

Contents

|                                                                                                                                                |          |
|------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|----------|
| Contributors                                                                                                                                   | page vii |
| Prologue – Predictive toxicology: a new chapter in drug safety evaluationJinghai J. Xu and Laszlo Urban                                    | xi       |
| I: SPECIFIC AREAS OF PREDICTIVE TOXICOLOGY                                                                                              |          |
| 1 The human predictive value of combined animal toxicity testing: current state and emerging approachesHarry M. Olson and Thomas S. Davies | 1        |
| 2 Screening approaches for genetic toxicityJiri Aubrecht and Jinghai J. Xu                                                                 | 18       |
| 3 Cardiac safetyMartin Traebert and Berengere Dumotier                                                                                     | 34       |
| 4 Predicting drug-induced liver injury: safer patients or safer drugs?Jinghai J. Xu                                                        | 54       |
| 5 In vitro evaluation of metabolic drug–drug interactionsAlbert P. Li                                                                      | 76       |
| 6 Reliability of reactive metabolite and covalent binding assessments in prediction of idiosyncratic drug toxicityAmit S. Kalgutkar        | 102      |
| 7 Immunotoxicity: technologies for predicting immune stimulation, a focus on nucleic acids and haptensJörg Vollmer                         | 124      |
| 8 Predictive models for neurotoxicity assessmentLucio G. Costa, Gennaro Giordano, and Marina Guizzetti                                     | 135      |
| 9 De-risking developmental toxicity-mediated drug attrition in the pharmaceutical industryTerence R. S. Ozolinš                            | 153      |
| II: INTEGRATED APPROACHES OF PREDICTIVE TOXICOLOGY                                                                                      |          |
| 10 Integrated approaches to lead optimization: improving the therapeutic indexLaszlo Urban, Jianling Wang, Dejan Bojanic, and Susan Ward   | 183      |

|    |                                                                                                         |     |
|----|---------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-----|
| 11 | Predictive toxicology approaches for small molecule oncology drugs                               | 204 |
|    | Timothy J. Maziasz, Vivek J. Kadambi, and Carl L. Alden                                                 |     |
| 12 | Mechanism-based toxicity studies for drug development                                            | 230 |
|    | Monicah A. Otieno and Lois D. Lehman-McKeeman                                                           |     |
| 13 | Fish embryos as alternative models for drug safety evaluation                                    | 244 |
|    | Stefan Scholz, Anita Büttner, Nils Klüver, and Joaquin Guinea                                           |     |
| 14 | The role of genetically modified mouse models in predictive toxicology                           | 269 |
|    | Glenn H. Cantor                                                                                         |     |
| 15 | Toxicogenomic and pathway analysis                                                               | 284 |
|    | Bin Lu, Ying Jiang, and Chester Ni                                                                      |     |
| 16 | Drug safety biomarkers                                                                           | 302 |
|    | David Gerhold and Frank D. Sistare                                                                      |     |
| 17 | Application of TK/PD modeling in predicting dose-limiting toxicity                               | 314 |
|    | Li J. Yu, Lee Silverman, Carl L. Alden, Guohui Liu, Shimoga Prakash, and Frank Lee                      |     |
| 18 | Prediction of therapeutic index of antibody-based therapeutics: mathematical modeling approaches | 330 |
|    | Kapil Mayawala and Bruce Gomes                                                                          |     |
| 19 | Vaccine toxicology: nonclinical predictive strategies                                            | 344 |
|    | Sarah Gould and Raymond Oomen                                                                           |     |
|    | Epilogue                                                                                                | 371 |
|    | Index                                                                                                   | 375 |

Color plates follow page 370.