The marketing mix

The marketing mix is the combination of techniques used to market a brand. The techniques are often called the Ps. Originally there were four Ps:

- Product (or service): what you sell, and the variety or range of products you sell. This includes the quality (how good it is), branding (see Units 16–18), and reputation (the opinion the consumers have) of the product. For a service, support for the client after the purchase is important. For example, travel insurance is often sold with access to a telephone helpline in case of emergency.
- Price: how much the product or service costs.
- Place: where you sell the product or service. This means the location of your shop, or outlet, or the accessibility of your service – how easy it is to access.
- Promotion: how you tell consumers about the product or service. The promotional mix is a blend of the promotional tools used to communicate about the product or service – for example, TV advertising.

Today some marketers talk about an additional four Ps:

- People: how your staff (or employees), are different from those in a competitor’s organization, and how your clients are different from your competitor’s clients.
- Physical presence: how your shop or website looks.
- Process: how your product is built and delivered, or how your service is sold, delivered and accessed.
- Physical evidence: how your service becomes tangible. For example, tickets, policies and brochures create something the customers can touch and hold.

Marketing a new product

A small educational games company is launching a new game to teach English vocabulary to beginner learners. The marketing manager, Dominic Dangerfield, is making a presentation using PowerPoint slides.

The Turnover Game

PRODUCT:
- Innovative way to learn new vocabulary
- Launch: how we are planning to introduce the product onto the market

PLACE
- Distribution: high street retailers and mail order via website and catalogues
- Delivery: five days by mail order or straightaway in shops

PROMOTION
- Advertising: in children’s magazines
- Direct marketing: insert catalogue in Parent magazine

PEOPLE
- Customers: educated, city-dwellers with pre-teen children, school teachers
- Competitors: they have a larger sales force to sell their products

PRICE
- Premium pricing: 20% above market average for a CD-ROM
- Special deals: 15% discount for schools

Note: For more information on sales promotion, see Unit 41.

AIDA

AIDA is an acronym which represents the steps a marketer takes in order to persuade customers to buy a product or service.

| Attention | Marketing must first attract the customers’ attention to the product. Customers become aware of a product and know it is available. |
| Interest | Then, marketing must create an interest in the product. Customers will develop an interest in the product. |
| Desire | Next, marketing must develop a desire to own or have the product so that customers actively want the product. |
| Action | Finally, marketing must prompt action to purchase, so that customers take steps to buy the product – for example, by going to the shop or ordering it online. |

SWOT analysis

Before entering the marketplace it is essential to carry out a SWOT analysis. This identifies the strengths and weaknesses of a product, service or company, and the opportunities and threats facing it. Strengths and weaknesses refer to the product itself and are considered as internal factors. The external factors, referring to the marketplace, are opportunities and threats.

This is a SWOT analysis of PetraServe, a company which runs motorway service stations.

SWOT analysis

STRENGTHS
- Superior distribution network – we have one of the best.
- We are the specialist in long-distance petrol needs for lorry and truck drivers – we have experience, knowledge and skill.
- Consumers see us as a quality brand.
- Innovative loyalty programme that’s unique in the market.
- We are a profitable company – we’re making money.
- Highly recognizable brand.
- A global brand.

WEAKNESSES
- Undifferentiated offer in terms of basic product – petrol is the same whatever the brand.
- Lack of new products – we need more.
- Ineffective leverage of specialist image – we don’t use our specialist image well.
- Inferior communication – we could communicate better.
- Damaged reputation for petrol and fossil fuels – they have a bad image.
- Consumer loyalty is weak.

OPPORTUNITIES
- Developing market for service station shop (confectionery, car maintenance products, etc.).
- Gap in the market: hybrid cars and electric cars will need fuel.
- Huge potential for growth – there is a lot of room to expand into new markets.

THREATS
- Our main competitor is strong.
- Price war in the fuel market is becoming more threatening – all our competitors are cutting prices.
- Emerging trend towards hybrid cars and electric cars.
- Consumer fears about environment and pollution.

SWOT and marketing strategy

Pat Albright is the senior marketing manager for PetraServe. She’s presenting her marketing strategy to the board. The strategy was shaped by the SWOT analysis above.

‘We need to exploit our strengths by making the most of our distribution network and loyalty programme. If we can also build on strengths such as our brand image and current profitability, then it’ll be easier to address, or deal with, weaknesses such as the lack of new products. We need to anticipate the threat of new hybrid cars and seize the new opportunities this will bring in terms of providing service points for these cars. The potential price war in the fuel market poses a serious threat and we will need to minimize the weaknesses this may create. Our sector is also under threat from the trend towards greater consumer concerns about the environment, but I believe we can create an opportunity by strengthening our communication and informing consumers about what we’re doing to preserve the environment.’
3.1 The extracts below are from a SWOT analysis. Do they describe strengths, weaknesses, opportunities or threats? Look at A opposite to help you.

1. Competition is growing in this market, which could lead to a price war. There are now a lot of sites that offer the same service and product categories as Amazon. Amazon is a global brand but in some local markets the main competitor could be stronger and preferred by consumers.

2. Amazon has added a lot of new categories, but this may damage the brand. For example, offering automobiles may be confusing for customers. Due to increased competition, the offer is undifferentiated.

3. In 2004 Amazon moved into the Chinese market. There is huge potential here. In 2005 Amazon launched a new loyalty programme, AmazonPrime, which should maximize purchases from the existing client base.

4. Amazon is a global brand, operating in over ten countries. It was one of the first online retailers and today it has an enormous customer base. It has built on early successes with books, and now has product categories that include jewellery, toys and games, food and more. It has an innovative Customer Relationship Management programme.

1. Currently, the company is under ______________ from its main competitors.
2. In order to grow, the company will have to create new ______________, not just exploit existing ______________.
3. We need to minimize ______________ and ______________.
4. To remain ahead of the competition we will need to anticipate ______________ such as increased raw material costs.

3.3 Correct the mistakes using words and expressions from A and B opposite.

1. The brand is very strengthened.
2. Today, competitor fears about health are one of the biggest threats to the processed food sector.
3. An undifferentiated offer will weakness the company in the short term.
4. A clear opportunity is a gape in the market.
5. We may be threated by the emerging trend towards online shopping.
6. A war of prices has weakened our profitability.

Marketing strategy and the marketing plan

Marketing strategy vs. marketing plan

A company’s marketing strategy describes how it will position itself and the products it sells or the services it provides in the competitive marketplace. The strategy includes a discussion of target markets, product and pricing policies, and proposed marketing and promotional initiatives (see Units 1–2 for more about the marketing mix).

The company’s marketing plan is the written document which details the marketing methods selected (advertising, price promotions, etc.) and specific marketing actions or marketing activities (for example, a back-to-school promotional offer). It also examines the resources needed (both financial and human) to achieve specified marketing objectives, such as an increase in sales or a successful product launch, over a given period of time.

Developing the marketing plan

You can develop a marketing plan using the stages known as AOSTC (Analysis, Objectives, Strategies, Tactics and Control).

Objectives

Marketing goals

Set SMART objectives

- Specific – Be precise about what you are going to achieve.
- Measurable – Quantify your objectives.
- Achievable – Are you attempting too much?
- Realistic – Do you have the resources to make the objective happen (manpower, money, machines, materials, minutes)?
- Timed – When will you achieve the objective? (Within a month? By February 2015?)

Strategies

The approach to meeting the objectives

- Which market segment?
- How will we target the segment?
- How should we position within the segment?

Tactics

Convert your strategy into the marketing mix, including the 4 Ps

- Product
- Price
- Place
- Promotion

Control

Tracking

How the success of the marketing plan will be measured (see Unit 24). How each marketing activity will be assessed.

Marketing ethics

A  Social marketing

Social marketing is the use of marketing techniques to convince people to change their behaviour for their own good or for the benefit of society. Encouraging smokers to stop smoking or persuading people to eat more fresh fruit and vegetables are examples. The aim of social marketing is to minimize social problems such as crime or poverty.

B  Corporate social responsibility (CSR)

The advantages for a company of being socially responsible – that is, taking positive actions for the benefit of its staff and society as a whole – include enhanced brand image, and greater ease in attracting staff. There are different ways for a company to show corporate social responsibility (CSR).

- Cause related marketing (CRM) is when a company donates money to a charity, a non-profit organization or a good cause, such as UNICEF or Oxfam. The brand is then associated with the charity. For example, a US non-profit wild cat sanctuary, Big Cat Rescue, wants to create a marketing partnership with another organization:

  Big Cat Rescue is looking for the right corporate partner for a mutually beneficial cause related marketing campaign. We need financial donations to be able to afford to make our good work more effective. Today most of this funding comes from private individuals. We are looking for a corporate partner that shares our principles and values.

Note: The abbreviation CRM also refers to Customer Relationship Management – see Unit 23.

- Green marketing is the development and distribution of eco-friendly, or environmentally friendly, goods – for example, washing powder that is not harmful to the environment. 6 degrees.ca is a Canadian web-based forum that promotes green marketing and environmental protection:

  6 degrees.ca believes that if a business is behaving in an ethical or moral way then they will contribute to environmental sustainability. Sustainable development is development that meets the needs of today without compromising the ability of future generations to meet their needs. Responsible citizens are aware of environmental concerns such as global warming, and act to protect the environment.

- Responsible purchasing is another way that a company can build or maintain a good reputation. Companies can refuse to buy materials or goods made using child labour or that have been tested on animals. As well as showing concern for human rights and animal testing, a company can implement a policy of sustainable purchasing and only buy products that come from renewable sources.
5.1 Make word combinations using a word from each box. Two words can be used twice. Look at A and B opposite to help you.

The following factors have a direct impact on the company and its stakeholders: consumers, employees, shareholders and suppliers. The company has an influence over these factors.

| consumers | A company must understand consumer needs and meet them. |
| competitors | You must differentiate your brand from your competitors’. |
| employees | Employing the right people and keeping them motivated is essential. Training and development play a key role in the service sector. |
| media | Positive or adverse (negative) media attention can seriously affect an organization. Consumer programmes on TV and consumer magazines that people read have a powerful effect on the marketplace. |
| shareholders | It is important to satisfy shareholders’ needs without harming the brand in the long term. |
| suppliers | Changes in the price or quality of raw materials – for example wood, or metals – will affect the marketing mix. Good relations with suppliers will make business easier. |

The macro environment: STEP analysis

A STEP analysis (also known as a PEST analysis) looks at sociological, technological, economic and political factors in the market environment on a macro level – often looking at a particular country or region. The relationship between the company and these factors is indirect. This is a STEP analysis for an online supermarket in Britain.

France has one of the highest (3) fertility rates in Europe (1.9 children per woman) and a large proportion of French mothers go back to work, reflecting changes in (4) gender roles. Men are almost as likely as women to do the shopping for the family and take care of the children.

The dominant (5) religion is Catholicism, but there is a large Muslim community. The religious beliefs do not significantly affect the marketplace, except at Christmas and Easter time when the demand for Christmas trees and chocolate increases dramatically.

Internet penetration is high: most households own a computer and have high speed internet access. This has opened up new channels of (6) communication and there are now several internet grocery stores.

Nearly all teenagers own a mobile phone and they are increasingly using SMS messages to keep in touch with their peers. Marketing campaigns are beginning to exploit this line of (7) marketing by sending SMS messages to their audience.

France is a member of the European Union and as such has trade (1) opportunities with the other members. It has one of the worst unemployment (2) situations in Europe and the government is keen to bring this down.

France has one of the highest (3) fertility rates in Europe (1.9 children per woman) and a large proportion of French mothers go back to work, reflecting changes in (4) gender roles. Men are almost as likely as women to do the shopping for the family and take care of the children.

The dominant (5) religion is Catholicism, but there is a large Muslim community. The religious beliefs do not significantly affect the marketplace, except at Christmas and Easter time when the demand for Christmas trees and chocolate increases dramatically.

Internet penetration is high: most households own a computer and have high speed internet access. This has opened up new channels of (6) communication and there are now several internet grocery stores.

Nearly all teenagers own a mobile phone and they are increasingly using SMS messages to keep in touch with their peers. Marketing campaigns are beginning to exploit this line of (7) marketing by sending SMS messages to their audience.
Legal aspects of marketing

Legal definitions
The World Intellectual Property Organization gives the following definitions:

Intellectual property refers to creations of the mind: inventions, literary and artistic works, and symbols, names, images and designs used in commerce. Intellectual property is divided into two categories:

1. Industrial property includes patents, which give the exclusive right to make, use and sell an invention in a given geographical area; trademarks (words or symbols that differentiate a company); and industrial designs. A granted patent gives patent protection for 20 years in the UK. After that time you must renew the patent. In order to trademark, or register your trademark, you will need to complete a registration process.

2. Copyright protects literary and artistic works. Copyright protected work includes novels, plays, films, musical works, artistic works such as drawings, photographs, and architectural designs. Copyright protected work is said to be subject to copyright.

Note: The copyright symbol: © The trademark symbol: ™ The registered trademark symbol: ®

Legal problems
Legal problems may arise if another person has used copyright protected work without the copyright owner’s (or holder’s) permission. The UK Patent Office says:

‘Intellectual property (IP) crimes include counterfeiting and piracy. Counterfeiting is deliberate or wilful trademark infringement and piracy is wilful copyright infringement. Infringement means reproducing copyrighted work without permission from the IP owner.’

If a trademark or copyright holder believes that another person has made unauthorized use of a trademark or copyright, then this may lead to a lawsuit, where one company takes another to court to enforce the trademark or copyright. The infringer, the person who has broken the copyright, may have to pay damages or compensation to the trademark holder, normally financial.

Most company websites include a page called terms and conditions or copyright information. Visitors to the site must agree to the terms and conditions. The terms and conditions usually contain what a visitor may download or take from the web page and post or upload to the web page, and a disclaimer to say the company is not legally responsible for the misuse of its web pages.

C
The Consumer Protection Act
The Consumer Protection Act is a law in the UK that protects the consumer from faulty or defective products, or products that are not as safe as they are generally expected to be. Consumers are legally entitled to goods of a satisfactory quality. Producers, suppliers and importers are liable for – that is, responsible for – the products they sell. Death, personal injury – involving physical damage to a person – and damage to private property are covered under the act.

Enforcement of the act – that is, making sure the act is respected – is the job of the trading standards officer. Businesses need to monitor and control their produce to make sure they are fulfilling, or carrying out, all safety regulations.

A central part of the law is product liability, which means that any person who is injured or physically hurt by a defective product does not have to prove a manufacturer negligent – that is, at fault – before suing, or taking the manufacturer to court.

Types of research

Marketing research is the process of gathering information about a market, analysing it and interpreting it. Although the term market research is often used to mean the same thing, technically it only refers to research into a specific market. Consumer research – used to discover behaviour patterns (how people act) and customer needs (see Unit 20) – is an essential element of marketing research. Motivation research investigates the psychological reasons why individuals buy specific types of merchandise, or why they respond to specific advertising appeals.

There are two main methods of consumer research:

- Desk (desktop) research or secondary research: an analysis of the information you can find easily without leaving your desk. Examples include the internet, books, newspapers, magazines, and government statistics.

- Field research or primary research: involves talking to people and finding out what they think about a market, a product, a business sector, etc. It is usually carried out by market research institutes.

Consumer research can be either qualitative or quantitative. In qualitative research, small group discussions or in-depth interviews with consumers are used to understand a problem better. Quantitative research involves collecting, or gathering, large samples of data (for example, on how many people use different products), followed by statistical analysis – examining, or analysing, the data. Quantitative research is often used to investigate the findings from qualitative research.

Note: The singular noun is (an) analysis, and the plural is analyses. Data is used as both an uncountable noun and as a plural noun. The data is interesting. The data show interesting trends. The activity of analysing data can also be referred to as mining data.

Research methodology

A student has made notes while reading a book on marketing research techniques.

- Focus groups: small groups from the target group plus one moderator to mediate or run the session. The moderator prepares questions for the session.

- Package test: used to test ideas for new packaging; could be in a focus group.

- Taste test: used to test what consumers think about new flavours.

- Home test: consumers try the products at home, in a real situation.

- Self-administered questionnaire: is completed (or filled in) by the respondent, and an interviewer-administered questionnaire is filled in on behalf of the respondent by an interviewer.

- Telephone surveys: are carried out by telephoning the respondent and asking questions.

- Mail survey: is mailed to the respondent, who completes it and posts it back.

- Online surveys: are administered on the internet.

- Mystery shopping: a person poses as a consumer and checks the level of service and hygiene in a restaurant, hotel or shop.

- Omnibus surveys: a market research institute carries out (or conducts) research for several companies at the same time. A long survey is given to respondents, some institutes have a panel of existing respondents who are accustomed to answering the surveys.

Understanding trends and changes

Maggie Potters has just completed a survey of consumer ratings for a brand of mobile phones and is making a presentation to the phone manufacturers.

‘The graph shows consumer ratings of the product over a ten-year period. You can see that after the launch of the product the ratings rose to 33%. The trend was stable until the arrival of a major competitor in the market. This led to a slight fall in approval ratings. The relaunch of the brand invigorated the product and so you can see ratings rising to 60%, the ratings doubled. However, reports in the national press have had a negative effect on the brand image and approval ratings have plummeted. Compared to the same period last year, a significantly higher number of consumers have a low opinion of the product and the brand image. The percentage of dissatisfied respondents has trebled. Although this seems to be very negative, your initial guesstimates, your predictions before you had the figures, were much worse.’
9.1 Read the extract from a survey of blog readers by Blogads, and correct any mistakes in the sentences below. Look at A opposite and Appendix III on page 110 to help you.

Thanks to the 17,159 blog readers who responded to our survey! This survey shows that blog readers are older and more affluent than most optimistic guesstimates: 61% of blog readers responding to the survey are over 30, and 75% earn more than $45,000 a year. Moreover, blog readers are even more cyber-active than we’d hoped: 54% of their news consumption is online. 21% are themselves bloggers and 46% describe themselves as opinion makers. And, in the last six months, 50% have spent more than $50 online on books, and 47% have spent more than $500 online for plane tickets. Blog readers are big media consumers: 21% subscribe to the New Yorker magazine, 15% to the Economist, 15% to Newsweek and 14% to the Atlantic Monthly. They are also far more male – 79%! – than we expected, versus 56% of NYTimes.com’s readers.

1 Three quarters of the respondents earn more than $45,000 a year.
2 Almost half of their news consumption is online.
3 A mere 79% of respondents are male.
4 One out of two respondents has spent more than $50 online on books.
5 The survey suggests that all bloggers are over 30.

10 New product development 1

A Idea generation

Idea generation is the systematic search for new product ideas. It is the first step in the new product development (NPD) process. NPD is essential for companies to stay competitive. Ideas for product innovation can come from many sources – for example, internal brainstorming (see Unit 12), distributors, or increasingly from customers. Many companies are adopting a customer-driven or customer-centric marketing approach, focused on identifying customer demands (what customers are asking for) and understanding consumer needs (what customers require to solve a particular problem). Market research techniques (see Unit 8) are used to identify gaps in the market.

Throughout the NPD process, marketers work closely with research and development (R&D) to create original products or to modify or improve existing products. New recipes (for example, Vanilla Coke) and limited or special editions (for example, Christmas tea) are examples of product improvements and product modifications. The product innovation may target a mass market or a specific niche market – products for left-handed people, for example.

B Idea screening

Launching new products is a risky business, so new product ideas are screened to select, or spot, potentially successful product ideas. A company has to assess which ideas are viable (will survive in a competitive marketplace), technically feasible (the company has the skills and resources to produce them), and profitable (will make money). The company also considers overall demand – how much they can expect to sell.

C Concept development and testing

An attractive idea is developed into several different product concepts. Concept testing measures customer response to a new product – what customers think of it – and gives an indication of the level of consumer acceptance – that is, how readily consumers will use the product. The objective is to successfully introduce the new product onto the market or penetrate the market, and to minimize the research and development costs.

D Marketing strategy and business analysis

The marketing strategy (see Unit 4) describes how to penetrate the market. You must decide which route to market is best for your product or service. You can produce it yourself, you can sell the idea, or you can license the product to another company to produce and market.

Before moving on to the product development phase (see Unit 11), businesses need to assess the financial attractiveness of the new product idea. Companies estimate the sales volume (how much they will be able to sell), the selling price (what consumers will pay for the product or service) and revenue expectations (how much income the product will generate).
