
Contents

Table of cases xiii

Table of statutes xviii

Preface xix

Acknowledgments xxi

- 1 Historical context to migration 1
 - 1.1 Introduction 1
 - 1.2 Historical developments 2
 - 1.2.1 The period before 1778 2
 - 1.2.2 Early white settlement – the first wave 3
 - 1.2.3 The first colonial emigration programs 4
 - 1.2.4 The gold rushes and the second wave 4
 - 1.2.5 Self-government and the ‘White Australia’ policy 6
 - 1.2.6 After the gold rushes 7
 - 1.2.7 The Federation debates 8
 - 1.2.8 Federation and ‘White Australia’ legislation 9
 - 1.2.9 Empire-building – the post-World War I wave 10
 - 1.2.10 Post-World War II 11
 - 1.2.11 Dismantling the ‘White Australia’ policy 12
 - 1.3 The modern immigration debate 13
- 2 Immigration control: an overview 16
 - 2.1 Constitutional foundations 16
 - 2.2 The control model 20
 - 2.3 The advent of current migration legislation 20
 - 2.4 The amended Migration Act and new Migration Regulations 21
- 3 Basic migration legislation and policy 23
 - 3.1 The legislative framework and relationship between the Act and Regulations 23
 - 3.1.1 Entry, stay and departure 24
 - 3.1.2 The nature of a visa 24
 - 3.1.3 Circumstances and conditions of visa grants 24
 - 3.1.4 Controlling the numbers 25
 - 3.2 The structure of the Migration Regulations 25
 - 3.3 Visa class/visa subclass 27
 - 3.4 Gazette notices 28

Cambridge University Press

0521618088 - Migration and Refugee Law: Principles and Practice in Australia

John Vrachnas, Kim Boyd, Mirko Bagaric and Penny Dimopoulos

Table of Contents

More information

vi CONTENTS

- 3.5 Ministerial policy and departmental policies and procedures 28
- 3.6 How to locate visa criteria 29

- 4 The visa system and application procedures 31
 - 4.1 Validity of visa applications 31
 - 4.2 Procedures for dealing with visa applications 37
 - 4.3 Restrictions on visa applications 38
 - 4.4 Family members 43
 - 4.5 Sponsorship and assurance of support 44
 - 4.5.1 Family sponsors and assurers 44
 - 4.5.2 Employer sponsors 45
 - 4.6 Special classes of person 45
 - 4.7 Third-party sources of decision-making power 46
 - 4.8 The DIMIA decision-making process 47
 - 4.9 Evidencing the visa 50

- 5 Family and interdependency migration and other Australia-based visas 51
 - 5.1 Overview 51
 - 5.2 Sponsorship, assurances of support and bonds 52
 - 5.2.1 Sponsorship 52
 - 5.2.2 Assurances of support and bonds 54
 - 5.3 Spouse and Interdependency visas 54
 - 5.4 Other family visa categories 65
 - 5.4.1 Children 65
 - 5.4.1.1 Child (subclasses 101 and 802) 66
 - 5.4.1.2 Adoption (subclasses 102 and 802) 66
 - 5.4.1.3 Orphan relative (subclasses 117 and 837) 69
 - 5.4.2 Parents 70
 - 5.4.3 Aged dependent relatives (subclasses 114 and 838) 73
 - 5.4.4 Remaining relatives (subclasses 115 and 835) 73
 - 5.4.5 Carer (subclasses 116 and 836) 77
 - 5.4.6 Temporary visas for family members of Australian citizens or permanent residents, or eligible New Zealand citizens 81

- 6 Business and investment visas 84
 - 6.1 Overview 84
 - 6.2 Business visa classes and subclasses 85
 - 6.3 Sponsorship 86
 - 6.4 Spouses 87
 - 6.5 Onshore applications 87
 - 6.6 Documentation 88
 - 6.7 Common criteria and definitions 88
 - 6.7.1 Age 89
 - 6.7.2 Business skills points test 89
 - 6.7.3 English language skills 89
 - 6.7.4 Acceptable business activities 90

Cambridge University Press

0521618088 - Migration and Refugee Law: Principles and Practice in Australia

John Vrachnas, Kim Boyd, Mirko Bagaric and Penny Dimopoulos

Table of Contents

More information

- 6.7.5 Overall successful business career 90
- 6.7.6 Ownership interest in a qualifying business 91
- 6.7.7 Main business 94
- 6.7.8 Turnover 96
- 6.7.9 Genuine and realistic commitment 97
- 6.8 Criteria specific to particular visa subclasses 98
 - 6.8.1 Investment visas (subclasses 162 and 165) 98
 - 6.8.2 Established business (residence) visas (subclasses 845 and 846) 99
 - 6.8.3 Business owner (provisional) subclass 163 100
 - 6.8.4 Business skills (provisional) subclasses 161 (senior executive (provisional)) and 164 (state/territory sponsored senior executive (provisional)) 101
- 6.9 Public interest – health and character requirements 102
- 7 Skill-based visas 103
 - 7.1 Overview 103
 - 7.2 Visas based on qualifications and/or occupational skills 103
 - 7.2.1 Offshore 106
 - 7.2.2 Onshore 108
 - 7.3 Temporary visas 110
 - 7.4 Visas based on employer nominations 112
 - 7.4.1 The Employer nomination scheme (ENS) 113
 - 7.4.2 The regional sponsored migration scheme (RSMS) 114
 - 7.5 Labour agreements 115
 - 7.6 Distinguished talent 117
- 8 Temporary visas 120
 - 8.1 Overview 120
 - 8.2 Temporary workers 120
 - 8.2.1 Working Holiday (Temporary) (class TZ) 120
 - 8.2.2 Electronic Travel Authority (class UD) 121
 - 8.2.3 Temporary Business Entry (class UC) 122
 - 8.2.4 Short Stay Sponsored (Visitor) (Class UL) 125
 - 8.2.5 Medical Practitioner (Temporary) (class UE) 126
 - 8.2.6 Domestic Worker (Temporary) (class TG) 126
 - 8.3 Cultural/social (Temporary) (class TE) 127
 - 8.4 Educational (Temporary) (class TH) 132
 - 8.5 Student visas 134
 - 8.5.1 Student (Temporary) (class TU) 134
 - 8.6 Other temporary visas 136
 - 8.6.1 Retirement (Temporary) (class TQ) 137
- 9 Miscellaneous visas 139
 - 9.1 Citizenship 139
 - 9.2 Absorbed person visa 140
 - 9.3 Visitors 141
 - 9.4 Bridging visas 142
 - 9.5 Resident return 146

Cambridge University Press

0521618088 - Migration and Refugee Law: Principles and Practice in Australia

John Vrachnas, Kim Boyd, Mirko Bagaric and Penny Dimopoulos

Table of Contents

More information

viii CONTENTS

- 9.6 Other Australia-based visas 148
 - 9.6.1 Special eligibility 148
 - 9.6.2 Confirmatory (Residence) visa 808 150
- 9.7 Emergency visas 151
- 9.8 Other special visa categories 152
- 10 Common visa requirements 154
 - 10.1 Overview 154
 - 10.2 Health 155
 - 10.3 Character 157
 - 10.4 Exclusion periods and re-entry bans 158
 - 10.5 Visa conditions 158
- 11 Compliance: unlawful non-citizens, removal and deportation 162
 - 11.1 Unlawful non-citizens: an overview 162
 - 11.2 Becoming unlawful 163
 - 11.2.1 Overstayers 163
 - 11.2.2 Entry without authority 163
 - 11.2.3 Cancellation of visas 164
 - 11.2.3.1 Cancellation because of inaccurate information 165
 - 11.2.3.2 General cancellation power 165
 - 11.2.3.3 Cancellation of business visa 166
 - 11.2.3.4 (Automatic) cancellation of student visas 167
 - 11.2.3.5 Cancellation on the basis of bad character 167
 - 11.3 Options for unlawful non-citizens 168
 - 11.4 Consequences of being unlawful: removal and deportation 170
 - 11.5 Offences that can be committed by unlawful non-citizens 171
- 12 History of the Refugees Convention and definitional framework 172
 - 12.1 History of the Convention 172
 - 12.2 The four elements 176
 - 12.3 Protection not a key element: it is external not internal 176
- 13 Refugee and humanitarian visas: the statutory structure 178
 - 13.1 Overview 178
 - 13.2 Onshore applications 179
 - 13.3 Offshore applications 183
 - 13.4 General Provisions 188
 - 13.4.1 Review 188
 - 13.4.2 Health 188
 - 13.4.3 Public interest 188
 - 13.4.4 National interest 189
- 14 Convention grounds 190
 - 14.1 Overview of Grounds 190
 - 14.2 Race 192
 - 14.3 Nationality 194

14.4	Religion	196
14.5	Political opinion	199
14.5.1	Political opinion generally interpreted broadly	200
14.5.2	Political opinion must be known or imputed by the persecutor	201
14.5.3	Political opinion need not be expressed	203
14.5.4	What if the applicant can avoid coming to notice of authorities?	203
14.5.5	Forms of political opinion	205
14.6	Particular social group	206
14.6.1	Formal test	206
14.6.2	Difficulties in practical application of the test	209
14.6.2.1	Infinite number of personal traits	209
14.6.2.2	Group description is context sensitive	210
14.6.2.3	Persecution and group selection	210
14.6.2.4	The history of drafting the Convention is not a useful guide to identifying a particular social group	211
14.6.2.5	In principle guidance can be sought from the humanitarian underpinning of the Convention	211
14.6.2.6	A humanitarian approach supports an expansive definition of 'particular social group'	212
14.6.2.7	Gaining insight into application by looking at previous paradigm examples of limited utility	213
14.6.2.8	Matters that assist in identifying a particular social group	213
14.6.2.9	Nonchalance and dispassion do not lead to differentiation	213
14.6.3	How to spot a particular social group, applying the existing law – a summary	215
14.6.4	Examples of particular social group claims	216
14.6.5	Statutory change to family as a particular social group	217
15	Persecution	220
15.1	Overview of persecution	220
15.2	Overview of relevant statutory principles	221
15.3	Serious harm	221
15.3.1	Overview of legislation	221
15.3.2	Case law prior to statutory changes	222
15.3.3	Likely meaning to be given to serious harm: an examination of statute in light of case law	225
15.3.3.1	Ample scope of divergent judicial interpretations of serious harm	225
15.3.3.2	Towards a narrow meaning of serious harm	228
15.3.3.3	Refugee realities – no appetite for uninvited arrivals	228
15.3.3.4	The flourishing versus subsistence dichotomy	229
15.4	Other elements of persecution: the nexus between the grounds and the serious harm	230
15.4.1	Overview of nexus	230
15.4.2	Nexus elements of discrimination, systematic conduct, motivation and causation	230

Cambridge University Press

0521618088 - Migration and Refugee Law: Principles and Practice in Australia

John Vrachnas, Kim Boyd, Mirko Bagaric and Penny Dimopoulos

Table of Contents

More information

x

CONTENTS

- 15.4.2.1 Discrimination 230
 - 15.4.2.2 Element of motivation 231
 - 15.4.2.3 Systematic conduct 232
 - 15.4.2.4 Causation 233
 - 15.4.3 Prosecution and persecution distinction 234
 - 15.4.3.1 States have unlimited power to prosecute citizens 234
 - 15.4.3.2 Overlaps and tension: prosecution and persecution 236
 - 15.4.3.3 What is a law of general application? 237
 - 15.4.3.4 General laws not persecutory 238
 - 15.4.3.5 Selective enforcement of a law of general application 239
 - 15.4.3.6 The legitimate objective and appropriate and adapted test 240
 - 15.4.4 Unsatisfactory state of existing law regarding nexus elements 242
 - 15.4.5 A new unifying understanding: discrimination as the touchstone where persecution stems from the operation or application of a law 243
 - 15.4.5.1 The nature of discrimination 243
 - 15.4.5.2 Statement of the new test for the requisite nexus between the grounds and the harm 246
 - 15.4.5.3 The notion of a relevant difference 246
 - 15.4.5.4 The legitimate objective and appropriate and adapted test as a synonym for relevant difference 247
 - 15.4.6 A new test or unification of previous principles? 250
 - 15.4.7 Relevance of proposed test where persecutory conduct is not pursuant to legal standard 251
 - 15.4.8 Non-state agents: failure of state protection 251
 - 15.4.9 Personal responsibility to avoid persecution 253
- 16 Well-founded fear of persecution 254
- 16.1 Overview 254
 - 16.2 The subjective element 254
 - 16.3 The objective element 255
 - 16.4 Fear must be objective and subjective 256
 - 16.5 The relevant time at which risk is assessed and relevance of past events and sur place claims 257
 - 16.6 Relocation 260
- 17 Limits on protection of refugees – cessation, exclusion exceptions and protection by another country 263
- 17.1 Overview of exclusion, cessation and exceptions 263
 - 17.2 Cessation: article 1C 264
 - 17.2.1 Articles 1C(1)–(4) voluntary actions by refugee 265
 - 17.2.2 Articles 1C(5)–(6) changed country circumstances 266
 - 17.2.2.1 Change must be material/substantial and not transient 266
 - 17.2.2.2 ‘Circumstance’ not to be interpreted narrowly 267
 - 17.3 Article 1D 270
 - 17.4 Article 1E 271

17.5	Article 1F	272
17.5.1	Overview of article 1F	272
17.5.2	Article 1F(a) – crimes against peace, war crimes, and crimes against humanity	273
17.5.2.1	Crimes against peace	273
17.5.2.2	War crimes	274
17.5.2.3	Crimes against humanity	278
17.5.3	Article 1F(b) – serious non-political crimes	279
17.5.3.1	When is a crime serious?	280
17.5.3.2	Meaning of (serious) non-political crime	282
17.5.4	Article 1F(c): acts contrary to the purposes and principles of the United Nations	285
17.5.5	Evidential issues and the scope of individual liability	287
17.5.6	Analysis of Article 1F	289
17.5.7	Expulsion: articles 32 and 33	290
17.6	Country of reference and effective protection in another country	293
17.7	Third country (or effective) protection	294
17.7.1	Common law	295
17.7.2	Statute	297
18	Time for a fundamental re-think: need as the criterion for assistance	300
18.1	Overview: time to stop paying homage to the Convention and to fix it	300
18.1.1	Refugee law – not humanitarian law – is the appropriate vehicle for change	301
18.1.2	The implications of finite international compassion – proper targeting of refugees critical	302
18.1.3	History of Convention inevitably resulted in flawed definition	304
18.2	The problem with the Convention Grounds	305
18.3	An alternative definition	306
18.3.1	Universal moral standards should underpin the new definition	306
18.3.1.1	Overview of moral theory	306
18.3.1.2	New approach not contingent on acceptance of particular moral theory	307
18.3.2	Deontological rights-based theories underpinning the new definition	307
18.3.2.1	The influence of rights-based theories	307
18.3.2.2	The absence of a foundation of rights	309
18.3.2.3	Explanation for the appeal of rights-based theories	310
18.3.3	Consequentialist underpinning to new definition – the preferred approach	311
18.3.3.1	Interlude – criticisms of utilitarianism	312
18.3.3.2	Horror scenarios not that bad	313
18.3.3.3	Utilitarian rights	313
18.3.4	Ramifications for a new definition	315
18.3.4.1	Repeal of grounds	315
18.3.4.2	Hierarchy of human interests – life and liberty as fundamental	315
18.3.4.3	Where to draw the line?	316

Cambridge University Press

0521618088 - Migration and Refugee Law: Principles and Practice in Australia

John Vrachnas, Kim Boyd, Mirko Bagaric and Penny Dimopoulos

Table of Contents

More information

xii	CONTENTS
18.4	The preferred definition 317
18.4.1	Proposed definition 317
18.4.2	The concept of persecution is made (effectively) redundant 317
18.5	Concluding remarks 318
18.5.1	Practical obstacles to reform 318
18.5.2	The proposed definition is not a complete solution 319
19	The determination and review process for migration and refugee decisions 321
19.1	Merits review 321
19.2	Decisions reviewable by the MRT, RRT and AAT 321
19.3	Judicial review 322
19.4	Original jurisdiction of the High Court 323
19.5	Background to enactment of privative clause 323
19.6	Privative clause 327
19.7	Ministerial intervention 328
19.8	Commentary on current state of judicial review of migration and refugee decisions 329
Index	331