Momentous changes in the relation between women and the state have advanced women’s status around the globe. Women were barred from public affairs a century ago, yet almost every state now recognizes equal voting rights and exhibits a national policy bureau for the advancement of women. Sex quotas for national legislatures are increasingly common. Ann E. Towns explains these changes by providing a novel account of how norms work in international society. She argues that norms don’t just provide standards for states, they rank them, providing comparative judgments which place states in hierarchical social orders. This focus on the link between norms and ranking hierarchies helps to account better for how a new policy, such as equality for women in public life, is spread around the world. Women and States thus offers a new view of the relationship between women and the state, and of the influence of norms in international politics.

Ann E. Towns is Assistant Professor of Political Science and International Relations at the University of Delaware. Her research centers on gender in global governance and international society, with a focus on the status of women as a standard of rank in international politics.
Women and States

Norms and Hierarchies in International Society

ANN E. TOWNS
CAMBRIDGE UNIVERSITY PRESS
Cambridge, New York, Melbourne, Madrid, Cape Town, Singapore,
São Paulo, Delhi, Dubai, Tokyo
Cambridge University Press
The Edinburgh Building, Cambridge CB2 8RU, UK
Published in the United States of America by Cambridge University Press, New York www.cambridge.org
Information on this title: www.cambridge.org/9780521745918

© Ann E. Towns 2010

This publication is in copyright. Subject to statutory exception and to the provisions of relevant collective licensing agreements, no reproduction of any part may take place without the written permission of Cambridge University Press.

First published 2010

Printed in the United Kingdom at the University Press, Cambridge

A catalogue record for this publication is available from the British Library

Library of Congress Cataloguing in Publication data
Towns, Ann E., 1970–
Women and states : norms and hierarchies in international society / Ann E. Towns.
p. cm.
Includes bibliographical references.
HQ1236.T694 2010
305.42–dc22
2009054026

ISBN 978-0-521-76885-6 Hardback

Cambridge University Press has no responsibility for the persistence or accuracy of URLs for external or third-party internet websites referred to in this publication, and does not guarantee that any content on such websites is, or will remain, accurate or appropriate.
For my parents
Contents

List of tables

Acknowledgments

1 Introduction

2 Constructivism and worldwide changes in state policy

3 A complex society of norms and social hierarchies

4 Excluding women in the society of civilized states

5 Women’s suffrage and the standards of civilization

6 National women’s policy bureaus and the standards of development

7 Legislature sex quotas and cultural rank

8 Conclusion

Primary sources, by chapter

Bibliography

Index
Tables

5.1 Women’s suffrage adoption (year and transnational context)
6.1 Divisions for the advancement of women, 1961–1986
7.1 Adoption of quota measures for national assemblies, 1990–2003
Acknowledgments

This book is the product of many years of labor in multiple parts of the world. Many of the ideas I have tried to formulate here have had a long period of gestation and growth, being shaped by a number of different intellectual contexts. In the first stages, I was greatly aided by the lively intellectual environment of the graduate program in political science at the University of Minnesota. It is difficult to do justice to the value of the enthusiasm, generosity and support of my thesis adviser, Kathryn Sikkink, whose intellectual guidance and astute suggestions continue to pervade and shape this book. Raymond Duvall graciously served as an additional, if informal adviser, and I am eternally grateful for his intellectual direction and involvement in this project. Special thanks also go to Jeanine Anderson, Elizabeth Boyle, Petrice Flowers, Emilie Hafner-Burton, Roudy Hildreth, Amy Kaminsky, Johanna Kantola, Sally Kenney, Helen Kinsella, M. J. Maynes, Darel Paul, Richard Price, Naomi Scheman, Latha Varadarajan, and others who provided invaluable comments on this project during the dissertation period.

Many people at other universities and research institutions helped me think through various aspects of the thesis in order to develop it into a book. I would especially like to thank the faculty and graduate students of the Department of Political Science at Göteborg university, Sweden, where I spent three years on a post-doctoral fellowship. Hans E. Andersson, Mette Anthonsen, Monica Bauer, Ulf Bjерeld, Marie Demker, Andreas Johansson, Johannes Lindvall, Helena Stensöta and Lena Wångerud were particularly helpful. The revision process has also benefited from comments and suggestions in various contexts from Lisa Baldez, Drude Dahlerup, Mala Htun, Mona-Lena Krook, Iver Neumann, Mark Lynch, and Diane Sainsbury. Thanks as well to two anonymous reviewers who provided excellent comments and suggestions for revisions.

In the many years of working on this project, I have also acquired a substantial debt to a number of research assistants. For the assistance of Javier Diez Canseco, Geun K. Joakim Sebring, Andrea Stiglich, Juliette Tolay-Sargnon, Margarita Velasco and Mayu Velasco – mil gracias, tusen tack. Numerous research centers, archives and libraries have opened their doors and offered their expertise on the location of crucial documents. The staff of the library of the University of Minnesota, CENDOC-Mujer (Peru), Biblioteca Nacional del Perú, Archivo Nacional de Perú, Centro de la Mujer Peruana Flora Tristán, the archives of the Peruvian Ministry of Justice, Riksdagsbiblioteket (Stockholm), the archives of the Swedish international development agency (Sida) and the Göteborg university library have been particularly helpful. I am very grateful to the many workers who went above and beyond their formal duties to locate obscure, forgotten or misplaced documents.

A number of organizations, foundations and individuals have facilitated the research financially and practically. During the thesis period, these included a William F. Stout Fellowship, a Max M. Kampelman Graduate Research Fellowship in Human Rights, and a University of Minnesota Doctoral Dissertation Fund Fellowship. The dissertation research was also funded through a MacArthur Doctoral Field Research Grant, University of Minnesota Grant for Research Abroad, and grants from Fredrika Bremer-Förbundet and Kjellbergska flickskolan. The post-thesis research and writing were greatly aided by a major three-year grant from the European Commission and a one-year fellowship at the Swedish Institute of International Affairs.

Finally, this project would have never come to fruition without the support of my family. Tusen tack to my farfar and farmor, Åke and Vivan Korner; my parents, Johnny and Franziska Korner; my sister, Sarah Korner; my aunt, Ulla Hoffmann; and last but not least, my husband and children, Reynolds, Inga-Lisa and Kajsa. My family has cheered me on while simultaneously reminding me to keep academics in a larger perspective. This book is their accomplishment as well as my own.