

Index

- adaptive grids 39–40
- adaptive observations 206–209
- adjoint methods 105–107, 337–338
- agricultural applications of modeling 386, 399
- air-chemistry modeling 390–391
- air-quality modeling 390–391
- aliasing 80–83
- analysis increment 215, 222, 224–225
- analysis innovation 217, 224–225
- analysis residual 217
- analysis, of observations 199–251
 - Barnes 229
 - Cressman 227–228
 - four-dimensional variational 242–244
 - optimal interpolation 230
 - successive correction 227–230
 - three-dimensional variational 231–233
- anelastic approximation 11–12
- background field 210–212
- balancing, of initial conditions 236–242
- Barnes analysis 229
- basis function 42–50
- Big-Brother–Little-Brother experiments 107–108, 329–330
- boundary conditions
 - introduction 20–21
 - lateral 96–113
 - lower 171–196
 - upper 114–116
- boundary-layer parameterization 140–155
- Boussinesq approximation 11–12
- Brier score 267–268
- canonical correlation analysis 355
- case studies, methods 321–323
- climate modeling, future 407–431
 - anthropogenic landscape impacts 451–453
 - conservation properties 412
 - deterministic, initial-value prediction 420–422
 - downscaling 432–450
 - ensemble 427–430
 - experimental designs 408–410
 - flux corrections 413
 - global 408–431
 - intercomparison projects 415
 - land-surface and ice 410–411
 - ocean circulation 411–412
 - physical-process parameterization 412
 - regional 440–442
 - summary of models 422–427
 - verification 413–420
- cloud-cover parameterizations 166–168
- cloud-microphysics parameterizations 121–128
- cluster analysis 352–353
- cold starts 21
- composite grid 28–29
- computational fluid-dynamics models 401–406
 - algorithmic approximations 405
 - applications 405
 - coupling with mesoscale models 403–404
 - types 401–402
- conformal projection 25
- conservation
 - energy 116
 - mass 116
- consistency, of vertical and horizontal grid increments 40–42
- continuous data assimilation 212–215
- convective parameterizations 129–140
- coupled models 378–400
 - agricultural 399
 - energy industry 396–398
 - floods 386–389
 - infectious disease 382–386
 - military applications 399–400
 - transport, diffusion, transformation 389–393
 - wave height 381–382
 - wave propagation 394–395
 - wildland fire 396
- Courant number 19
- Cressman analysis 227–229
- data assimilation
 - continuous 212–215
 - diabatic (physical) 233–236
 - ensemble Kalman filter 246–248
 - extended Kalman filter 244–246
 - four-dimensional variational 242–244
 - hybrid 215, 248–249
 - intermittent 210–212
 - relaxation 212–215

- data assimilation (continued)
 - sequential 210–212
 - spinup, relation to 215–216
 - statistical framework 216–226
 - three-dimensional variational 231–233
- diabatic initialization 233–236
- differential grid resolution 36–40
- diffusion 84–89
 - explicit numerical 85–89
 - grid 89
 - implicit numerical 89
 - physical 84–85
- diffusion coefficient 70–71
- direct numerical simulation models 402
- dispersion, numerical 72–78
- downscaling methods 432–450
 - current-climate 445–449
 - dynamical 439–444
 - future-climate 444–445
 - statistical 435–439
- dust-transport modeling 391–392
- dynamic balance 236–242
- dynamic initialization 21, 199
- dynamical core 17

- energetics analysis 356–357
- ensemble Kalman filter 246–248
- ensemble modeling
 - calibration 269–270
 - dispersion 256–257
 - economic benefit 280–282
 - graphical displays 273–280
 - mean 254–256
 - rank histogram 265–267
 - reliability 263–265
 - short range 272–273
 - superensemble 258
 - time lagged 271–272
 - uncertainty sources 257–261
 - variance 256
 - verification 261–269
- error covariances 222–226
- Eulerian analysis framework 343–347
- experimental designs, in modeling 321–342
- extended Kalman filter 244–246

- factor separation 333–337
- finite-difference methods, space 54–58
 - Eulerian 54–55
 - introduction 17–19
 - Lagrangian 55–56
 - semi-Lagrangian 55–56
 - staggering 56–58
- finite-difference methods, time 51–54
 - explicit 52–53
 - implicit 53–54
 - introduction 19–20
 - multi-step 52–53, 78–80
 - semi-implicit 53–54
 - split explicit 51
- finite-element methods 50
- finite-volume methods 50–51
- first-guess field 210–212
- flood modeling 386–389
- forecaster role, in NWP 364
- four-dimensional variational data assimilation 242–244
- Fourier basis function 42–44

- geostrophic adjustment 236–240
- grid structure
 - consistency of vertical and horizontal grid increments 40–42
 - differential resolution 36–40
 - latitude–longitude grids 30–32
 - map projections 24–30
 - polyhedral gnomonic projections 28–30
 - spherical geodesic grids 32–36
- grid-point methods 23–42
- group-speed errors 76–77

- hot starts 22
- hydrostatic approximation 11

- infectious-disease modeling 382–386
- initialization 198–251
 - balancing 236–242
 - data-assimilation methods 210–249
 - diabatic 233–236
 - dynamic 21, 199
 - ensemble Kalman filter 246–248
 - extended Kalman filter 244–246
 - geostrophic adjustment 236–240
 - hot, warm, cold starts 21–22, 215–216
 - hybrid 215, 248–249
 - idealized 249–250
 - introduction 21–22
 - observations 199–209
 - physical initialization 233–236
- instability, numerical
 - linear 63–72
 - nonlinear 83–84
- intermittent data assimilation 210–212
- isochrone analysis 351

- Lagrangian analysis framework 347–351
- Lambert conformal map projections 24–27
- land data-assimilation systems 187–188, 190–191
- land-surface model 187–191
- land-surface process modeling
 - modeling 187–191
 - processes 172–185
 - urban-canopy modeling 194–196

- large-eddy simulation models 401–402
- lateral-boundary conditions 96–113
 - error examples 97–107
 - recommendations 110–113
 - sources of error 96–97
 - types 108–110
- latitude–longitude grids 30–32
- limited-area model 36
- linear instability 63–72
 - advection 63–70
 - diffusion 70–71
 - multiple terms 71–72
- map projections 24–30
 - conformal 25
 - Lambert conformal 24–27
 - map-scale factor 26–28
 - Mercator 24–27
 - polar stereographic 24–27
 - polyhedral gnomonic 28–30
- map-scale factor 26–28
- Mercator map projection 24–27
- metadata 205–206
- microphysics parameterizations 121–128
- military applications of models 399–400
- model-output statistics 368–373
 - conventional 369–371
 - updatable 371–372
 - very-short update 372–373
- nested grids
 - horizontal nesting 36–37
 - stretched grids 36–40
 - vertical nesting 36–38
- Newtonian relaxation 212–215
- nonlinear instability 83–84
- nonlinear normal-mode initialization 242
- objective analysis of observations
 - Barnes 229
 - Cressman 227–229
 - optimal interpolation 230
 - successive corrections 227–230
- observations, used for initialization 199–209, 340–341
- observing-system experiments 328
- observing-system simulation experiments 323–328
- ocean-surface process modeling 192
- operational NWP 358–365
- optimal interpolation 230
- parameterizations 119–170
 - boundary layer, turbulence 140–155
 - cloud cover, cloudiness 166–168
 - convective 129–140
 - introduction 22–23
 - land-surface 171–197
 - microphysics 121–128
 - radiation 155–165
 - stochastic 166
- perfect-prog method 368
- phase-speed errors 72–77
- physical initialization 233–236
- physical-process studies 321–323
- plume modeling 389–390
- polar stereographic map projections 24–27
- polyhedral gnomonic projections 28–30
- post-processing, statistical
 - gridded bias correction 374
 - Kalman filters 373–375
 - model-output statistics 368–373
 - perfect-prog method 368
 - weather generators 375–376
- predictability 284–293
 - definition 284
 - error sources 284–287
 - limited-area models 290–293
 - local-forcing impact 287–288
 - post-processing impact 293
 - variability causes 288–290
- predictive-skill studies 338
- predictor-corrector time differencing 52–53
- primitive equations 7
- primitive-equation models 7
- principal-component analysis 353–355
- pseudospectral models 46
- quality assurance 203–205
- quality control 203–205
- radiation parameterization 155–165
- rank histograms 265–267
- rank-probability skill score 269
- real-time verification 363
- reanalyses
 - global 431–432
 - regional 445–449
- reduced grid 31–32
- reduced-dimension models 339–340
- reduced-physics models 340
- reforecasts 330–331
- relaxation 212–215
- reliability diagrams 263–265
- Reynolds' averaging 7–10
- Reynolds' equations 7–10
- Reynolds' postulates 7–10
- Reynolds' stresses 9
- Reynolds' -averaged Navier–Stokes equations 401
- rhomboidal truncation 45–46
- river-discharge modeling 386–389
- ROC diagrams 267
- self-organizing maps 352–354
- sensitivity studies 331–338
- sequential data assimilation 210–212

- shallow-fluid equations 12–16
- singular-value decomposition 355
- skill scores 298–299
- spectral analysis 355–356
- spectral methods 42–50
 - advantages, disadvantages 49
 - basis functions 42
 - Fourier basis functions 42–45
 - horizontal resolution 48–49
 - Legendre polynomial basis function 45
 - limited area 50
 - pseudospectral 46
 - spherical harmonics 45
 - transform method 46
 - truncation methods 45–46
- spherical geodesic grid 32–36
- spherical harmonics 45
- spinup 215–216
- static initialization 21
- statistical framework for data assimilation 216–226
- statistical post processing 366–377
 - gridded bias correction 374
 - Kalman filters 373–374
 - model-output statistics 368–372
 - perfect-prog method 368
- stochastic parameterizations 166
- streamline analysis 350–351
- stretched grid 36–40
- successive correction, in analysis 227–230
- synthetic initial conditions 339

- targeted observations 206–209
- Taylor diagram 262–263
- three-dimensional variational analysis 231–233
- time smoothers 95
- time-lagged ensemble 271–272
- trajectory analysis 347–350
- transform method 46
- transport and diffusion modeling 389–393
- triangular truncation 45–46
- truncation error 59–63
- truncation, of spectral basis functions 45–46
- turbulence parameterization 140–155

- upper-boundary conditions 114–116
- urban-canopy modeling 194–196

- variational data assimilation
 - four dimensional 242–244
 - three dimensional 231–233
- verification 294–320
 - accuracy measures 295–298
 - definition 294
 - dependence on time of day, season, weather regime 307–309
 - ensemble forecasts 261–269
 - feature, event, object based 309–312
 - horizontal-resolution effects 305–306
 - probability distribution functions 306–307
 - reasons for verifying 294–295
 - reference forecasts 299–300
 - reforecasts, use of 317
 - representativeness error 302–304
 - scale dependence 312–315
 - skill scores 298–299
 - toolkits 318
 - value based 280–282, 317
 - variance 316–317
- vertical coordinates
 - height 89–90
 - hybrid 94
 - potential temperature 90–92
 - pressure 90
 - sigma-height 93–94
 - sigma-pressure 92
 - step-mountain 94–95
- volcanic ash modeling 392–393

- warm starts 22
- water-surface process modeling
 - modeling 192
 - processes 185–187
- wave-height modeling 381–382
- wave-propagation modeling, sound and
 - electromagnetic 394–395
- weather generators 375–376
- wildland-fire modeling 396