Law and Economics of Contingent Protection in International Trade

This book discusses the regulatory framework of contingent protection in the World Trade Organization (WTO) – antidumping, countervailing duties, and safeguards – as well as an economic analysis of these instruments. The book’s various chapters illuminate the basic functioning of all three protections.

Kyle W. Bagwell is the Donald L. Lucas Professor of Economics at Stanford University. Professor Bagwell is a reporter for the American Law Institute, in its study “Principles of International Trade: The WTO.” He serves as well as a Research Associate at the National Bureau of Economic Research (International Trade Program). In his research, Professor Bagwell uses economic analysis to interpret and evaluate the design of the WTO. He is a Fellow of the Econometric Society.

George A. Bermann is the Jean Monnet Professor of European Union (EU) Law (a chair conferred by the Commission of the European Communities), as well as the Walter Gellhom Professor of Law at Columbia Law School. He has been a member of the Columbia Law School faculty since 1975 teaching a range of comparative, international, and transnational law subjects, including EU law and transnational litigation and arbitration. Professor Bermann is also a member of the teaching faculty of the College of Europe in Bruges, Belgium, and also regularly teaches at the Universities of Paris I (Pantheon-Sorbonne) and Paris II (Pantheon-Assas), as well as the Institut des Sciences Politiques in Paris. More recently, Professor Bermann was Tocqueville-Fulbright Distinguished Professor at the University of Paris from June through December 2006. He is the President of the International Academy of Comparative Law, the former President of the American Society of Comparative Law, co-editor-in-chief of the American Journal of Comparative Law, and currently chief reporter of the American Law Institute’s Restatement (Third) of the U.S. Law of International Commercial Arbitration.

Petros C. Mavroidis is the Edwin B. Parker Professor of Law at Columbia Law School, New York. He also serves as Professor of Law at the University of Neuchatel and is Research Fellow at the Centre for Economic Policy Research (CEPR), London. He specializes in the law and the WTO and serves as the Legal Advisor to the WTO in the Technical Cooperation Division, where he assists developing countries in WTO dispute settlement proceedings. He is also the chief co-reporter of the American Law Institute project “Principles of International Trade: The WTO.”
