

Index

- Adams, Marilyn, 93
agape, 203
 Alston, William, P., 29, 36 difficulties with his account of Aquinas on speech about God, 122–25 his account of metaphor, 113 his account of ways in which terms can be used to speak of God, 115 his interpretation of Aquinas on speech about God, 116–21
 on literal speech about God, 119–21 on literal use of terms, 116–17 on the res significata/modus significandi distinction, 117–19
 ontology he attributes to Aquinas, 124, 126 puzzle posed by his interpretation of Aquinas, 121–22
 analytic philosophy, 1, 11, 15 rejection of Kantianism, 29 the identity thereof, 20–31 the role of metaphysics within, 26
 See also philosophy of religion Anselm, 7, 9, 30
 argument for God's timelessness, 172, 180–81 compared with Meinong, 87
 on faith seeking understanding, 300
 on God's passibility, 202
 on the ontological argument, 57 response to Gaunilo: see Gaunilo antirealism,
 about God-talk, 26
 Arendt, Hannah, 64
 Armstrong, A. H., on eros, 185
 Aristotelian ontology, 39
 See also Aquinas, Thomas, use of constituent-style ontology
 aseity, 28, 40, 56, 63, 227–29
 See also Aquinas, Thomas, on God's unconditionedness; Plantinga, Alvin, on God's aseity
 Aquinas, 6, 22, 114
 consequences of his ontology for speech
 about God, 126
 doctrine of analogy, 127–28 explanation for why God does not sorrow, 227–29
 his approach to Greek philosophy, 291–92 liabilities of English translations of, 128–29
 on divine simplicity, 91, 92, 213
 See also divine simplicity on free will, 226
 on God's attributes, 55, 62 on God's knowledge, 213
 on God's knowledge of evil, 210, 214–17, 229
 on God's love, 202–3, 211
 on God's passions, 202–3, 205, 209, 224, 226 as distinguished from God's intellectual appetite, 225–26
 on God's relation to sin, 231, 232 on God's relation to time, 146–48, 173–74
 on res significata/modus significandi
 distinction, 123, 131, 132
 on God's unconditionedness, 209–15 See also aseity
 on God's will, 211–12
 and identification with intellectual appetite, 226
 distinction between antecedent and consequent will, 231–33 on passions, 224
 metaphorical attribution to God, 233–35 on resembling God, 213–14
 on scriptural interpretation, 58
 on sorrow, 228–29
 use of constituent-style ontology, 103–8 Augustine,
 his account of eudaemonia, 200 his account of God's love, 203

- Augustine (cont.)
 his challenge to Stoic account of emotion, 196–97
 his opposition to Stoic position on the emotions, 188–98
 on emotion, 184–96
 on eros, 184, 193
 on eternal life of God, 196–99
 on faith seeking understanding, 299, 301
 on God's knowledge of evil, 199–200
 on grief, 182–84, 194–95 on love, 187
 on modes of valuing, 196 on sin, 192
 on solidarity with others, 194, 195, 199–202 on the insufficiency of illumination, 186
 on scriptural interpretation, 159, 202
 relation to eudaemonistic tradition, 184–96 tensions in his thought about love, 218
- Aurelius, Marcus, 196–97
- Austin, J. L., 239
- authorial-discourse interpretation, 283–85
- Barr, James, 155
- Barth, Karl, 7
- evil,
 as das Nichtige, 14, 268–73
 as menace, 256, 269
 as nothingness, 255
 as resistance to grace, 273 essence of, 272
 how his account differs from other accounts, 280 importance of his account for Christian philosophers, 280
 relation of his account to the free will account, 281
 his account of possible beings, 258–61 problems with, 262
 on das Nichtige, 6, 245–46, 254 as accompaniment of creation, 259 as power, 257, 258–61 identification with demonic powers, 270 is not a fallen creature, 270 relation to sin, 273–74 on death, 274
- Bergmann, Gustav,
 as employing a constituent-style
 ontology, 107
- Brown, Peter, 193
- Butler, Joseph, 20
- Cajetan, 121
- Calvin, John, 17, 247
- Carneades, 189–90
- Casteneda, Hector, 151
- Christian scholarship, its relation to non-Christian scholarship, 285 See also Clement of Alexandria; Anselm,
 on faith seeking understanding;
 Aquinas, Thomas, his approach to Greek philosophy; Augustine, on faith seeking understanding; Tertullian
- Chrysippus, 191
- conceiving,
 different types, 84–88
- Cullmann, Oscar, 155–56
- Cuneo, Terence, 32
- Clement of Alexandria, 31
 his account of Christian scholarship, 287–89
- Divine Discourse*, 21, 25, 33, 34, 35, 64, 112, 130, 239, 298
- divine ideas, 262
- divine simplicity, 37–42, 122, 208–9 compatibility with other theistic doctrines, 94 importance for speech about God, 120 relation to divine eternity, 149 relation to divine immutability, 180 See also Aquinas, Thomas, on divine simplicity; Plotinus
- doxastic merits, 29
- Dummett, Michael,
 on Frege, 87
- emotions,
 cognitive theory of, 203
 See also William Lyons; Augustine, on emotion
- entitlement, 29
- Epictetus, 196–99
- epistemology, 19
 of philosophy, 114
 reformed, 28–31
- eternal,
 definition of, 137
 being not identical with immutable being, 139
- events, 136
- evil, 32
 as lack of being, 268 coping with, 241–54
 free will response to, 250–52
 Bañezian version of, 250–51 Molinist version of, 250 relation to Barth's view, 281 God's permission of, 277
 Leibnizian response to, 249

Cambridge University Press

978-0-521-51465-1 - Inquiring about God: Selected Essays, Volume 1

Nicholas Wolterstorff

Index

More information

Index

311

- See also* Kant, on evil; soul-making theodicy; Barth, Karl, on evil; Aquinas, Thomas, on God's knowledge of evil; Augustine, on God's knowledge of evil
- flourishing,
 as both a species and individuals, 241–54 connection with design plan, 243–44, 267–48 connection with proper function, 241, 244–45 human, 241
 its connection with the systems of suffering and delight, 242–63 opposite of death, 274; see also Barth, Karl, on death
- foundationalism,
 classical, 22, 28–29, 57
- forgiveness,
 Christianity's conception of, 64
- Frege, Gottlob,
 on sense and reference, 87
See also Dummett, Michael
- Gadamer, Hans-Georg, 292, 296–97
- Gaunilo, 10
 dilemma presented to Anselm, 78–80 his interpretation of Anselm's argument, 72–74 on conceiving, 77–78, 84–88 on the knowledge/understanding (cogitare/intelligere) distinction, 75–80 on God's unknowability, 82–84 summary of his major objection to Anselm, 88–90 use of the perfect island analogy, 68–70, 74
- God,
 acting through Christ, 178 argument that he is in time, 145–52 See also Anselm, argument for God's timelessness; Aquinas, Thomas, on God's relation to time as benevolent, 203, 216 as having a history, 172–77 as redeemer, 133
 as speaker, 240
 as unconditional, 208, 237; see also aseity everlasting or eternal, 133 knowledge of temporal events, 150–52, 173–74; see also Aquinas, Thomas, on God's knowledge of evil; Augustine, on God's knowledge of evil immutability of, 153, 178–81 reasons for, 180
 omnipotence of, 275
 passibility of, 40, 223–24; see also suffering theologians' account of, 134
See also Anselm; Aquinas, Thomas; aseity; Augustine; Barth, Karl; divine simplicity
- Greek philosophy, relation to Christian philosophy, 134–35, 179–80, 287–89, 290–91 See also Aquinas, Thomas, his approach to Greek philosophy; Tertullian; Clement of Alexandria
- Habermas, Jürgen, 17
- Hartshorne, Charles, 202, 219–20
- Hegel, G. W. F., 290
- Heidegger, Martin, 256–57, 269
- Helm, Paul, 177–78
- Heschel, Abraham J., 191–94
- Hopkins, Jasper, 68–70
- Hughes, Maldwyn, 201–2
- Hume, David, 20
- idealism,
 Hegelian, 25
- illocutionary acts, 112, 131
- Irenaeus, 247
- John of Damascus,
 on God's impassibility, 208 on the passions, 209
- Kant, 18, 20, 109, 114–16 and the limits of philosophy, 5 as antirealist, 23
 as classical foundationalist, 57 as evidentialist, 56, 57 denial of knowledge of God, 3, 48 Kemp-Smith's interpretation of, 295–96 on antinomies, 66–67
 on atonement, 65
 on evil, 58–59
 on faith, 57
 on forgiveness, 60–62, 63, 64, 67 on fundamental metaphysics, 23–25, 34 on good will, 217
 on guilt, 58, 63, 67
 on grace, 60–61,
 on happiness, 59
 on intuition, 44–45
 on moral progress, 59, 62 on moral purity, 63
 on morality, 57
 and rational theology, 12, 13 on rationally grounded religion, 23, 24–25 on salvation, 57

- Kant (cont.)
 on Summum Bonum, 56–57, 63 strategy for interpreting scripture, 57 use of image of boundary, 23–25, 42–48, 112
- Kemp-Smith, Norman, 295–96
- Kneale, William, 134–35
- Kretzmann, Norman,
 on divine simplicity, 94–95
 on omniscience and immutability, 151
- Lacantius,
 on divine passibility, 184
- Lament for a Son*, 248
- Lewis, David, 140
- liturgical practices, 33
- Locke, John, 20, 21–23 and the evidentialist challenge, 27 his account of reason, 22–25
- logical positivism, 4, 26–27
- Long, A. A., 191
- Maimonides, 20, 38–39
- Mann, William
 on divine simplicity, 96, 104–07
- McCabe, Herbert, 123, 128, 129
- McTaggart, J. M. E., 164–65
- Meinong, Alexius, 87
See also Anselm, compared with Meinong
- Mellor, D. H., 168–69
- metaphysical realism, 18, 25
- Moltmann, Jürgen, 201
- Moore, G. E., 25, 31
- Morris, Thomas,
 on divine simplicity, 98
- natural theology, 8
- natures,
 medieval conception of, 101–08
- ontology,
 constituent v. relational, 100
- Origen,
 on God's passibility, 184
- Paley, William, 20
- passions,
 Stoic conception of, 191–94
See also Aquinas, Thomas, on passions;
 John of Damascus
- perspectival particularism, 19
- philosophical theology, 3, 16, 19, 34 Christian, 19
 within the analytic tradition, 20–31, 50
- philosophy of religion, 2 role of epistemology within, 32 within the continental tradition, 18–19
- Wittgensteinian, 27, 33
- Pike, Nelson, 151
- Plantinga, Alvin, 29, 109
 on God's aseity, 238; see also aseity
 on divine simplicity, 95
 on the ontological argument, 80
- Plato, 135, 293–94
- Plotinus, 23, 38, 91, 114, 185, 221 account of God as unconditioned, 208
 on divine simplicity, 108
- pluralism,
 religious, 33
- properties,
 instances, 96
 instantiating v. exemplifying, 97–98
 propositions,
 not constant in truth value, 144
- pseudo-Dionysius, 115
- reformed epistemology, 28–31
- religion,
 ideal of rationally grounded, 20–25
 Kant on rationally grounded, 23
- Reid, Thomas,
 On the Way of Ideas, 22
- Ricoeur, Paul, 17
- Rist, J. M., 189–90, 196–97
- Russell, Bertrand, 25, 31, 87
- Sartre, J. P., 256–57, 269
- Scripture, 20, 33
 as being one work, 118 distinction between how it presents God v.
 what it claims about God, 117 hermeneutic principle for interpreting, 158–60; see also Augustine, on scriptural interpretation presentation of God, 120, 133, 236 presentation of God as having a history, 157 presentation of God as immutable, 145–54, 161–63
 presentation of God as in time, 145, 155 presentation of God as outside time, 160–61
See also Aquinas, Thomas, on God's relation to time presentation of God as passible, 184, 223 presentation of God as responding, 158 presentation of God as silent, 239–40 presentation of God's intentions for humanity, 252
 Reformers' interpretation of, 295–96
- Smart, J. J. C., 169
- Stump, Eleonore,
 on divine simplicity, 94–95

Cambridge University Press

978-0-521-51465-1 - Inquiring about God: Selected Essays, Volume 1

Nicholas Wolterstorff

Index

More informationIndex

313

- suffering,
 adverbial account of, 206, 243–44
 See also flourishing aligning ourselves with God's, 220 deriving joy from, 207 distinct from grief, 205–7 Swinburne, Richard, 221–22
- temporal array, 137
temporal modality, 140 temporal-order relationships, 140 tense-committed sentences, 143 tense-indifferent sentences, 143 Tertullian, 30
 on heretics and philosophy, 283–85 his views on Christian learning, 292–96 theodicy,
 soul-making, 248–49; see also Ireneaus Tillich, Paul, 36
time,
 A-series and B-series, 164 and having a history, 172 Aquinas' account of God's relation to, 173–74 See also Aquinas, Thomas, on God's relation to time nature of, 163–71
 preceding relation, 138 relation to space, 177–78 simultaneity relation, 138–39 succession relation, 138 tensed theory of, 165 reasons for affirming, 165 tenseless theory of, 165, 166–67 tenseless date theory, 169; see also Smart, J. J. C. token-reflexive theory of, 168 See also Mellor, D. H.
 what it is for something to be in, 135–39 whether Scripture presents God as being in, 160–61; see also Scripture, presentation of God as in time
time-strand, 137
tradition, 22–25, 31
valuing, 219
Whitehead, Alfred, 24
Williams, D. C., 96–100
Wittgenstein, Ludwig, 26
wronging, 29
Zeno, 190