I wish to thank all my colleagues and all the teachers who I have worked with and who have contributed knowingly or otherwise to this book. Where possible and appropriate, I have mentioned names explicitly, but I apologise to any whose names I have unintentionally omitted. I am especially grateful to Beate, for her help and patience, Marga, for helping me to understand teachers’ realities better, Françoise, for her insights, Anne Lennon, for her contributions to Tasks 2.1 and 5.2, and to Jon Roberts and Sarah Phillips, for commenting on an early draft. I am also indebted to the staff at Cambridge University Press, including Jane Clifford, Alison Sharpe, Frances Amrani and Julia Harding, and, last but not least, to the Series Editors, Marion Williams and Tony Wright, for their initial and sustained encouragement, as well as their patience and valuable advice throughout the gestation period of this book.
