Arun Kumar had never shaken hands with a foreigner nor needed to wear a necktie. He vaguely thought that raising a toast had something to do with eating bread. But Mr. Kumar, 27, and six other engineers were recently recruited by the Hyderabad offices of Sierra Atlantic, a software company based in Fremont, Calif. And before they came face-to-face with American customers, the new employees went through a challenging four-week training session aimed at providing them with global-employee skills like learning how to speak on a conference call and how to address colleagues.

As more and more service jobs migrate to India, such training programs are increasingly common. Sierra Atlantic says that one-fourth of its 400 employees working out of the Hyderabad offices are constantly interacting with foreigners.

For Sierra and others, the training in Western ways is intended not only to help employees perform daily business interactions with American or European colleagues and customers but also to help the companies transcend their image as cheap labor.

“Your interaction with people of other cultures will only increase,” Colonel Gowri Shankar, Sierra’s trainer, told Mr. Kumar and half a dozen other young engineers, “and you should be equally at ease whether in Hyderabad or Houston.” The Sierra programmers listened attentively as Colonel Shankar listed common complaints: speaking one of India’s many languages in front of foreigners, questioning colleagues about their compensation, and cracking ethnic jokes. He is uncompromising on punctuality and protocol. “Americans are friendly, but do not slap an American on his back or call him by his first name in the first meeting,” said Colonel Shankar.

Some companies are already seeing the benefits of the training. Sierra said that in February, its Indian unit won a bid against an Indian competitor because the Sierra employees were seen as a better fit. “It all adds up to better rates and bigger projects,” said the project leader, Kalyani Manda.

Indian Companies Are Adding Western Flavor

DISCUSSION

What is your reaction to the article?
Do you think Sierra Atlantic’s training policy for its Indian employees is a good example of how to motivate and train staff?
How would you feel if you had to change your style of dress or behavior to suit the business culture of a foreign employer?
In the United States, there are laws regulating what types of questions a recruiter can ask. Which of the questions above do you think are illegal in the U.S.?

DISCUSSION

What questions should a recruiter NOT be allowed to ask?
What interview questions are illegal in your country?
Are men and women asked the same questions in interviews?
If not, is this fair? Is this legal?
Listening 2

Read the following responses given during a job interview. What questions do you think the interviewer asked? Now listen to the interviewer’s questions (A–G) and match them with the correct response. Be careful, two questions are not answered!

1. The ideal supervisor has strong leadership skills. She or he inspires all members of the team to strive for maximum results.
2. Well, I enjoy team sports. I’m captain of a soccer team. I also like playing chess and participate in amateur tournaments.
3. Currently I head a team of eight people. I manage their schedules, oversee their results and conduct training seminars.
4. Since I was promoted to international sales, I’ve been working hard on my foreign languages.
5. I’m highly motivated and dedicated to improving both my personal performance and that of the company. I get a lot of satisfaction out of seeing a group of people achieve a common goal.

Which two questions have not been answered? Write out the questions.
