

Contents

List of maps	page xiii
Preface to the Second Edition	xv
A note on geography	xix
 PART I Birth of a nation-state, 1800s–1830s	 I
1 Colonial foundations, 1540–1810	3
Development of rural society	5
Mining, manufacturing, trade	14
The colonial elite and its urban setting	18
Church and state	22
A nationality in embryo?	25
Reformers and revolutionaries	29
2 Independence, 1808–30	32
The first creole governments	33
The wars of independence	35
The legacies of revolution	40
The quest for political order, 1817–30	46
3 The conservative settlement, 1830–41	51
Diego Portales	52
The Conservative political settlement	54
The economic settlement	60
The war with the Peru-Bolivian Confederation	63
 PART II The rise of a republic, 1830s–1880s	 71
4 A time of progress, 1830s–1870s	73
Government policy and practice	73
The export economy: mining and agriculture	76
The outward and visible signs of progress	84
The slowly changing face of society	88

x	Contents
	Foreigners and natives	94
	Cities and culture	97
5	The Liberal impulse, 1841–76	104
	Bulnes and the re-emergence of Liberalism	104
	Montt and the Conservative defection	109
	The Liberal-Conservative Fusion	114
	The “new politics”	120
6	Crisis and war, 1876–83	125
	Economic crisis	125
	International crisis	127
	The War of the Pacific	131
	Soldiers and civilians	137
	Economy and society during the war	139
	The war and fiscal policy	142
	Politics and the war	144
	PART III The nitrate era, 1880s–1930s	147
7	The Parliamentary period, 1882–1920	149
	Santa María and Balmaceda	149
	The Civil War of 1891	154
	Parliamentary Republic: economic aspects	157
	Agriculture, manufacturing, copper mining	157
	Nitrates	161
	Inflation and monetary policy	166
	Parliamentary Republic: social aspects	170
	Population, immigration, social change	170
	Urban life: splendors and (especially) miseries	173
	The “German bewitchment”: the Army and education	178
	A glance at culture (1880s–1920s)	181
	Perceptions of national decline	184
	Consolidation of the Parliamentary regime	188
	Riesco, Montt, and the “social question”	194
	The decline of the Parliamentary Republic	197
8	The Lion and the mule, 1920–38	202
	The backwash of the First World War and the 1920s	202
	Alessandri’s first presidency	205
	Military intervention and a new Constitution	209
	The Ibáñez regime, 1927–31	214
	The fall of Ibáñez and the months of turbulence	221
	Alessandri’s second presidency, 1932–38	226

	Contents	xi
PART IV Industrial advance and the dawn of mass politics, 1930s–1960s		235
9 The Radicals, the General of Hope, and the Lion’s Son, 1938–64		237
Pedro Aguirre Cerda, 1938–41		240
Juan Antonio Ríos, 1942–46		243
Gabriel González Videla, 1946–52		246
The General of Hope, 1952–58		251
The second Alessandri, 1958–64		258
10 The industrial impulse, 1930s–1960s		264
The economy during the Radical ascendancy		265
Agriculture at mid-century		265
Mining		268
Industrialization		269
Fiscal policy and inflation		274
The economy under Ibáñez		276
Jorge Alessandri’s economic policies		280
The agrarian question		280
Copper		281
Inflation and fiscal policy		282
Society at mid-century: 1930s–1960s		285
Social structure, new roles for women		285
Population, health, education		288
Urbanization and urban life		291
Mass media, communications, transportation		295
A glance at culture (1930s–1960s)		299
PART V Democracy and dictatorship, 1960s–2000s		303
11 Revolution in liberty, 1964–70		305
Catholic social reformers		305
A “parliament for Frei”		308
Social reforms and economic frustrations		311
Radicalization, polarization, mobilization		320
The “Tacnazo” and the triumph of Allende		325
12 The Chilean road to socialism, 1970–73		330
Toward a socialist economy?		334
The nationalization of copper		334
The acceleration of agrarian reform		337
The nationalization of industry		340
The failure of the UP’s economic strategy		344

xii	Contents
	Confrontation and stalemate	346
	Breakdown and tragedy	352
13	The Pinochet years	359
	Consolidation of the Pinochet regime	359
	The Chilean road to capitalism	364
	The renewal of politics	376
	“Re-encounter with history”	382
14	Re-encounter with history, 1990–2002	390
	Friend of the elves, 1990–94	390
	Neo-liberalism with a human face?	394
	A decade of advance	394
	Tackling the “social debt”	396
	Turn-of-the-century social symptoms	398
	A very brief glance at culture (1970–2000)	403
	Frei II and Lagos, 1994–2002	405
	Glossary of Spanish terms	415
	Initials and acronyms	419
	Further reading	423
	Index	437