

Index

- Act to Promote Domestic Investment and Regulate Foreign Investment, 158
 adaptation: of posterior beliefs, 51–58; rational updating, 46–47
 Africa: capital account liberalization in, 151–152; financial liberalization in, 176n31; IMF agreements in, 195n16, 205n24; imposition hypothesis of privatization in, 128; nonlearning behavior in, 233; privatization in, 120; reform successes in, 235–236; trade liberalization in, 21n23, 22n23, 105
 Alfonsín, Raúl, 80–81, 232n12, 235n13
 Allende, Salvador, 116–117 alternative hypotheses, policy convergence and learning and, 22–29 anchoring heuristic, policy innovation and, 20
 Ardito-Barletta, Nicolás, 9–10
 Argentina: budget deficits and privatization in, 124; market reforms in, 5–6; privatization in, 118–120; trade liberalization in, 85, 85n18, 86
 Arias, Oscar, 50
 Arriagada, Genaro, 10
 Aspe, Pedro, 22, 80–81, 101–103, 159, 162–163
 Austral Plan, 80–81
 Austria, public enterprises in, 114 authoritarian regimes: capital account liberalization and, 145–157; market reforms and, 12–13, 65–67; probability of entering and sustaining IMF agreements and, 200; trade liberalization and, 98–103 autonomous states: development strategies and, 79n7; market reforms and, 12–13, 13n14 availability heuristic, policy innovation and, 20 average experience in the world variable, trade liberalization and, 96, 96n28 AVERAGE RESULTS variable, sustainability of capital account liberalization and, 166–167
 Azis, Iwan, 10
 balance-of-payments problems: history of IMF agreements and, 183; impact of IMF agreements on, 189, 189n10, 193; International Monetary Fund (IMF) role in, 181–183, 187–188; standby IMF agreements and, 193
 Balcerowicz, Leszek, 223, 232n12, 235n13
 Balladur, Edouard, 120
 Bangladesh, trade liberalization in, 105 bank disincorporation, Mexican narrative of learning and financial liberalization and, 157, 159n16, 160n17, 163
 Bayesian learning: capital account liberalization and, 150; Costa Rican trade liberalization policy and, 38; market reform and, 8–10; operationalization of, 231n10; prior beliefs and, 40–42; rational updating and, 29–30, 38–39

- Bayesian updating, 57n22; posterior beliefs and, 47–58, 68; probit modeling and, 62–64; shock-based learning variable and, 92
- beliefs: learning hypothesis and role of, 38n3; posterior beliefs, 43; prior beliefs, 40–42
- Bennett, Colin, 14
- Biersteker, Thomas, 16
- Blasena, Krieger, 85n18
- Bod, Peter, 9, 223–224
- Bollard, Allan, 12
- bottom-up convergence, economic policy and, 23–24
- bounded learning, 21n23, 22n23; emulation and, 228–229; market reform and, 17, 17n17, 18n18, 22; trade liberalization and, 105n33
- Brazil: import substitution in, 75–76; market reforms in, 5–6, 158; pension system reform in, 21n22, 21n23; privatization in, 118–119; trade liberalization in, 83n16, 83n17, 85, 85n18, 86
- Bretton Woods Conference, 148n7, 183
- Britain: imposition hypothesis of privatization in, 130; privatization policies in, 127, 232
- British Petroleum, 122
- Brune, Nancy, 112, 147n6, 148n7, 149–150, 151n10, 169n24
- budget deficits: impetus to privatization from, 122–124; predicted probability of signed IMF agreements, 204
- Camdessus, Michael, 189
- Campos, Roberto, 85n18
- capital account liberalization: economic growth and, 152, 152n13, 153n14, 157; imprudent behavior in wake of, 171–172; launching and sustainability probability of, 164; learning hypothesis and, 163–167, 226n6; list of countries with, 154–179; open vs. closed capital accounts and variability of economic growth, 153–157; partisan preferences and, 147n6, 148n7; political economy of, 145–157; prior beliefs and, 154–179; proportion of countries with open capital accounts, 151–152; statistical parameters, 154–179; theoretical case for, 177–178; trade liberalization and, 168n21
- capital controls in financial crisis, 162, 162n20, 163; imprudent behavior as catalyst for, 171–172; learning hypothesis and, 168–169
- capital mobility: diffusion as factor in, 144–145; globalization and, 142–145; learning hypothesis and, 33–34, 144; political factors in, 142–143; trade liberalization and, 143–144
- Carazo, Rodrigo, 49, 65
- Cardoso, Fernando H., 5–6, 118–119
- Caribbean, IMF agreements in, 195n16
- case study model, economic policy analysis, 31
- Castillo, Carlos Manuel, 37, 49–50
- cause-and-effect relationships, learning and, 14–15
- Cavaco Silva, Anibal, 119
- Centeno, Miguel, 22
- change teams, market reform and, 13–14
- Chile: export orientation in, 80; global economic integration by, 2; influence on OECD of, 139; market reforms in, 5–6, 9–12; privatization in, 19–21, 115–117, 120, 122, 127; trade liberalization in, 105, 105n33
- Chiluba, Frederick, 8
- China: debt crisis in, 172n27; market reform and debt relief in, 235n13, 237n14
- Chirac, Jacques, 115–116
- Chwioroth, Jeffrey, 147n6, 148n7, 148n8, 149n9
- Clark, Mary, 53
- closed capital accounts, economic growth and, 153–157
- clustering behavior: regional experience and privatization in Latin America and, 138, 138n18; trade liberalization and, 80, 80n11
- coercion: capital account liberalization and, 148n8, 149, 149n9; capital mobility and, 144; privatization policies and, 127–137; probability and sustainability of capital account liberalization and, 164; probability of adopting export

- orientation and, 101–102; trade liberalization and, 105–106
- collinearity in learning variables:
 - default-based adoption of export orientation, 103n30; learning models and, 90n21
- Collor de Mello, Fernando, 8, 118–119
- Colosio, Luis Donaldo, 160
- Communism: global integration and fall of, 2; imposition hypothesis of privatization and, 130; imposition hypothesis of privatization and fall of, 129; interventionism and collapse of, 57; in Latin America, privatization and, 133
- competition: capital account liberalization and, 148–150; interventionist strategies for financial crisis and, 173–175; policy convergence and, 28n30
- conditional distribution of the mean, 42–43
- conditionality: failure of, 185n6; imposition hypothesis and, 227–229; International Monetary Fund (IMF) policies and, 181, 181n1, 183–210
- confidence intervals: predicted probability of policy adoption and, 221–222; for predicted probability of trade liberalization, 98–100
- conjugate priors, 41n7; limitations of, 72n30; posterior beliefs and, 44; sampling techniques for, 69–71
- control variables: policy diffusion and, 63–66; trade liberalization and, 101–103
- Conway, Patrick, 185n6
- Corporación para el Desarrollo de Costa Rica (CODESA)*, 49
- Corbo, Vittorio, 80–81
- Costa Rica: adaptation to regional information and import substitution, 52; coercion and persuasion of policy form in, 63–66; economic development history in, 48–50; posterior beliefs and economic policy in, 47–58; rational learning, 38–39; stabilization program in, 65; trade liberalization, 30; trade liberalization in, 37
- credibility of IMF agreements, governments' belief in, 192
- crisis-based initiation of market reform, 6–9; democratization and, 95–103; government learning, 8–10; interventionist strategies and, 172, 173n28, 175; learning hypothesis and, 167–177, 224–226; Mexican financial liberalization and learning and, 157–163; privatization and, 122–124; trade liberalization and, 88–89
- crisis management, International Monetary Fund role in, 185–186
- criterion of need, IMF policies and, 186n8
- Cruzado Plan, 80–81
- currency crises: in Costa Rica, 49; sustainability of capital account liberalization and, 169–171
- Cypher, James, 117
- Czechoslovakia, privatization in, 101–102, 119n3, 121n4
- DEBT SERVICE variable: predicted probability of signed IMF agreements, 203–204; probability of entering and sustaining IMF agreements and, 200
- debt shock of 1982: economic reform and, 57–58; IMF agreements and, 205–208; IMF participation and, 194; learning hypothesis and, 225–226; as learning variable, 92, 104n32, 105n33; posterior beliefs and, 56–57; probability of entering and remaining under IMF agreements and, 207
- decision problems, policy choices and posterior beliefs, 58–59
- de la Hoz, Martinez, 85n18
- de la Madrid, Miguel, 117, 157–158
- democracies, market reform in, 65–67
- democratization: capital account liberalization and, 145–157; crisis-based market reforms and, 95–103; economic growth and, 229–231; trade liberalization and, 74, 79, 92–94, 105–106
- developing countries: adoption of export orientation in, 94, 95n27; capital account liberalization in, 145–151, 151n10, 151n11, 152, 157; capital mobility and, 143, 143n1, 144, 145n2; democratization and trade liberalization in, 146n5; domestic

- developing countries (cont.)
 politics and economic conditions in, 229–231; economic growth and capital liberalization and, 145–153, 153n14, 157; financial liberalization in, 171n25; learning hypothesis and development strategies in, 81–89; market reform in, 220–234; paradigm shift concerning market reform in, 237–238; trade liberalization in, 85–86
- development financing, IMF role in, 185
- development strategies: debate over ISI vs. EO, 73–74; decisions concerning, 32–33; descriptive statistics for, 76–108; domestic policies and, 78; export orientation vs. import substitution, 75; features and policy instruments table, 75; historical experience and adoption of, 80–81; improvisation and ad hoc responses and, 77n6; institutional factors in, 78–79; international system and, 78; learning hypothesis and, 81–89; list of countries involved in, 76–108; posterior beliefs and learning and, 89–103; prior beliefs and, 107–108; regional growth rates and, 86–87; theoretical description and alternative theories, 75–81; trade liberalization and, 74n1
- Development Strategies Database*, 83–84, 86–88, 90, 94, 101–102, 104
- dichotomous indicators: capital account liberalization and, 150–151; of regime characteristics, 129n13
- dictatorships: development strategies and, 79; probability of entering and sustaining IMF agreements and, 200
- diffusion mechanisms, policy convergence and, 23–24
- disaggregated indicators of openness, 82n15
- dogmatism, learning hypothesis and, 234
- domestic conditions: economic development and, 232; IMF agreements and, 209; learning hypothesis and, 229–231
- Drazen, Allan, 6–7, 104n32, 105n33
- dynamic probit model, 62, 62n27, 64; of capital account liberalization, 164; probability of entering and sustaining IMF agreements and, 200–202; rational updating and, 30
- East Asia: export orientation and, 75–76; IMF agreements in, 195n17; Japan as model for, 103–104; market reforms, 10–11, 11n10, 11n11; trade liberalization and, 21n23, 22n23, 105
- East Central Europe, privatization in, 101–102, 119n3, 121n4
- Easterly, William, 104n32, 105n33
- Echeverría, Luis, 117
- Economic Commission for Latin America (ECLA), 75–76, 80–81; export orientation promotion by, 105–106
- economic growth: capital account liberalization and, 148–150, 152, 152n13, 153n14, 157; domestic politics and, 229–231; growth rates and imposition hypothesis of privatization, 132–133, 133n17; growth rates and volatility of IMF agreements and, 191–192; growth rates with and without privatization, 135–137; impact of IMF agreements on, 189, 190n11, 193; International Monetary Fund (IMF) policies and, 181–183; market reform and, 3n4; open vs. closed capital accounts and variability of, 153–157; open vs. closed regimes and variability of, 76–108; privatization as rationale for, 113–121, 124; rate comparisons for IMF and non-IMF countries, 195–196; trade liberalization vs. trade protectionism and, 98–100; uncertainty, 42–47; volatility of trade liberalization and, 87–88
- economic policy failure, government learning from, 6–9
- Edwards, Sebastián, 57, 80–81
- Effective Exchange Rate (EER), export orientation and, 107–108
- Effective Rate of Protection (ERP), 82n14; export orientation and, 107–108
- Eichengreen, Barry, 147n6, 148n7, 167
- electoral politics: economic growth and, 229–231; GATT membership and variable of, 93–94; market reforms and, 17n16; predicted probability of signed IMF agreements, 204; trade liberalization and, 93

- Elkins, Zachary, 149–151, 168, 168n21, 169n23
- embedded autonomy, development strategies and, 79n7
- empirical analysis; capital liberalization and, 176; learning and, 14
- emulation: adoption of export orientation and, 94; bounded and rational learning and, 228–229; capital account liberalization and, 148–150; global trade liberalization and transition to, 98–100; horizontal policy convergence and, 27, 27n29, 28, 28n29; imposition hypothesis of privatization and, 132–134, 227–229; International Monetary Fund agreements, 93; Japan as model for, 103–104, 104n31, 104n32; learning from others vs. learning from shocks variable, 90–95; policy diffusion and, 63–66, 223–224; privatization policies and, 120–121, 127–137; probability and sustainability of capital account liberalization and, 164; probability of adopting export orientation and, 101–102; probability of entering and remaining under IMF agreements, 199–202; shock experience and, 96–98; sustainability of capital account liberalization and, 166–167; trade liberalization and, 96–98, 98n29, 99n29; transition to export orientation and, 94–95
- Etheredge, Lloyd, 14–15
- European countries: budget deficits and privatization in, 123; Exchange Rate Mechanism (ERM) crisis in, 161; IMF agreements in, 195n16; market reforms in, 9, 11n10, 11n11, 21n23, 22n23; privatization in, 117, 119
- European Monetary Union (EMU), 26n27
- European Union (EU), imposition hypothesis of privatization and, 128–129, 133–134
- Exchange Rate Mechanism (ERM) crisis, 34; in Europe, 161; financial crisis and, 169–171; Mexican narrative of learning and financial liberalization and, 157–163
- “exit option,” capital account liberalization and, 142
- experience: capital account liberalization and, 177–178; East Asian policy change and impact of, 223; emulation and, 223–224; IMF agreements and role of, 209; learning hypothesis and role of, 216–217; market reforms and role of, 11–12; Mexican narrative of financial liberalization and, 159–160; privatization adoption as result of, 120; risk reduction strategy and, 46n17; sustainability of policy and, 61–64; trade liberalization as result of, 105
- explanatory variables, market reforms and, 66–67
- export orientation (EO): Asian success of, 75–76; default-based adoption of, 103, 103n30; East Asian success of, 73; growth increase and 86–87; history in Latin America of, 80–81; import substitution industrialization and, 32–33; Latin American growth rates and, 47–48; learning variables and adoption of, 89–103; limitations in Asia of, 76–77; posterior beliefs and, 52–53, 56–57, 89–103; predicted probability of adoption of, 94; probability of adoption of, 90–92, 94; risk aversion and, 105
- export-promotion policies, global promotion of, 2
- extended model of IMF agreements, 199–205
- external imposition, policy diffusion and, 63–66
- externalities, market reforms and, 220–234
- Figueres, José, 49
- financial liberalization: aspects of, 145n4; crises in wake of, 171; developing countries, 171n25; IMF advocacy of, 185; imprudent behavior in wake of, 171–172; Mexican narrative of learning and crisis from, 157–163
- first-generation economic reform, analysis of, 31
- Fishlow, Albert, 103, 103n30
- fixed exchange rates: capital account liberalization and, 147n6, 148n7; Mexican financial liberalization and, 160–161; proportion of countries with, 151n12
- foreign direct investment (FDI), trade liberalization and, 96–98

- France: privatization in, 115–116, 120; public enterprises in, 114
 Free Democratic Party (FDP), 117
 Frieden, Geoffrey, 146
 Fujimori, Alberto, 8, 118–119, 133
- García, Alan, 8, 10–11, 80–81
 Garnaut, Ross, 11
 Garrett, Geoffrey, 112
 General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade (GATT): coercive power of, 105–106; impact of controls on trade liberalization and, 101–103; top-down policy convergence and, 26n27; trade liberalization and, 93
 Germany: imposition hypothesis of privatization and unification of, 129n14; learning hypothesis and unification of, 226–227; privatization in, 119n3, 121n4
 global convergence: capital mobility, 33–34; privatization policies and, 120–121
 globalization, capital mobility and,
 142–145
 González, Felipe, 5–6, 10–11 government preferences: capital mobility and, 142–143; IMF agreements and, 208–210; learning hypothesis and, 3–4,
 232–233; market reforms and, 5–14;
 Mexican narrative of learning and crisis and, 157–163; policy failures and successes and learning by, 6–9
 Graham, Carol, 10
 Guisinger, Alexandra, 80, 80n11, 95n27, 147n6, 148n7, 149–150, 151n10, 169n24
- Hall, Peter, 14–15, 16n15, 17, 23, 224–226
 Harberger, Arnold, 8–9
 Hawke, Bob, 5–6, 11
 Heckscher–Ohlin theorem, 79n8
 Heclo, Hugh, 14–15
 Hong Kong: export orientation in, 75–76;
 global economic integration by, 2
 horizontal policy convergence: capital account liberalization and, 148–150;
 economic policy and, 26–29;
 mechanisms of, 226–227
- Horn–Wacziarg index of trade
 liberalization, 84
 Howlett, Michael, 14
 Hungary: market reforms and, 9;
 privatization in, 119n3, 121n4 hyperinflation: imposition hypothesis of privatization and, 130; as market reform catalyst, 8, 104n32, 105n33 hyperprivatization, Chilean phenomenon of, 116–117
- ideological preferences: capital account liberalization and, 148n8, 149n9; imposition hypothesis of privatization and, 130, 130n15, 133–134; market reform and, 5–6, 6n6; predicted probability of privatization and,
 134–135; privatization and, 115–121
 Iglesias, Enrique, 11–12, 80–81
 Ikenberry, John, 127
 import substitution industrialization (ISI), 32–33; failure in Latin America of, 75–76; Latin American growth rates and, 47–48; learning from failures of, 73, 103, 103n30; posterior beliefs about, 55–57, 89–103; rate of growth under, 55; volatility as factor in transition to export orientation, 94 imposition hypothesis: emulation and, 227–229; privatization and, 127–137;
 statistical model of, 130–132 impossible trilogy: capital account liberalization and, 147n6, 148n7; capital mobility and, 142–143
 Inclán, Carla, 147n6, 148n7
 India, trade liberalization in, 105
 Indonesia, market reforms in, 9–10 industrialized countries: capital mobility and, 143n1, 145n2; IMF agenda controlled by, 184, 184n4; privatization in, 33
 inflation variables, imposition hypothesis of privatization and, 130n16 information gathering: learning hypothesis and role of, 216–224; rational learning and, 45–46
 institutional factors, development strategies and, 78–79 interdependent policymaking, horizontal policy convergence and, 26–29

- interest groups, market reform and, 7n8
- international comparisons of
 - privatization, 122
- international financial institutions (IFIs):
 - capital account liberalization and, 147–148; imposition hypothesis and, 227–229; learning hypothesis and, 220–238; market reforms and, 10–11; Mexican financial liberalization and, 162–163; pressure for privatization from, 127–137; top-down policy convergence in, 24; international forces, impact on privatization, 112
- International Monetary Fund (IMF):
 - adoption of export orientation and agreements with, 94; agreements by, 32; baseline model of, 189n10; capital account liberalization and, 147–148, 148n7, 148n8, 149n9, 169; coercive power of, 105–106; consequences of agreements with, 189–193; credibility problem for, 186–187; crisis management by, 185–186; criterion of need for, 186n8; debt shock of 1982 and, 205–208; descriptive statistics on agreements, 181n1, 210; development financing role of, 185; economic growth rate comparisons for IMF and non-IMF countries, 195–196; economic policy making and activities of, 181–183; exchange restrictions and controls, 150–151; export orientation strategy and agreements with, 92; extended model of agreements with, 199–205; Fund Executive Board, 184, 184n4; government trade policies and, 3–4; history of agreements with, 183–189; imposition hypothesis of privatization and, 128–129, 133–134, 228, 229n8, 230n9; learning hypothesis and agreements of, 34–35, 193–205, 220–238; legitimacy and credibility of agreements with, 192; list of countries with agreement, 181n1, 210; policy preferences of, 186–189; predicted probability of signed agreements with, 202–203; prior beliefs and, 181n1, 210; probability of entering and remaining under agreements with, 199–202; probability of entering and remaining under IMF agreements during debt shock and, 207; probability of open capital accounts and agreements with, 174–176; proportion of countries under, 191–192; responses to financial crisis by, 172n27; sustainability of capital account liberalization and, 166; top-down policy convergence, 25–26
- international system, development strategies and, 78
- interventionist strategies: adaptation of beliefs and, 52–53; adaptive modeling of, 54–55; export orientation and, 76–77; in financial crisis, 172, 173n28, 175; government posterior beliefs vs. observation and, 55; limitations of, 57; market forces and, 77; privatization and, 133; regional information and, 54–55
- INVESTMENT variable: predicted probability of signed IMF agreements, 204; probability of entering and sustaining IMF agreements and, 200
- inward-oriented industrialization, 1–2
- Japan, Asian emulation of, 103–104, 104n31, 104n32
- Jervis, 17n17, 18n18
- joint learning, imposition hypothesis of privatization and, 132–134
- joint posterior distribution, conjugate prior sampling, 69–71
- Kahler, Miles, 17, 17n16, 25
- Kaunda, Kenneth, 8
- Keeler, John, 7
- Klaus, Václav, 10, 232n12, 235n13
- Kogut, Bruce, 112
- Kubota, Keiko, 104n32, 105n33
- labor, impact of IMF agreements on, 192, 192n12, 193n13
- labor-rich countries, capital account liberalization in, 145, 147n6, 148n7, 157
- Lange, David, 5–6
- Latin America: budget deficits and privatization in, 122–124; capital account liberalization in, 151–152; economic growth rates in, 47–48; export orientation in, 80–81, 85–86;

- Latin America (cont.)
 health reforms in, 19–21; IMF agreements in, 195n16; import substitution and posterior beliefs in, 51; imposition hypothesis of privatization and, 130, 132–133; inward-oriented industrialization in, 1–2; legacy of reform in, 220–238; open capital accounts in, 175n30; posterior beliefs and economic policy in, 47–58; privatization in, 33, 115–120; regional experience and privatization in, 138, 138n18; sustainability of privatization in countries of, 126–132; trade liberalization in, 21n23, 22n23, 85n18, 105n33
- LEARNING FROM AVERAGE EXPERIENCE, OWN variable, probability of trade liberalization and, 96–98, 102–103
- LEARNING FROM AVERAGE EXPERIENCE, WORLD variable, sustainability of capital account liberalization and, 166–167
- LEARNING FROM EXPERIENCE, REGION variable, probability of IMF agreements and, 205
- LEARNING FROM THE EXPERIENCE IN THE WORLD variable, predicted probability of signed IMF agreements, 203–204
- LEARNING FROM THE VARIABILITY OF RESULTS variable: probability of adopting export orientation and, 101–102; rush to free trade and, 92–94; transition to export orientation and, 89–90
- learning hypothesis: capital account liberalization and, 163–167; capital mobility and, 144; debt shock of 1982, 92, 104n32, 105n33; development strategies and, 81–89; economic shocks and, 224–226; financial crisis and, 167–177; by government, market reforms and, 3n3, 5–14; government preferences and, 232–233; horizontal policy convergence and, 26–29; IMF agreements and, 34–35, 189n10, 193–205; imposition hypothesis of privatization and, 127–137; international financial institutions and, 220–238; learning from others vs. learning from shocks, 90–95; legacy of, 35; lessons about, 216–224; limitations of, 29–30; market reform in developing countries, 220–234; Mexican financial liberalization and crisis and, 157–163; neoliberal economic policy and, 3–4; policy convergence and alternative hypotheses, 22–29; posterior beliefs and development strategies in, 89–103; privatization and, 33, 111–113, 121–137; rational and bounded learning, 17–22; reform outcomes and, 232n12, 235n13; social learning, 15–17; trade liberalization and, 81–89, 106; varieties of, 22
- Leblang, David, 147n6, 148n7, 167–168
- leftist ideology: capital account liberalization and, 147n6, 148n7; market reforms and, 5–6
- legitimacy of IMF agreements, governments' belief in, 192
- Levy, Jack S., 14
- López Portillo, José, 117, 157
- Lora, Eduardo, 104n32, 105n33
- macroeconomic environments, capital account liberalization and, 163–167
- Madagascar, import substitution in, 83
- Malaysia, debt crisis in, 172n27
- mandates, market reform and, 7n7
- Manzetti, Luigi, 115–116, 120, 135
- Maravall, José María, 9
- market forces, state interventionism and, 77
- market reform: autonomous states and, 12–13, 13n14; crisis-based initiation of, 6–9; in developing countries, 220–234; economic growth and, 3n4; government learning and, 5–14; ideological preferences and, 5–6, 6n6; limitations of, 220–234; paradigm shift concerning, 236–238; political process of, 12n12, 13n13; privatization as part of, 128–129; regime characteristics and, 65–67; social learning, 15–17
- Markov Chain Monte Carlo techniques, conjugate priors and, 41n7

- May, Peter, 14–15
 McPherson, Jay Muir, 112 mean distribution, prior beliefs, 71 mean-standard deviation preference function, policy choices and posterior beliefs, 59n24
 median voter, economic growth and, 229–231
 Menem, Carlos, 5–6, 8, 133
 Mexican Stock Exchange, 157
 Mexican Treasury Bill (Cetes), 158–160
 Mexico: capital mobility in, 34; experience and financial liberalization in, 223;
 import substitution in, 75–76;
 inward-oriented industrialization in,
 1–2; learning, financial liberalization and crisis in, 157–163; OECD membership of, 122n6; policy innovation in, 22, 22n24; privatization
 in, 114–117, 120, 122
 Mexicobre, 117
 Middle East, IMF agreements in,
 195n16
 Milner, Helen, 104n32, 105n33
 Minushkin, Susan, 158 miraculous performance paradigm, policy choices and posterior beliefs and, 60–61
 Monge Álvarez, Alberto, 37, 49–50 moral hazard, International Monetary Fund (IMF) policies and, 181–183
 multinational corporations (MNCs), capital account liberalization and,
 142–145
 Mundell–Fleming open economy macroeconomics, capital mobility and, 142
 Naim, Moisés, 10–11
 nationalization, privatization as replacement for, 137–139
 National Liberation Party (Partido de Liberación Nacional) (PLN) (Costa Rica), 37; economic policy of, 49
 National Solidarity Program (Mexico), 126 neo-liberal revolution, 2–3 newly industrialized countries (NICs), economic growth in, 73
 New Zealand, market reforms in, 12
 Nigeria, IMF agreements with, 199n19 non-victims with a program: baseline IMF model and, 198–199; IMF agreements and, 188
 normal distribution, conjugate prior sampling, 69–71
 normative issues: learning hypothesis and, 35–36; market reform in developing countries and, 220–234
 North American Free Trade Agreement
 (NAFTA), 161
 NUMBER OF OTHER COUNTRIES
 variable: predicted probability of privatization and, 134–135; predicted probability of signed IMF agreements, 203; predicted probability of trade
 liberalization and, 100–101
 NUMBER variable, policy diffusion and,
 63–66
 Oduber, Daniel, 49
 Olszewski, Jan, 114
 open capital accounts: economic growth and, 153–157; IMF agreements and probability of, 174–175; in Latin America, 175n30; prior parameters for, 154–179; probability of launching and sustainability, 164, 175–176; sustainability of, 169–171; theoretical case for, 177–178
 open trade regime, proportion of countries with, 84
 Organization for Economic Co-operation and Development (OECD): budget deficits and privatization in countries of, 122–124; imposition hypothesis of privatization and, 128–133, 137; Latin American influence on privatization by,
 139; privatization policies and, 33, 114–116, 122n6; sustainability of privatization in countries of, 126–132 orthodox paradox, 77, 77n5
 Ortiz, Guillermo, 22, 159–160
 OWN experience variable: predicted
 probability of signed IMF agreements, 204, 204n23; sustainability of capital account liberalization and, 164–167
Pacto de Solidaridad, 80–81
 Panama, market reforms in, 9–10

- paradigm shift: learning hypothesis and, 224–226; market reform and, 16, 16n15; mixed record of market reform and, 236–238
- Park Chung Hee, 5–6, 76–77
- Partido Revolucionario Institucional (PRI) (Mexico), 160
- partisan preferences, capital account liberalization and, 147n6, 148n7
- par value system, IMF policies and collapse of, 184
- Pastor, Manuel, 192
- past participation variable, probability of entering and sustaining IMF agreements and, 202n22
- per capita income, market reform and, 104n32, 105n33
- Pérez, Carlos A., 10–11
- Peronist government, 5–6
- persuasion, capital account liberalization and, 148n8, 149n9
- Peru: market reforms in, 11; privatization in, 118–119
- peso* crisis, 160–161; Mexican narrative of learning and financial liberalization and, 157, 161n19, 163
- Pinochet, Augusto: economic reforms of, 5–6; privatization under, 115–117, 120, 133
- point estimation: Bayesian rational updating and, 40n4; posterior distribution and, 43n11
- Poland: privatization in, 119n3, 121n4; shock therapy stabilization in, 223
- policy change: dynamic probit and, 62–64; International Monetary Fund (IMF) role in, 181–183; learning operationalization and, 58; predicted probability of adopting and sustaining, 219–222; sustainability of, 61–64
- policy choice: convergence on, 217–219; learning hypothesis and, 58–67, 217
- policy convergence: capital mobility and, 144–145; competition and, 28n30; Latin American trade liberalization and, 81–89; learning and alternative hypotheses and, 22–29; policy choices and, 217–219; privatization and, 127–139
- policy diffusion: capital mobility and, 144–145; dynamic probit model and, 62–64; privatization and, 112
- policy innovation, 21n21; bounded learning and, 19, 19n20, 21; diffusion of, 112–113; experience as factor in, 222; regional experience and privatization in Latin America and, 138, 138n18
- policy makers, rational and bounded learning and, 18–19, 19n19
- policy switches, Bayesian updating and rational decision making and, 53
- political economy, of capital account liberalization, 145–157
- political factors: capital account liberalization and, 142–143; economic success and, 232, 232n11; in financial crises, 171n26; in IMF policies, 187–188; imposition hypothesis of privatization and, 133–134; learning hypothesis and, 226–227; market reforms and government preferences, 5, 7–8; Mexican financial liberalization and, 160–161; policy choices and posterior beliefs and, 60–61; policy diffusion and, 63–66; prior beliefs, 40n6; in privatization, 115–116; in privatization policy, 122–124; probability of entering and sustaining IMF agreements and, 200, 202n21; regime characteristics and policy choices, 65–67; sustainability of privatization and, 126–132
- politics, economic growth and, 229, 230n9, 231
- populist ideology: market reforms and, 5–6; paradigm shift concerning market reform in, 238
- Portugal: IMF agreement, 198; influence of Latin America on, 139; privatization, 119; privatization in, 118
- posterior beliefs: equations for, 44–45; learning and development strategies and, 89–103; learning hypothesis and role of, 216–224; parameters for, 43–44; policy choices and, 58–68; predicted probability of trade liberalization, 98–100; privatization and, 125–137; probit modeling and, 62–64;

- production of, 43; summary statistics, 71–72; updating process, 47–58
- POSTERIOR BELIEFS ABOUT AVERAGE GROWTH, REGION, predicted probability of privatization and, 134–135
- POSTERIOR BELIEFS ABOUT OWN GROWTH variable, trade liberalization vs. trade protectionism and, 99–100
- posterior distribution, point estimates, 43n11
- power distribution, policy preferences and, 65
- pragmatism, privatization policy and, 115–124
- principal-agent theory, privatization and, 114
- prior beliefs: development strategies and, 107–108; economic policy and, 40–42; International Monetary Fund agreements and, 181n1, 204, 210; open capital accounts and, 154–179; parametrization of, 71; policy innovation and, 113; privatization and, 125, 125n10, 137, 140; trade liberalization and, 76–108
- prior sum of squares, 44n15, 45n15
- private capital, IMF policies and rise of, 184
- privatization: basic principles of, 113–121; benefits of, 124, 124n9; descriptive statistics on, 140; in East Central Europe, 119n3, 121n4; economic development and, 77n4, 124; economic growth and, 32; emulation and coercion and, 127–137; in Europe, 117, 119; international forces and adoption of, 112; international proportion privatizers, 122; in Latin America, 116–119; learning hypothesis and, 33, 111–113, 121–137; list of countries adopting, 140; Mexican narrative of learning and financial liberalization and, 158, 159n16, 160, 160n17; miscellaneous motivations for, 115n2; policy diffusion and, 112; political rationales for, 115–116; pragmatic and political factors in, 122–124; predicted probability of, 134–135; prior beliefs and, 125, 125n10, 137, 140; probability of launching and sustaining, 126–132; regional variations, 111, 111n1, 115n2, 121n4
- Privatization around the World*, 121–122
- Privatization Yearbooks*, 121–122
- probit modeling, 40n4; probability of entering and sustaining IMF agreements and, 202n22; sustainability of policy and dynamic probit, 62–64
- psychological factors in decision-making, market reforms and, 7–8, 11–12
- public sector: economic development and, 77n4; horizontal policy convergence and, 27n28; privatization and streamlining of, 113–121
- Quinn, Dennis, 147n6, 148n7, 149–151
- Ramamurti, Ravi, 120
- rates of growth, 44–45, 45n16; import substitution and, 55
- rational learning, 21n23, 22n23; economic policy reform and, 38–39; emulation and, 228–229; imposition hypothesis of privatization and, 137; information sources and, 216–217; legacy on policy change of, 224; market reform and, 17, 17n17, 18n18, 22; policy innovation and, 112–113; privatization and, 125–137; successful decision making using, 67–68, 68n29
- rational updating: learning hypothesis and, 29–30; regional classifications, 28n30, 31n32
- Reagan, Ronald, market reforms under, 5–6
- regime characteristics: development strategies and, 79; dichotomous indicators of, 129n13; electoral politics and, 92–93; EMULATION variable and, 90–92; global trade liberalization and policy change, 98–100; imposition hypothesis of privatization and; as learning variable, 92–94; market reform and, 65–67; for predicted probability of trade liberalization and, 98–100; probability of entering and sustaining IMF agreements and, 200; trade liberalization and, 96–98; World Bank

- regime characteristics (cont.)
 - Development Report classification, 107–108
- regional experience: capital account liberalization and, 151–152;
 - development strategies and, 86–87;
 - emulation and, 223–224; import substitution and export orientation and, 52; intervention and adaptation, debt shock of 1982, 54–55; policy change and, 223; predicted probability of signed IMF agreements, 204; prior beliefs and IMF agreements, 205; privatization and, 111, 111n1, 115n2, 121n4; trade liberalization and, 105
- religious preferences, capital account liberalization and sharing of, 149, 168
- rent-seeking behavior, privatization and, 114
- Report in Issues and Developments in International Trade Policy*, 82
- representativeness heuristic, policy innovation and, 20
- re-privatization, Chilean phenomenon of, 116–117, 122
- RESERVES indicators: baseline model of IMF and, 198n18; predicted probability of signed IMF agreements, 203–204; probability of entering and sustaining IMF agreements and, 200
- reverse causality, capital account liberalization and, 147n6, 148n7
- Ricardo–Viner specific factor model, capital account liberalization and, 146–147
- rightist governments: capital account liberalization and, 147n6, 148n7; imposition hypothesis of privatization and, 129–130; market reform and, 5–6
- risk aversion: import substitution and, 94–95; policy choices and posterior beliefs and, 60–61, 61n25; privatization and, 125–137; risk reduction strategy, 46n17; trade liberalization and, 105
- risk-prone behavior, sustainability of capital account liberalization, 164–167
- Robinson, James, 11–12, 103–104
- Rodríguez, Miguel A., 11
- Rodrik, Dani, 6, 11n10, 102–103
- Rose, Richard, 14–15
- Ruiz Massieu, José Francisco, 160
- Russia, privatization in, 114
- Sachs–Warner trade liberalization measure, 48–49, 74n1, 84
- Salinas de Gortari, Carlos: learning hypothesis and policies of, 80–81, 101–103; Mexican narrative of learning and financial liberalization and, 158–160; privatization efforts of, 115–117, 126–132
- Santín, Osvaldo, 158
- Saney, José, 80–81
- satisficing, bounded learning and, 17n17
- Schamis, Hector, 120
- second-generation reforms, policy analysis, 31, 31n33
- sectoral interests, development strategies and, 78
- security issues, IMF policies and, 186–187
- shared beliefs: rational and bounded learning and, 18–19; social learning and, 17
- shock modeling: learning from others vs. learning from shocks, 90–95; learning hypothesis and, 224–226; of posterior beliefs, 47–58; posterior beliefs and, 56–57
- short-term debts, financial liberalization and, 171
- Silva-Herzog, Jesús, 161n19
- Simmons, Beth, 149–151, 168, 168n21, 169n23
- Singapore: export orientation in, 75–76; global economic integration by, 2
- SIZE coefficients: controls on trade liberalization and, 101–103; trade liberalization policies, 93–94
- size variables, trade liberalization and, 93–94
- social interests, capital account liberalization and, 147n6, 148n7
- socialism, market reforms and, 5–6
- social learning, market reforms and, 15–17, 17n16
- South Asia: export orientation in, 89n20, 90n21; IMF agreements in, 195n16; trade liberalization and, 21n23, 22n23

- South Korea: export orientation in, 75–76;
 global economic integration by, 2;
 limits of export orientation in, 76–77;
 market reforms in, 5–6, 11n10; public enterprises in, 114
- sovereignty costs: IMF agreements and, 188, 209; probability of entering and sustaining IMF agreements and, 202–203
- Spain: influence of Latin America on, 139;
 privatization in, 122
- spatial lagged variables analysis, trade liberalization and capital account liberalization, 168n21
- Srinivasan, T. N., 11n10, 11n11
- Standby IMF agreements, learning hypothesis and, 193, 193n13
- state-owned enterprises (SOEs): in Chile, 116–117; in Latin America, 118–119; Mexican narrative of learning and financial liberalization and, 157–163; in Mexico, 126; in Spain, 117
- statist economic development: in Costa Rica, 49; export orientation and, 76–77; future role of, 236–238; marketization as replacement for, 137–139; policy debates concerning, 73–74;
 privatization and, 133
- statistical parameters: capital account liberalization and, 154–179; descriptive statistics on privatization, 140; economic growth measurement and,
 42–47; International Monetary Fund agreements and, 181n1, 210
- status quo bias against market reform, 8
- Stiglitz, Joseph, 3n4
- Stolper–Samuelson theorem, 79n8; capital account liberalization and, 146
- Stone, Randall, 185n6
- sustainability: of capital account liberalization, 164–167, 169–171; of economic policies, 61, 63n28, 64; of open capital accounts, 175–176;
 predicted probability of policy adoption and, 219–222; of privatization policies, 126–132
- Taiwan: global economic integration by, 2;
 market reforms in, 11n10; public
 enterprises in, 114
- tariff reforms: adoption of export orientation and, 95n27; in Costa Rica, 50, 50n19
- technocratic alignment: successful decision making and, 67–68, 68n29;
 top-down policy convergence, 25, 25n26
- Telmex, 117
- Thailand, privatization in, 101–102
- Thatcher, Margaret, 5–6, 12, 111, 115–116, 120
- third-order change, market reform and, 15–17
- Tomassi, Mariano, 8–10
- top-down policy convergence; Mexican liberalization crisis and, 162–163;
 privatization and absence of, 138
- Toyoda, Ana María, 149–150
- trade liberalization: capital account liberalization and, 167–168, 168n21;
 capital mobility and, 143–144; Costa Rican example of, 37; definitions of,
 81n13, 82n13; democratization and, 74,
 79, 92–94; development strategies and,
 74n1; experience as basis for, 105;
 growth rates and volatility of results, 87–88; IMF policies in support of, 186;
 international comparisons, 37–38, 80;
 learning hypothesis and, 81–89, 226n6;
 list of countries involved in, 76–108;
 measurements of, 82–83, 83n16, 83n17; prior beliefs and, 76–108; probability of, 96–98; variability of economic growth and, 76–108
- Trade Liberalization Database*, 83n16, 83n17, 87–88, 90, 96–98
- Trade Policy Reform in Developing Countries since 1985*, 83
- trade protectionism, economic growth and, 76–100, 108
- transitional probabilities: developmental strategies, posterior beliefs and, 89–103; policy sustainability and, 63n28
- t*-Student distribution: conditional distribution of the mean, 42n9;
 conjugate prior sampling, 69–71
- uncertainty, 38n3; adaptation of beliefs and, 52–53; economic growth and, 42–47; government posterior beliefs vs.

- uncertainty (cont.)
 - observation and, 55; in IMF agreements, 206n25, 208; prior beliefs and, 40–42; rational and bounded learning and, 18–19, 38–39
- unemployment, success of economic reform linked to, 61n25
- United States, domination of International Monetary Fund, 184, 184n4, 186
- universal convergence, 1
- Uruguay, IMF agreement with, 198
- utility criterion, policy choices and posterior beliefs, 59
- VARIABILITY OF RESULTS, OWN, sustainability of capital account liberalization and, 166–167
- variance of mean, prior beliefs, 71
- variance of results: learning and developmental strategies and, 89–90; trade liberalization and, 96, 96n28, 98n29, 99n29
- VARIABILITY OF RESULTS, WORLD:
 - probability of trade liberalization and, 96–98, 102–103; shock experience and, 96–98
- Velasco, Andrés, 8–10
- Venezuela, debt crisis in, 172n27
- veto players model, probability of entering and sustaining IMF agreements and, 202n21
- “victims without a program,” IMF agreements and, 188
- Villegas, Alejandro, 85n18
- Vreeland, James R., 192, 192n12, 193n13, 199–202, 202n21
- Vreeland’s criterion of need, 186n8, 188
- Wade, Robert, 103–104, 104n31, 104n32
- Washington Consensus, 1, 1n1, 1n2;
 - capital account liberalization and, 147–148; International Monetary Fund (IMF) policies and, 181n1, 185, 210; legacy of, 236; market reform proposals of, 11n10; rightist defenses of, 5–6; top-down policy convergence, 24
- Webb, Richard, 11
- Weyland, Kurt, 7–8, 17n16, 19–21, 80n11
- Williamson, John, 9, 11
- World Bank: capital account liberalization and, 149n9; market reform data from, 235; privatization data, 124; regime classification criteria, 107–108
- World Bank Development Report*, 82
- World Bank Privatization Database, 121
- World Development Indicators:
 - probability of entering and sustaining IMF agreements and, 200; trade liberalization and, 96–98
- World Trade Organization (WTO):
 - coercive power of, 105–106; impact of controls on trade liberalization and, 101–103; top-down policy convergence and, 26n27
- YEARS UNDER variable, probability of entering and remaining under IMF agreements, 199–202
- Zapatista* rebellion, 160
- Zedillo, Ernesto, 160–161