

Contents

List of abbreviations [page vii]
List of figures [x]
Acknowledgements [xiv]

Introduction [1]

1 Toward an architectural history of the Aurelian Wall, from its beginnings through the ninth century [12]
1.1 The basics: an overview [12]
1.2 Aurelian's Wall [17]
1.3 Honorius' Wall [32]
1.4 The fifth and sixth centuries [48]
1.5 The early-medieval renaissance of the Aurelian Wall [63]

2 Planning, building, rebuilding, and maintenance: the logistical dynamics of a (nearly) interminable project [71]
2.1 The planning and placement of the Wall [72]
2.2 Building the Wall [87]
2.3 Subsequent history [100]
2.4 The Wall and the refashioning of the urban administration [102]

3 Motives, meaning, and context: the Aurelian Wall and the late Roman state [110]
3.1 The motives for Aurelian's Wall [111]
3.2 The meaning and message of Aurelian's Wall [116]
3.3 New walls, old realities, and the changing face of the late-antique city [123]
3.4 Honorian Rome and Celestial Jerusalem [137]
3.5 Sedes Petri; caput mundi? Rivals of Rome and the imitation of the Aurelian Wall [155]

4 The city, the suburbs, and the Wall: the rise of a topographical institution [160]
4.1 Urbs and suburbium [161]
4.2 The immediate topographical impact of the Wall, local [163]
4.3 The immediate topographical impact of the Wall, regional [169]
4.4 The immediate topographical impact of the Wall, citywide [185]

4.5 Big walls, small town: Rome after empire [196]
4.6 The topographical Nachleben of the Aurelian Wall [199]

5 Sacred geography, interrupted [209]
5.1 Muros dilatavit, pomerio addidit: the immuring of the pomerium [209]
5.2 The Wall, the law, and the definition of urban space in the fourth century [213]
5.3 Spheres of sacrality and the circumscription of Roma Christiana [217]
5.4 The Wall, stational liturgy, and the boundaries of the urban church [225]
5.5 In urbe, extra muros [230]
5.6 The decline of the suburbium and the rise of the world's largest reliquary [235]

6 The Wall and the "Republic of St. Peter" [241]
6.1 The Aurelian Wall and the post-Roman "state," from Justinian to Charlemagne [241]
6.2 The Aurelian Wall and Pope Hadrian's Rome: the home front [250]
6.3 The Aurelian Wall and the international public of Pope Hadrian's Rome [260]
6.4 Old walls don't die, they just fade away ... [271]

Conclusion [279]

Appendices

A Numerical data [283]
B The fourth century revisited: the problem of Maxentius [285]
C The post-Honorian additions to the Porta Appia and other fifth- and sixth-century construction [292]
D The Aurelian Wall and the refashioning of the western tip of the Campus Martius [304]
E The Pons Agrippae and the Pons Aureli: a tale of two bridges [310]

Bibliography [315]
Index [353]