

Index of streets

The map references refer to the Ordnance Survey map of Cambridge published in 1995 in association with Heffers. No streets later than this are included, but a few which existed before and are not on that map are mentioned. Streets marked with a dagger (†) have names which can be found in gazetteers, but do not appear to have any notable Cambridge connection, except that some are the names of villages to which they lead. Others so marked are the names of houses, as well as of places, and most have probably some connection with the family or interests of a builder, developer, estate agent, given for a personal reason. Some personal names which do have Cambridge connections are of course also place-names.

Names that seem to need no explanation are marked with an asterisk (*). Streets in clusters of names of animals (see Antelope), wild flowers (see Clover) or apples (see Bramley) are marked with a double asterisk (); those with names of stately homes, which are not in any clusters (see Arundel), are marked with a double dagger (‡).
