Contents

Acknowledgments ix
Textual note xi

Introduction: consummate play 1

PART I “COME . . . AND PLAY”: CHRISTOPHER MARLOWE, BESIDE THE POINT 11
1 Genre, gender, and sexuality in “The Passionate Shepherd” and Tamburlaine 13
2 Submitting to history: Edward II 27
3 “True-loves blood”: narrative and desire in Hero and Leander 39
4 “Thus with a kiss”: a Shakespearean interlude 50

PART II DESIRING WOMEN IN THE SEVENTEENTH CENTURY 59
5 “How strangely does himself work to undo him”: (male) sexuality in The Revenger’s Tragedy 61
6 “My body bestow upon my women”: the space of the feminine in The Duchess of Malfi 71
7 “I(t) could not choose but follow”: erotic logic in The Changeling 87
8 “Old men’s tales”: legacies of the father in ’Tis Pity She’s a Whore 103
Contents

9  The passionate shepherdess: the case of Margaret Cavendish 117

Afterword: for(e)play 131

Notes 134

List of works cited 190

Index 209