Who is Advanced Skills for?

- This book is for teachers of advanced-level classes. The material is aimed at learners of English who have completed an upper intermediate general coursebook, and/or have passed the Cambridge FCE (First Certificate in English) or an equivalent exam.
- It can be used as supplementary skills material for students continuing their general English development; or as extra practice material with students preparing for one of the more advanced-level exams, particularly Cambridge CAE (Certificate in Advanced English), or IELTS (International English Language Testing System). The material will help prepare students for many of the tasks they are likely to meet in these exams.
- The book provides development of the four skills as well as a vocabulary and/or grammar focus in most units.

How will Advanced Skills help my students?

- Advanced Skills aims to interest and inform students about a wide range of popular topics through a variety of authentic texts which students will find stimulating.
- Whether or not students are preparing for an advanced-level exam, the tasks in Advanced Skills provide thorough practice in all four skills. Each unit focuses on one main skill but includes tasks which give students the opportunity to practise other skills. For example, in a speaking unit, students may be asked to read a text and then have a discussion about it, or describe the subject of the text in their own words, thereby using reading and speaking skills; or, in a listening unit, students may use a listening text as the basis for a writing task. This integrated skills approach will be of great benefit to students and help them to develop their four skills simultaneously as they would in real life.

How is Advanced Skills organised?

- Advanced Skills is divided into four sections which correspond to the four skills. All four sections explore the same nine themes (Dreams, Technology, Work–life balance, Relationships, Futures, Emotions, Rights and wrongs, Narratives and The unexpected) in nine units. For example, the second unit of each section focuses on the theme of technology:

<tr>

- There is no right or wrong way of working through the book. The thematic links may be exploited by teachers who wish to integrate their skills work, but it is not intended that units are systematically taught in thematic groups of four.
- Many teachers will want to dip into the book from time to time to supplement either a general coursebook or exam practice material.
- There is no particular sequence through the units, although easier texts and tasks tend to appear nearer the beginning of each section.
- Each unit consists of teacher’s notes and one, two or three photocopiable worksheets.
- The teacher’s notes include suggestions for exploiting the material in the classroom.
- Each unit starts with an introductory activity which establishes the theme, before moving on to the main skills focus.
- In most units there is a Language development task, which exploits vocabulary or grammar points from the reading and listening texts, or from the stimulus material in the speaking and writing units. Where appropriate, these sections include practice tasks to activate the language.
- In addition to the nine speaking units, there are many other opportunities for students to practise speaking with one or more partners.
What is the best way to use Advanced Skills in the classroom?

- The teacher's notes for each unit include the following:
  1. a summary of the content of the unit, in terms of skills, task types and language
  2. a brief step-by-step guide to using the material
  3. answer keys (and for the writing units, sample answers to the writing tasks are provided on pages 133–7)
  4. suggestions for additional activities.

- There are between one and three photocopiable worksheets for each unit. Occasionally teachers are asked to cut a single sheet into several pieces to be given out to students separately.

- Timings are suggested in the teacher's notes, but it should be emphasised that these are approximations only. They can be shortened if teachers prefer not to do all the pair and groupwork activities; or extended by using additional activities suggested in the notes. It is expected that students will do the main writing tasks outside class time (i.e. as homework).
