diminished capacity and, 76–77
 - “moral uncomprehending criminal” and, 147–48
 - social harm doctrine and, 165
 - unformed character/identity argument and, 105–09
 - youth delinquent behavior and, 117–18
- cultural context, criminal behavior, 31–33
- deadly force, self-defense and use of, 184, 222n.38

Cambridge University Press

978-0-521-51376-0 - The Mind of the Criminal: The Role of Developmental Social Cognition in Criminal Defense Law

Reid Griffith Fontaine

Index

More information

254

Index

- decision making capacity
 - anger and impairment of, 169–71
 - developmental immaturity and, 97–103, 99n.23, 100n.26
 - duress defense and, 201–09
 - fear and impairment of, 180
 - future orientation and, 100
 - impulsivity and, 101–03
 - moral cognition and abnormal development and, 129–32
 - peer influence susceptibility and, 99
 - progressive construction of juvenile justice and, 116–17
 - risk assessment skills and, 100–01
 - self control and, 101
 - social cognitive perspective on culpability and, 112–16
 - unformed character/identity and, 107–09
 - vulnerability to coercion and, 103–05
- defendant's actions, self-defense and perception of, 184
- defensive-reactive violence
 - categorization of, 179–80
 - chronic abuse and trauma and, 211–13
 - mistaken self-defense and, 182–83
 - prevention of wrongful harm and, 180
 - threat interpretational bias research and, 189–90
- dehumanization of victim, moral disengagement model and, 60, 132
- denunciation, as justification for punishment, 9
- determinism, 16n.39
 - criminal law theory and, 17–18
 - social rationality and psychological jurisprudence and, 238–40
- deterrence, justification of, 8
- developmental immaturity argument
 - coercive influence and, 99n.21, 103–05
 - decision making capacity and, 97–103
 - duress defense and, 203–04
 - review of, xii–xiii
 - social-information processing model and, 109–12
 - underdeveloped rationality and, 95–109
 - unformed character/identity and, 96–97, 105–09
- developmental moral cognition, xiii
- developmental psychopathology
 - antisocial personality disorder and, 138
 - chronic abuse and trauma and, 224–33
 - criminal behavior research and, 31–33
 - criminal law and, 26–27
 - decision making capacity and, 98–101
- developmental social cognition
 - abuse/trauma person defense proposal and, 235–37
 - Anglo-American law and influence of, x–xi
 - antisocial behavior and, 31–66
 - chronic abuse and trauma and, 234n.73, 210–37
 - criminal jurisprudence and law and, 1–30
 - duress defense and, 201–09
 - emotion dysregulation and, 149–50
 - excuse defense and diminished capacity, 69–72
 - future research issues, 249–50
 - heat of passion/provocation, 149–77
 - insanity defense and, 124–25
 - instrumental vs. reactive violence and, 157–59
 - mental capacity and, xi
 - mistaken self-defense and, 188–95
 - “morally uncomprehending criminal” and, 145–48
 - moral subrationality and propensity for wrongdoing and, 123–48
 - nonconfrontational killings by abused persons, 223–33
 - post-traumatic stress disorder and, 225–26
 - provocation/heat of passion doctrine and, 149–51
 - research review of, xii
 - self-defense and defense of duress and, xiv
 - social cognitive jurisprudence and, 240–45
- Diagnostic and Statistical Manual of Mental Disorders* (DSM), 25
 - antisocial personality disorder in, 137
 - pervasive developmental disorder diagnosis in, 138n.47
 - post-traumatic stress disorder diagnosis, 225–26
- diminished actuality, 77
- diminished capacity
 - battered woman defense and, 213–17
 - criminal responsibility and, 67–91
 - developmental immaturity and, 95–109
 - diminished actuality and, 77
 - duress defense and, 197, 201
 - excuse-based defense and, 69–72, 82–83
 - individual criminal culpability and, 78–83
 - legal controversy over doctrine of, 123–24, 72–78
 - mens rea* variant, 74–77
 - nonculpable cognitive dysfunction and, 18n.49–19
 - partial responsibility variant, 74–77
 - provocative interpretational bias and, 173–75
 - rationality and, 18–19, 68, 78–83
 - wayward desire or weak will and, 78, 78n.28
- diminished rationality
 - battered women defense and, 223–33, 234–35
 - chronic abuse and trauma and, 230–31

Cambridge University Press

978-0-521-51376-0 - The Mind of the Criminal: The Role of Developmental Social Cognition in Criminal Defense Law

Reid Griffith Fontaine

Index

More information

Index

255

- duress defense and, 200–01
- mens rea* negation and, 19n.52
- nonculpable cognitive dysfunction and, 84–89
- partial responsibility variant of diminished capacity and, 76–77
- provocative interpretational bias and, 173–75
- displacement of responsibility
 - moral disengagement and, 132
 - moral disengagement model and, 59
- Dodge, Kenneth, 32–33
- moral cognitive development and, 128
- social-information processing (SIP) model, 40, 65–66, 110
- threat interpretational bias research and, 189, 190
- Dollard, John, 34–36
- Dressler, Joshua, 20–21, 70, 153–54, 168n.60, 200–01, 222n.38, 234–35
- Dubber, Markus, 144–45, 154–56
- duress, defense of
 - battered woman defense and, 213–17, 234–35
 - characteristics of, 195–209
 - criminal law interpretations of, 181
 - debate and framing of, 181
 - developmental social cognition and, 181, 201–09
 - justification vs. excuse defense, debate concerning, 197–201
 - necessity requirement, 196n.41
 - vulnerability to coercion and, 103–05, 104n.42
- duress per minas, 62n.129
- economics, criminal behavior and, 31–33
- education, as justification for punishment, 9
- emotion dysregulation
 - appraisal theory and, 61–63, 207–08
 - Berkowitz's frustration-aggression hypothesis and, 34–36
 - duress defense and, 205–07
 - heat of passion doctrine and, 157, 167–71
 - provocation/heat of passion doctrine and, 149–50
 - provocative interpretational bias and, 173–75
 - response to threats vs. provocation and, 180
- empirical science
 - Anglo-American law and influence of, ix
 - social rationality and psychological jurisprudence and, 238–40
- enactive learning
 - Bandura's social learning theory and, 36–39
 - basic principles of, 37n.22
- encoding-of-cues processes
 - instrumental vs. reactive violence and, 159–66
 - mistaken self-defense and, 179
 - social-information processing model, 41n.36, 41–44, 54
- environment
 - cognition and, 71n.21
 - moral cognitive development and, 126–29
- equifinality
 - antisocial behavior and, 249
 - moral cognition and abnormal development and, 131
 - moral disengagement and, 132–33
 - "morally uncomprehending criminal" and, 146
- evidence, role of motive in, 165–66
- Ewing, Charles, 235
- excuse-based defense, 20–21
 - abuse/trauma person defense, 233–37
 - battered woman defense and, 213–17
 - developmental immaturity and, 95–109
 - diminished capacity and, 69–72, 71n.10, 82–83
 - duress defense as, 103–05, 104n.42, 197–201
 - legal insanity and, 72–78
 - mens rea* and, 164–66
 - mistakenness and, 154–56
 - mistaken self-defense as, 183–88
 - nonconfrontational killings by abused persons and, 223–33
 - provocation/heat of passion doctrine and, 151–56, 175–77
 - social rationality concerning, 238–50
- external factors, battered person defense and, 220n.31–221
- fairness attribution, social cognitive perspective on culpability and, 115–16
- false negatives, social-information processing research and, 56–58
- falsifiability, principle of, defined, 28
- fear
 - duress defense and, 201–09
 - emotion dysregulation and, 205–07
 - threat interpretational bias and, 180
- feminist theory, battered person defense and, 83n.44
- first degree murder
 - motive in, 163–66
 - premeditation and, 149
- focused arousal states, goal clarification as, social-information processing model, 47–49
- Fontaine, Reid, 32–33
 - moral cognitive development and, 128
 - social-information processing (SIP) model, 40, 65–66, 110

Cambridge University Press

978-0-521-51376-0 - The Mind of the Criminal: The Role of Developmental Social Cognition in Criminal Defense Law

Reid Griffith Fontaine

Index

More information

256

Index

- foreseeability, noncognitive culpable
 - cognitive dysfunction and, 87–88
- free action, free will vs., 16–17
- free choice theory of excuses, duress defense
 - and, 200–01
- free will, 16n.41
 - moral responsibility and presumption of, 14–15
 - scholastic-legal debate concerning, 15–18
 - social rationality and psychological jurisprudence and, 238–40
- frustration-aggression hypothesis, 34n.18–35, 34–36
- functional capacity
 - adolescent response and evaluation
 - decision making and, 111
 - criminal law and concept of, 82
- future orientation
 - decision making capacity and, 100
 - response and evaluation decision model and, 111
- Garvey, Stephen, 78
- gender differences in aggression
 - battered woman syndrome and, 213–17
 - interpretation-of-cues processes, social-information processing model, 44–45
- general deterrence, defined, 8
- genetics, criminal behavior research in, 31–33
- goal clarification
 - instrumental vs. reactive violence and, 159–66
 - social-information processing model, 40–41, 47–49
- Goodmark, Leigh, 210, 210n.1, 233–37
- Graham, Sandra, 112–16
- grievous bodily harm
 - duress defense and, 197, 198–99
 - self-defense as prevention of, 183–88
- “guilty but partially responsible” defense
 - battered women defense and, 234–35
 - diminished rationality and, 75n.17, 76–77
- Halliday-Boykins, Colleen, 112–16
- hard determinism, social rationality and
 - psychological jurisprudence and, 239–40
- Hart, H. L. A., 200–01
- heat of passion homicide defense, 27n.63
 - battered woman defense as, 213–17, 214n.16
 - excusing potential of, 151–56
 - future research issues concerning, 175–77
 - instrumental vs. reactive violence and, 156
 - juvenile justice and, 117–18
 - provocation interpretational bias and, 149–77
 - rationality and, 82–83
 - reasonable person standard and, 167–71, 188
 - self-defense vs., 179–80
 - social cognitive argument and, 166
 - structure of, 168–69
 - subrationality and, 171–75
 - theories concerning, xiii
- Hessick, Carissa, 162, 165n.49–166
- Hiatt, Kristina, 136, 137
- Hobbes, Thomas, 82
- Hoffman, Joseph, 157, 167, 214n.16, 247
- Holton, Richard, 172, 172n.67
- homicide law
 - antisocial behavioral subtypes and, 241–49
 - chronic abuse and trauma, hybrid
 - instrumental/reactive violence and, 211–13
 - culpability/desert concepts and, 117–18
 - heat of passion/provocation defense and, 149–77
 - instrumental vs. reactive aggression and violence and, 156
 - motive in, 163–66
- honest and reasonable judgment, self-defense
 - and, 184, 184n.17
- hostile attributional bias
 - interpretation-of-cues processes, social-information processing model, 45–46, 46n.54
 - social cognitive perspective on culpability and, 115–16
- hostile-reactive aggression
 - chronic abuse and trauma and, 211–13
 - provocation/heat of passion doctrine and, 151–56, 180
 - threat interpretational bias research and, 189–90
- hostility and aggression, threat
 - interpretational bias and, 191–94
- Huesmann, Rowell, 32–33, 53–55, 63n.133, 65–66
- hypothesis testing, causality experiments
 - and, 29
- hypothetical stories, research using, social cognitive perspective on culpability and, 112–16
- imminent threat
 - battered persons defense and, 219–20, 222n.39
 - definitions of, 218n.29
 - duress defense and, 197
 - mistaken self-defense and perception of, 178–95
- “imperfect self defense” concept, 154
- implicit social cognition
 - automatic processing and, 63–64
 - criminal behavior research and, 32–33
 - social-response decision making and, 65–66

Cambridge University Press

978-0-521-51376-0 - The Mind of the Criminal: The Role of Developmental Social Cognition in Criminal Defense Law

Reid Griffith Fontaine

Index

More information

Index

257

- impulsivity
 - adolescent response and evaluation
 - decision making and, 111
 - decision making capacity and, 101–03
 - response evaluation and decision (RED)
 - model, 50–53
- incapacitation, as justification for punishment, 9
- incarceration, juvenile justice and, 119
- indirect effect of victimization, reactive homicide and, 210
- individual criminal culpability
 - diminished capacity, 78–83
 - provocation/heat of passion doctrine and, 149–51
- individual development, moral cognition in, 126–29
- information processing theories
 - automaticity and implicit social cognition and, 63–64
 - social-information processing (SIP) model, 39–40, 53–55
- insanity defense
 - battered woman defense and, 213–17
 - diminished capacity and, 72–78
 - legal debate concerning, 124–25
 - mistaken self-defense and, 188
 - M’Naghten test of, 124–25
 - moral vs. legal insanity, 142–45, 146n.72
- instrumental aggression and violence
 - antisocial behavioral subtypes and, 241–49
 - by chronically abused individuals, hybrid instrumental/reactive subtype, 211–13
 - culpability/desert concepts and, 117–18
 - frustration-aggression hypothesis, 34n.18–35, 34–36
 - mistaken self-defense and, 178–95
 - precriminal context and, 247–49
 - progressive construction of juvenile justice and, 116–17
 - provocation/heat of passion doctrine and, 156
 - recurrent victimization and, 178n.1
 - rehabilitation and, 118–19
 - response evaluation and decision model and, 159n.33, 161–66, 248n.22
 - social-information processing and, 52–53, 159–66
 - terrorism and, 211–12
 - theories concerning, xiii
 - threat interpretational bias research and, 189–90
- insufficient rational, 85
- intent attribution
 - diminished capacity and, 72–78
 - homicide motive and, 163–64, 164n.47
 - interpretation-of-cues processes, social-information processing model, 45
 - social-information processing model and, 109–12
- interest, rationality and, 80, 80n.33
- internalization, battered woman syndrome and, 229–30
- interpretation-of-cues processes
 - appraisal theory and, 65–66
 - encoding-of-cues processes vs., 41n.36, 43–44
- instrumental vs. reactive violence and, 159–66
- mistaken self-defense and, 179
- social-information processing model, 44–46
- Izard, Carroll, 80n.33
- Journal of Behavioral Decision Making*, 157
- jurisprudence, in American criminal law, xii
- just deserts concept, 10
 - affirmative criminal defense and, 19–21
 - free will and, 18
 - youth delinquent behavior and, 117–18
- justifiable homicide
 - battered person defense and, 217–23
 - duress defense and, 197
 - mistaken self-defense and, 182–83
 - self-defense requirements for, 183–88
- justification defense, 20–21
 - abuse/trauma person defense proposal, 233–37
 - battered woman defense as, 213–17
 - duress defense as, 197–201
 - excuse defense and diminished capacity, 69–72, 71n.10
 - feminist theory concerning, 83n.44
 - mistaken self-defense as, 182–88
 - necessity requirement, 196n.41
 - provocation/heat of passion doctrine and, 151–56
- justification/excuse distinction
 - affirmative defense law and, xii
 - duress and, 103–05, 104n.42
- juvenile death penalty, 92, 92n.4, 98n.17
- juvenile justice. See also youth delinquent behavior
 - culpability, social cognitive perspective, 112–16
 - culpability/desert concepts and, 117–18
 - decision making capacity research and, 98–101
 - future research issues, 119–20
 - incarceration and, 119
 - progressive construction of, 116–17
 - psychological perspectives on, 92–95
 - rehabilitation and, 118–19
 - social-information processing and, 109–20

Cambridge University Press

978-0-521-51376-0 - The Mind of the Criminal: The Role of Developmental Social Cognition in Criminal Defense Law

Reid Griffith Fontaine

Index

More information

258

Index

- juvenile violent offenders. See also youth delinquent behavior
 - diminished rationality defense for, 82–83, 84
- Kant, Immanuel, 82
- Kohlberg, Lawrence, 126–29, 130, 131
- Lapsley, Daniel, 128–29
- Lazarus, Richard, 61–63, 170–71
- learned helplessness, chronic abuse and trauma and, 231–33
- learning, criminal law theory and role of, 17–18
- legal doctrine
 - instrumental vs. reactive violence and, 157–59
 - psychology and, 5n.16, 241–49
- legal insanity, 142–45
- lesser of evils (lesser of harms) argument, duress defense and, 198–99
- Locke, John, 82
- locus attributions, social cognitive
 - perspective on culpability and, 113–16
- Lorenz, Konrad, 33n.14–34
- Lynam, Donald, 139
- Maibom, Heidi, 134
- mens rea*, 12–13
 - diminished capacity as negation of, 74–77
 - diminished rationality and, 19n.52
 - duress defense and, 201
 - levels of guilt and, 13–14
 - motive in homicide law and, 163–66
- mentally retarded adult, diminished rationality defense and, 84–85
- mental states
 - criminal law and role of, 164–66
 - Modern Penal Code taxonomy of, 13n.30
 - provocative interpretational bias and, 173–75
- mistaken self-defense, 157n.26
 - analysis of, 178–95
 - battered woman defense as, 213–17
 - defense of others and, 182–88
 - as excuse-based defense, 183–88
 - hypothetical scenario for, 187
 - legitimate self-defense vs., 186–87
 - mistaken as reasonable vs. unreasonable self-defense, 181
 - social cognitive psychology of threat reactivity and, 188–95
- mistake of fact doctrine, 154–56
 - self-defense and, 184
- mixed theories of punishment, 11–12, 14n.32
- M’Naghten, Daniel, 124–25, 142–44
- M’Naghten test of insanity, 124–25, 142–44
- Model Penal Code (MPC)
 - duress doctrine under, 196–97
 - “morally uncomprehending criminal” and, 145–46
 - moral vs. legal insanity and, 144–45
 - provocation/heat of passion doctrine and, 154–56
 - taxonomy of mental states in, 13n.30
 - United States criminal law and, 27–28
- Moffitt, Terrie, 107
- Monahan, John, 238n.6–239
- Moore, Todd, 44–45
- moral agency
 - moral disengagement model and, 58–61
 - normative perspective on, 81, 81n.36–82
 - rationality and, 82
- moral cognitive development
 - abnormal development, 129–32
 - criminal rationality, 126–33
 - individual development and, 126–29
 - insanity doctrine and, 124–25
 - moral disengagement mechanisms and, 132–33
 - psychopathy and deficits in, 134–40
 - research on, 126
 - social rationality and psychological jurisprudence and, 238–40
- moral disengagement
 - antisocial personality disorder and, 138–40, 249n.23
 - Bandura’s social learning theory and, 38–39
 - basic principles of, 58–61
 - diminished capacity and, 123–24
 - etiology of, 132–33
 - failure of noncognitive culpable cognitive dysfunction requirement and, 86–87
 - mechanisms of, 132–33
- “morally uncomprehending criminal” and, 147–48
- moral framing, moral disengagement and, 132
- moral insanity, 142–45
- moral justification for antisocial behavior, moral disengagement model and, 58–61
- “morally uncomprehending criminal,” in criminal law, 145–48
- moral rationality
 - mistaken self-defense and, 186
 - principle of, 125
 - subrationality and, 90–91
- moral subrationality
 - criminal law and, 140–48
 - “morally uncomprehending criminal” and, 145–48
 - moral vs. legal insanity and, 142–45
 - propensity for wrongdoing and, 123–48

Cambridge University Press

978-0-521-51376-0 - The Mind of the Criminal: The Role of Developmental Social Cognition in Criminal Defense Law

Reid Griffith Fontaine

Index

More information

Index

259

- Morse, Stephen, 17–18, 18n.47, 67–69, 92n.4
 diminished capacity concept of, 73n.15, 74–77, 75n.17, 84, 85, 234–35
 on mistaken self-defense, 186 on rationality, 200–01 motivational incongruence, appraisal theory
 and, 63
 motivational relevance, appraisal theory
 and, 63
 motive in criminal law evidentiary role of, 165–66 goal clarification in social-information processing model and, 48–49 response evaluation and decision model and, 161–66, 168n.59
 Murisa, Peter, 190n.24
- Narvaez, Darcia, 128–29 necessity requirement duress and self-defense and, 196n.41
 threat interpretational bias and, 194 negative criminal defense, 19–21 neuroscience
 antisocial personality disorder and, 138–40
 criminal behavior research in, 31–33
 decision making capacity and, 98–101
 free will concept in, 15–18
 “neutrality objection” to homicide motive,
 165n.49–166
 Newman, Joe, 136, 137
 nonconfrontational killings battered persons defense and, 219 developmental social cognition and,
 223–33
 imminent threat and, 219–20 as justifiable homicide, 221–23 nonculpable cognitive dysfunction (NCCD)
 provocation/heat of passion doctrine and, 175–77
 underdeveloped rationality and, 84–89 nonreasonable mistakes, mistaken self-defense and, 183 normative perspective capacity for reason and, 81, 81n.36–82 social rationality and psychological jurisprudence and, 238–40 novel situations, rational decision making in face of, 79–80
- objective/subjective hybrid theory of self defense, 183–88
 objective test of social cognition, 169 objective theory of self-defense, 183–88 battered persons defense and, 220–21
 observational learning
 Bandura’s social learning theory and,
 36–39
- Huesmann’s social-information processing model and, 53–55 other-accountability, appraisal theory
 and, 63
 outcome expectancy
 duress defense and, 205
 moral disengagement and, 132 youth antisocial behavior and, 110 outcome valuation
 duress defense and, 205
 youth antisocial behavior and, 109–12
- Palmer, Emma, 90–91
parens patriae policy, juvenile justice
 and, 94
 parricide, abuse/trauma person defense proposal and, 233–34 parsimony, principle of defined, 28
 interpretation of, 28–29 partial defenses, 20–21
 diminished capacity and, 78
 provocation/heat of passion doctrine and, 151–56 violence by chronic trauma and abuse victims and, 217n.27 partial responsibility, diminished capacity variant, 74–77
 Patry, Marc, 78, 91
 peer influence
 decision making capacity and susceptibility to, 99 social-information processing model and,
 109–12
 vulnerability to coercion and, 103–05
 penal proportionality heat of passion defense and, 150 juvenile justice and, 117–18
 retributive principle of, 67–68
People v. Humphrey, 217n.28 perceived threats, criminal law interpretations of, 181
 Pereboom, Derk, 16n.39 personality moral rationality and, 128–29
 threat interpretational bias and, 193–94 personhood theory of excuses, duress defense
 and, 200–01
 pervasive developmental disorders (PDDs), 138n.47
 philosophy
 free will concept in, 15–18
 social rationality and psychological jurisprudence and, 238–40
 Piaget, Jean, 126–29
 Pillsbury, Samuel, 153
 Popper, Karl, 28

Cambridge University Press

978-0-521-51376-0 - The Mind of the Criminal: The Role of Developmental Social Cognition in Criminal Defense Law

Reid Griffith Fontaine

Index

More information

260

Index

- post-traumatic stress disorder (PTSD)
 - abuse/trauma person defense proposal and criteria of, 233–37
 - battered woman syndrome and, 215–16
 - developmental social cognition and, 225–26
 - social-information processing model and, 230–31
- practical reasoning, individual capacity and responsibility and, 78–83
- precriminal context, antisocial behavior and, 247–49
- preimpulsive scenarios, impulsivity in adolescents and, 101–03
- premeditation, first degree murder requirement for, 149
- primary social cognition, criminal behavior research and, 32–33
- progressive retributivism, 12n.27
- proportional culpability
 - impulsivity and, 101–03
 - self-defense and, 184, 184n.17
- proportionate force, self-defense and use of, 184, 222n.38
- provocation interpretational bias, 46n.54
 - affirmative defense doctrines and, 179
 - anger and reactivity and, 169–71
 - appraisal theory and, 170–71
 - battered woman defense and, 213–17
 - excusing potential of, 151–56
 - future research issues concerning, 175–77
 - heat of passion homicide defense and, 149–77
 - homicide law and, 167–71
 - instrumental vs. reactive violence and, 156
 - motive and, 168n.59
 - noncognitive culpable cognitive dysfunction and, 87–88
 - perceived threats and, 178–95
 - response to threats vs., 179–81
 - social cognitive argument and, 166
 - subrationality and, 171–75
- psychiatry
 - criminal law and, 25–27
 - moral vs. legal insanity and, 143–44
- psychological jurisprudence
 - battered persons defense and, 217–23
 - defined, 5
 - progressive construction of juvenile justice and, 116–17
 - social analytic jurisprudence and, 240–45
 - social rationality and, 238–40
 - youth delinquent behavior and, 92–95
- “psychological self-defense” criterion, 235
- psychology
 - criminal law and, 1–30
 - free will concept in, 15–18
 - reactive aggression and, 167
 - social cognitive jurisprudence and, 240–45
 - threat interpretational bias research and, 189–90
- Psychology, Public Policy, and Law*, 157, 157n.25
- psychopathy
 - basic principles of, 126
 - chronic abuse and trauma and, 228–29
 - criminal law and, 140–48
 - moral cognitive deficits and, 134–40
 - moral vs. legal insanity and, 143–44
 - provocation/heat of passion doctrine and, 149–51
- punishment
 - battered persons defense and, 217–23
 - deterrence and, 8
 - justifications for, 8–10
 - rehabilitation as justification for, 8–9
 - role of motive in, goal clarification in social-information processing model and, 48–49
 - theories of, 10–12
- pure theories of punishment, 10–12
- rational choice theory
 - goal clarification in social-information processing model and, 48
 - response evaluation and decision (RED) model, 50–53
- rationality. See also substandard rational capacity
 - anger and impairment of, 169–71
 - criminal defense and, 21–22
 - diminished capacity and, 68, 76–77
 - fear and impairment of, 180
 - heat of passion homicide defense and, 167–71, 172n.67
 - human capacity for, 18n.48
 - nature and legal function of, 78–83
 - self-control vs., 18n.47, 18–19, 101–03
 - social cognitive jurisprudence and, 240–45
 - social rationality concerning excuse-based defenses, 238–50
 - subrationality/underdeveloped rationality, nonculpable cognitive dysfunction and, 84–89
- reactive aggression and violence
 - antisocial behavioral subtypes and, 241–49
 - battered person defense and, xiv
 - chronic abuse and trauma and, 210–37
 - by chronically abused individuals, hybrid instrumental/reactive subtype, 211–13
 - culpability/desert concepts and, 117–18
 - duress defense and, 202–203
 - emotional instability and cognitive function, 168–69

Cambridge University Press

978-0-521-51376-0 - The Mind of the Criminal: The Role of Developmental Social Cognition in Criminal Defense Law

Reid Griffith Fontaine

Index

More information

Index

261

- encoding-of-cues processes, social-information processing model, 42
- frustration-aggression hypothesis, 34n.18–35, 34–36
- mistaken self-defense and, 178–95
- progressive construction of juvenile justice and, 116–17
- provocation/heat of passion doctrine and, 156
- recurrent victimization and, 178n.1
- rehabilitation and, 118–19
- response evaluation and decision model and, 161–66
- social-information processing and, 52–53, 159–66
- subrationality and, 171–72
- terrorism and, 211–12
- theories concerning, xiii
- reason, criminal law and standards of, 17–18
- reasonable belief doctrine
 - duress defense and, 198–99
 - provocation/heat of passion and, 154–56
- “reasonable firmness” requirement, self-defense and defense of duress and, xiv
- reasonable person standard
 - abuse history in violence by abuse and trauma victims, 217n.28
 - heat of passion defense and, 167–71
 - mistaken self-defense requirements for, 183–95
 - noncognitive culpable cognitive dysfunction and, 89
 - provocative interpretational bias and, 169n.61, 173–75
 - vulnerability to coercion and, 103–05
- “reasonable person” standard, criminal negligence and, 13
- recurrent victimization
 - aggressive behavior due to chronic abuse and trauma and, 216n.26–217, 228–29
 - self-defense and, 178n.1
- rehabilitation
 - juvenile justice and, 118–19
 - rationale for, 8–9
- relational blame, appraisal theory and, 63
- response access or construction
 - instrumental vs. reactive violence and, 159–66
 - social-information processing model, 40–41, 49–50, 54
- response decision making
 - duress defense and, 204–07
 - instrumental vs. reactive violence and, 159–66
 - social-information processing model, 40–41, 50–53
- response efficacy
 - duress defense and, 205
 - youth antisocial behavior and, 110
- response evaluation and decision (RED) model
 - chronic abuse and trauma and, 230–31
 - duress defense and, 204–07
 - instrumental vs. reactive violence and, 161–66, 248n.22
 - moral cognitive development and, 128
 - moral disengagement and, 60–61
 - social-information processing and, 50–53
 - subrationality, 91
 - youth antisocial behavior and, 109–12
- response valuation, duress defense and, 205
- retaliative behavior
 - instrumental vs. reactive violence and, 157–59
 - response evaluation and decision model and, 50–53, 161–66
- retributive aggression
 - motive in homicide law and, 167–68
 - response evaluation and decision model and, 161–66
- retributive theory of punishment, 10–12
 - affirmative criminal defense and, 19–21
 - criminal responsibility and, 14–15
 - free will and, 18
 - moral subrationality and, 140–48
 - terminology for, 12n.26
- retributive utilitarianism, 12n.26
 - progressive construction of juvenile justice and, 116–17
- revenge
 - chronic abuse and trauma and, 211
 - instrumental/reactive violence distinction and, 166
- reward sensitivity
 - adolescent response and evaluation decision making and, 111
 - decision making capacity and, 100–01
- risk assessment skills
 - adolescent response and evaluation decision making and, 111
 - decision making capacity and, 100–01
- Robinson, Paul, 144–45
- Roper v. Simmons*, 92n.4, 98n.17
- Rozelle, Susan, 152
- Schopp, Robert, 78, 91
- science
 - criminal law and, 24–25
 - provocation/heat of passion doctrine and, 149–51, 175–77
- Scott, Elizabeth, 84, 95n.9, 95n.11–96, 95–97, 98–101
- secondary social cognition, criminal behavior research and, 32–33

Cambridge University Press

978-0-521-51376-0 - The Mind of the Criminal: The Role of Developmental Social Cognition in Criminal Defense Law

Reid Griffith Fontaine

Index

More information

262

Index

- second degree murder
 - motive in, 163–66
 - social cognition and, 149
- self control
 - adolescent response and evaluation
 - decision making and, 111
 - decision making capacity and, 101
 - moral disengagement model and, 58–61
 - rationality vs., 18–19
- self-defense
 - abuse/trauma person defense proposal, 233–37
 - battered woman defense and, 213–17, 214n.16
 - criminal law interpretations of, 181
 - heat of passion homicide defense vs., 179–80
 - justifiable homicide and battered persons defense and, 217–23
 - mistaken self-defense, 157n.26, 178–95
 - necessity requirement, 196n.41
 - response evaluation and decision model and, 161–66
- self-efficacy beliefs, Bandura's social learning theory and, 38
- self-initiated actions, instrumental vs. reactive violence and, 157–59
- self-schema, moral rationality and, 128–29
- sentencing, role of motive in, goal clarification in social-information processing model and, 48–49
- Sherman, Jim, 214n.16, 247
- Sherman, Steven, 157, 167
- Shute, Stephen, 172, 172n.67
- Slovenko, Ralph, 68
- Small, Mark, 238–40
- Smith, Craig, 170–71
- social analytic jurisprudence
 - defined, 5–6
 - social cognitive jurisprudence and, 240–45
- social cognitive development. See developmental social cognition
- social cognitive jurisprudence
 - broader context for, 5n.14
 - criminal law and, 7–8
 - defined, 4
 - research methodology, 4
 - social-analytic tradition and, 240–45
 - theory of wrongdoing and, 6
- social cognitive models
 - basic principles of, 7–8
 - criminal behavior research and, 31–33
 - duress defense and, 201–09
 - excuse defense and diminished capacity and, 69–72
 - human functioning and, 22–23
 - instrumental vs. reactive violence and, 157–59
 - juvenile offender culpability and, 112–16
 - progressive construction of juvenile justice and, 116–17
 - provocation interpretational bias/heat of passion doctrine and, 166
- subrational framework, 89–91
 - unformed character/identity and, 105–09
 - youth delinquent behavior and, 92–95
- social-cognitive models
 - aggressive behavior, 34–39
 - Bandura's social learning theory, 36–39
 - Berkowitz's frustration-aggression hypothesis, 34–36
 - cognitive mediation in, 65–66
 - moral disengagement, 58–61
- social-information processing (SIP) model, 39–58
- social environment
 - Bandura's social learning theory and, 36–39
 - duress defense and, 200
 - threat interpretational bias and, 193–94
- social harm principle
 - mistaken self-defense and, 185
 - motive in homicide law and, 163–66
- social-information processing (SIP) model
 - applications of, 65–66
 - basic principles and properties, 39–58
 - chronic trauma and abuse and, 226–28
 - contributions and caveats concerning, 55–58
 - criminal behavior research and, 32–33
 - developmental immaturity and, 109–12
 - diminished capacity and, 67–91
 - Dodge's model, 40
 - duress defense and, 204–07
 - encoding of cues in, 40–44, 41n.36
 - goal identification and prioritization, 40–41, 47–49
 - Huesmann's model, 53–55
 - instrumental vs. reactive violence and, 159–66
 - interpretation-of-cues process in, 40–41, 41n.36, 44–46
 - juvenile justice and, 109–20
 - juvenile offender culpability, social cognitive perspective, 112–16
 - mistaken self-defense and, 179
 - noncognitive culpable cognitive dysfunction and, 88–89
 - post-traumatic stress syndrome and, 230–31
 - progressive construction of juvenile justice and, 116–17
 - provocation interpretational bias and, 170–71
 - research methodology, 56–58
 - response access or construction, 40–41, 49–50

Cambridge University Press

978-0-521-51376-0 - The Mind of the Criminal: The Role of Developmental Social Cognition in Criminal Defense Law

Reid Griffith Fontaine

Index

More information

Index

263

- response decision in, 40–41, 50–53
- social cognitive jurisprudence and, 240–45
- subrationality framework, 89–91
- threat interpretational bias and, 189, 194
- social rationality, excuse-based defenses and, 238–50
- social science
 - behavioral science and, 23–24
 - criminal behavior research in, 31–33
- soft determinism, social rationality and
 - psychological jurisprudence and, 239–40
- specific deterrence, defined, 8
- stability attribution, social cognitive
 - perspective on culpability and, 113–16
- stage theory of moral development, 126–29
- Stams, Geert Jan, 130–31
- Steinberg, Lawrence, 84, 93, 95n.9, 95n.11–96, 95–97, 98–101, 104–05, 112–16, 121
- stimulus actor's affect, interpretation-of-cues processes, social-information processing model, 45
- stimulus interpretation, duress defense and, 201–09
- subjective test for emotional component, 169
- subjective theory of self-defense, 183–88
- subrationality
 - moral subrationality, 123–48
 - nonculpable cognitive dysfunction and, 84–89
 - provocation interpretational bias and, 171–75
 - social-information processing framework for, 89–91
- substandard rational capacity, criminal responsibility and, 67–91
- target of threat, duress defense and, 197
- terrorism, instrumental and reactive violence and, 211–12
- threat interpretational bias
 - duress defense and, 201–09
 - mistaken self-defense and, 188–95
 - provocation interpretational bias vs., 179–81
 - research background, 179
 - in youth offenders, 190n.24
- trait anger
 - appraisal theory and, 62
 - encoding-of-cues processes, social-information processing model, 43
 - interpretation-of-cues processes, social-information processing model, 46
 - provocation interpretational bias and, 170–71
- trait anxiety, threat interpretational bias and, 193–94
- trait impulsivity, in adolescents, 101–03
- tunnel vision, provocation/heat of passion doctrine and, 153
- underdeveloped rationality
 - developmental immaturity and, 95–109
 - insanity defense and, 126
 - nonculpable cognitive dysfunction and, 84–89
 - youth violence and, 92–122
- undermining of rationality, provocation interpretational bias and, 172
- “Understanding Psychopathy” (Hiatt and Newman), 136
- Undiminished Confusion in Diminished Capacity* (Morse), 68–69
- United States criminal law
 - Anglo-American comparisons, 27
 - Modern Penal Code and, 27–28
- unlawful/unlawful threats, self-defense and perception of, 184
- unprovoked conduct, provocation interpretational defense and, 163–64, 164n.46
- utilitarian theory of punishment, 10–12
- motive in homicide law and, 167–68
- progressive construction of juvenile justice and, 116–17
- valued situations, rational decision making in face of, 80
- victim devaluation, moral disengagement and, 60, 132
- video vignette technique
 - social cognitive perspective on culpability and, 112–16
 - social-information processing research and, 56–58
- violent crime, antisocial behavioral subtypes and, 241–49
- voluntary manslaughter
 - heat of passion defense and, 150, 167–71
 - instrumental vs. reactive aggression and violence and, 156
 - provocation/heat of passion doctrine and, 175–77
 - response evaluation and decision model and, 161–66
 - social cognition and, 149
- Walker, Laurens, 238n.6–239
- Walker, Lenore, 231–33
- wayward desire, diminished capacity and, 78
- weak will, diminished capacity and, 78
- Weisberg, Robert, 145–48
- Wiener, Richard, 5–6, 6n.19, 240–45
- Wilson, James Q., 3
- Winter, Steven, 238–40

Cambridge University Press

978-0-521-51376-0 - The Mind of the Criminal: The Role of Developmental Social Cognition in Criminal Defense Law

Reid Griffith Fontaine

Index

More information

264

Index

workplace violence, threat interpretational bias and, 193–94 wrongdoing

duress defense and, 198–99

moral subrationality and propensity for, 123–48

provocation/heat of passion doctrine and continuation of, 151–56

psychopathy and moral cognitive deficits
and, 134

self-defense as prevention of, 183–88

Yoon, Lira, 191

youth delinquent behavior. See also juvenile justice

antisocial personality disorder and, 139–40

chronic abuse and trauma and, 216–17

culpability/desert concepts and, 117–18

developmental immaturity and diminished capacity and, 95–109

future orientation and, 100

future research issues, 92n.4

goal clarification in social-information processing model and, 47–49

impulsivity and, 101–03

incarceration and, 119

instrumental vs. reactive violence and, 160–61

internalization as result of abuse and, 229–30

interpretation-of-cues processes,
social-information processing model, 44–46

mistaken self-defense and, 188, 190n.24 moral cognition and abnormal development, 129–32

“morally uncomprehending criminal” and,
147–48

peer influence susceptibility and, 99

rehabilitation and, 118–19

response access or construction, social-information processing model, 49–50 response evaluation and decision (RED)

model, 50–53

risk assessment skills and reward sensitivity, 100–01

self control and, 101

social and behavioral research on, social cognitive perspective on culpability

31–33

and, 112–16

social-information processing model and,
55–58, 160–61

threat interpretational bias and, 190n.24

underdeveloped rationality and, 92–122

unformed character/identity and, 96–97, 105–09 vulnerability to coercion and, 103–05

Zimbarg, Richard, 191