Index

adaptation: and evolution, 10–12; and ingestion of sodium, 14–15; and levels of calcium in diet, 116 adolescence, and dietary requirements for calcium, 111 adrenocorticotropin hormone (ACTH), 103, 105 age; and dietary calcium requirements, 110–12; and mineral ingestion, 136f; and serum levels of parathyroid hormone, 115 aldosterone, 105–6
Alheid, G. F., 53
allegories, 19
amenorrhea, 120
amphibians, and calcium storage mechanisms, 24 amygdala, 103, 108
amylophagia, 82
anemia, and pica, 54
angiotensin, 63, 96, 105
anorexia nervosa, 120 anticipation, and nutritional needs, 20–1 appetite, for calcium: and brain regions, 107–8; and calcium hormones, 91, 105–6; and calcium regulation, 4; calcium transport and calcium-binding proteins, 102; and consummatory behavior, 37, 39–40; growth and development, 61–2; and gustatory system, 56–7; and phosphorus ingestion, 54–6; studies of in chickens, 40–1; studies of in rats, 41–5, 105 avoidance, and ingestive behavior, 17, 19 beans, as sources of calcium, 140 behavior: and anticipation of nutritional needs, 20–1; calcium ingestion and physiology, 135; consummatory for calcium and appetitive, 37, 39–40; gustatory anatomy and ingestive, 27–30; innate and learned categories of, 18–19; and motivation for calcium ingestion, 35–6 Bernard, Claude, 10, 12, 143n1
Berridge, Kent, 19
bighorn sheep, 21
biological clocks, 20
biophosphonates, 129
birds, and calcium ingestion, 24. See also chickens blood pressure, and calcium in diet, 130 bone fractures, 125, 127. See also osteoporosis bones: calcium homeostasis and health of after pregnancy and lactation, 116–19; calcium in diet and mass of, 111; calcium ingestion and calcium hormones, 123–5; and calcium ingestion during and after menopause, 119–22; as dietary source of calcium, 6; and effects of high- and low-calcium diets on trabeculae in humeri, 13, 14f; and phosphorus appetite, 54; physical activity, calcium ingestion, and health of, 125–6. See also bone fractures; osteoporosis brain: and calcitonin, 99–100, 100f; and calcium appetite, 102, 136; gonadal steroid hormones and development of, 58–9; and gustatory system, 29–30, 31f; and mineral appetite, 107–8; and parathyroid hormones, 96–7, 98f; and vitamin D, 91–6 bread, and nutrition, 23–4 Cabanac, Michel, 19
caffeine, 126
INDEX

calbindin, 102
calcitonin: and bone loss in postmenopausal women, 124; and brain regions, 99–100, 100f; and calcium homeostasis, 88–91; and calcium ingestion, 100; and lactation, 75, 77f; and pregnancy, 72, 73, 74f calcium: appetitive and consummatory behaviors, 37, 39–40; basic considerations in regulation of, 2–6; and behavioral regulation, 13–16;
    brain regions and appetite for, 107–8, 136; dietary requirements for, 83t, 109–12; disorders of regulation of,
    127–33; end-organ systems and health, 137; and evolution, 10–12, 24–6, 135; food sources of, 7f, 139–41; functions regulated by intracellular, 4t; growth and development and appetite for, 61–2; hypertension and metabolism of during pregnancy, 130–2; influences on absorption of, 126–7; innate and learned behaviors and regulation of, 18–19; and internal milieu, 12; literature on regulation of, 1; and menstrual cycle, 64; metabolism of and hormonal regulation during pregnancy and lactation, 72–6; and neural toxicity, 127; and nutritionists, 22–4; and popular press, 1; pregnancy and distribution of, 72t; and sodium in plants, 143n4; taste of, 20, 30, 32–3; transport of and calcium-binding proteins, 102; and vitamin D, 85–6, 112–15. See also appetite, for calcium; calcium deficiency; calcium homeostasis; calcium ingestion; transport, of calcium calcium-binding proteins, 102 calcium deficiency: diet and calcium ingestion, 37; and gender, 60; and ingestion of sodium, 45–9, 50f, 57; and peripheral gustatory neurons, 32–3; and pica, 52–4; and reluctance to ingest unfamiliar foods, 49, 51; secretion of calcium hormones following, 91; stress hormones and sodium appetite, 105 calcium homeostasis: and bone health following pregnancy and lactation, 116–19; and calcitonin, 88–91; and calcium transport, 143n1; and internal milieu, 13; parathyroid hormone, 86, 88; predictive versus reactive, 21; and pregnancy, 72; receptors and mechanisms of, 102–3, 104f; and vitamin D, 85–6
  calcium ingestion: biological basis of, 22; bone health, calcium hormones, and,
    123–5; and calcitonin, 100; and culture, 5, 82, 84, 136–7; and gonadal steroid hormones, 59–61, 84; and gustatory anatomy, 27–30, 56–7; hormones and appetite, 91, 105–6;
    influences on absorption and, 126–7;
    and lactation, 82–4; menopause, bone health, and, 119–22; motivation for, 35–6; and parathyroid hormone, 97, 99; physical activity, bone health, and, 125–6; and physiology, 135; and pregnancy, 78, 84; and stress hormones, 103, 105
  calretinin, 102
  Cannon, Walter, 10, 13, 14, 135, 143n2 carbohydrates: menstrual cycle and ingestive behavior, 64; specific hunger for, 17
  carnivores, and calcium ingestion, 25 celiac disease, 53
  chickens, studies of calcium appetite in, 40–1
  childhood pica, 53
  children. See infants chorda tympani nerve, 32–3, 34f cod liver oil, 112
  colorectal cancer, 132–3, 134f consummatory behavior, and calcium appetite, 37, 39–40
  coprophagy, 65
  corticotropin-releasing hormone (CRH), 103 corticosterone, 105
  cortisol, 103
  Craig, Wallace, 37
  cranial nerves, and gustatory information, 29–30, 33
  culture: and calcium ingestion, 5, 82, 84, 136–7; dietary patterns and mineral absorption, 22, 24, 26; food cravings and aversions during pregnancy, 79, 80; and phosphorus ingestion, 115

202
dairy products: and pregnancy-related hypertension, 132; as sources of calcium, 7f, 139, 141; and vitamin D supplementation, 112
Darwin, Charles, 10, 11, 20
Davis, Clara, 15
Denton, D. A., 22, 54
development: and appetite for calcium, 61–2; gonadal steroid hormones and brain, 68–9. See also infants diet: bone density, calcium ingestion, and calcium hormones, 123–5; bone density, calcium ingestion, and menopause, 119–22; bone health, calcium ingestion, and physical activity, 123–6; calcium homeostasis and bone health after pregnancy and lactation, 116–19; and calcium requirements, 22–4, 83f, 109–12; calcium and vitamin D, 112–15; and influence on behavior, 14; and influences on calcium ingestion and absorption, 126–7; and phosphorus, 115–16. See also calcium deficiency; foods; nutrition dirt, ingestion of minerals from, 22. See also pica disorders, of calcium regulation, 127–33 Eckert, J. F., 35
ecology, and mineral ingestion, 21–2 elderly: and importance of calcium to health of, 138; and vitamin D deficiencies, 124 elk, 21
endocrine system. See hormones estrogen: calcium ingestion and bone health after menopause, 119–22; and extracellular-fluid regulation of water and sodium, 62–3; and ingestive behavior, 64. See also hormone-replacement therapy ethnicity, and food cravings during pregnancy, 79, 80. See also culture evolution: and adaptation, 10–12; and calcium ingestion, 24–6, 135, 136f, 137; and calcium regulation, 3 exercise, and bone mass, 126 extracellular-fluid regulation, of water and sodium, 62–3 facial expressions, and tastes, 19–20 “failure to thrive,” and hypercalcemia, 129 fetus, calcium transport and hypercalcemia, 72–3. See also infants; pregnancy fish, and calcium regulation, 3 flour, and calcium salts, 24
Food and Drug Administration, 111 foods: alimentary reactions and palatability judgments, 20; calcium deficiency and reluctance to ingest unfamiliar, 49, 51; cravings and aversions during pregnancy, 79–80, 81t; estrogen levels and intake of, 63; ingestive behavior and selection of, 28; as sources of calcium, 5–6, 7f, 139–41. See also diet; nutrition foraging behavior, and mineral ingestion, 21–2, 26 fruits, as sources of calcium, 7f, 140
Galef, B. G., Jr., 16
Cambia, and calcium ingestion during pregnancy and lactation, 82, 83t, 110, 116, 136–7 gender: and dietary calcium requirements, 110–12; and differences in ingestion of fluids and food sources, 59. See also women’s health genetics: and disorders of calcium regulation, 134; parathyroid hormones and gene expression, 98f; and potential bone health and density, 119; and vitamin D-mediated gene expression, 87f geophagia, 53–4
glossopharyngeal cranial nerve, 33 glucocorticoids: and calcium ingestion, 105; and calretinin regulation in brain, 102; and neural toxicity of calcium, 127 glucose regulation, and internal milieu, 12 gonadal steroid hormones: and sexual dimorphism, 58–9; and sodium and calcium ingestion, 59–61, 84. See also hormones grains, and dietary sources of calcium, 25, 140 Great Britain, and calcium intake during pregnancy and lactation, 82, 83t, 110, 116, 136–7

© in this web service Cambridge University Press www.cambridge.org
INDEX

Green, Henry, 54

growth, and appetite for calcium, 61–2. See also development; infants gustatory system: and calcium appetite, 56–7, 136; calcium taste and peripheral, 30, 32–3; ingestive behavior and anatomy of, 27–30; schematic summary of in rat brain, 31f

Harris, L. J., 16

health, and importance of calcium, 134, 137, 138. See also disorders, of calcium regulation; elderly; life expectancy; women’s health

Heaney, Robert, 122, 135

herbivores: foraging behavior and mineral ingestion, 21–2; and phosphorus deficiency, 56

hip fractures, and calcium supplements, 127

homeostasis. See calcium homeostasis hormone replacement therapy (HRT),

121–2, 123–4, 125

hormones: bone health and calcium ingestion, 123–5; brain regions and mineral appetite, 107–8; and calcium metabolism in pregnancy and lactation, 72–6; secretion of following calcium deficiency, 91; and sodium and calcium ingestion, 105–6; stress and calcium ingestion, 103, 105. See also estrogen; gonadal steroid hormones

hypercalcemia, 72–3, 89, 127–9 hyperparathyroidism, 128

hypertension, and calcium metabolism during pregnancy, 130–2

hypocalcemia, 89, 129–32

iguanas, and role of vitamin D in calcium regulation, 11, 12f

industrial revolution, calcium and vitamin D deficiencies, 112

infants: facial expressions and tastes,

19–20; failure to thrive and hypercalcemia in, 129; and hypocalcemia, 129; and self-selection studies, 15. See also lactation native behavior, 18–19

insectivores, and calcium ingestion, 25

Institute of Medicine, 112, 115–16, 126 internal milieu, and calcium regulation, 12 iron deficiency, and pica, 54, 81

Irving, J. T., 1

Kanis, J. A., 135

kidneys: and evolution, 10; impairment of and calcium ingestion, 136, 137f koala, 17, 22

lactation: and animal studies of ingestive behavior, 65–72; calcium homeostasis and bone health following, 116–19; calcium ingestion and metabolic needs during, 5, 82–4; and hormonal regulation of calcium metabolism,

72–6, 77f; and milk as primary source of calcium for neonates, 24–5. See also infects; pregnancy

lactose intolerance, 126

latent learning, 42

lead, calcium deficiency and ingestion of, 52–3

learning and learned behavior: and calcium appetite in chickens, 40–1;

and innate behavior, 18–19; and theories of ingestive behavior, 17

life expectancy, and calcium deficiency, 114–15

liking, and palatability judgments, 20

McCullom, E. V., 14

mammals, and milk as calcium source for neonates, 24–5. See also herbivores marmoset, common, 22

meats, as sources of calcium, 139–40

medical management, of hypercalcemia,

129

menarche, and calcium in diet, 111 menopause: and calcium in diet, 111; estrogen levels, bone health, and calcium ingestion, 119–22 menstrual cycle, and ingestive behavior, 64

mineralocorticoids, 108

minerals: brain regions and appetite for,

17–18; and ecological determinants of ingestion, 21–2. See also calcium; phosphorus; sodium; zinc mineral waters, as sources of calcium, 7f, 141

moose, and mineral ingestion, 21

204
INDEX

National Health and Nutrition Examination (NHANES), 131f natural selection, 10 neonates. See infants neural toxicity, and calcium, 127
Newsweek, 1
New York Times, 1
nutrition: and behavioral anticipation of needs, 20–1; choice of foods and calcium regulation, 16–18; and dietary calcium requirements, 22–4, 109–10. See also diet; foods ocean, and concentration of calcium, 2, 24 osteomalacia, 115 osteoporosis: and calcium in diet, 111; estrogen levels and menopause, 120; and lactation, 117. See also bone fractures oxytocin, 66, 76

pagophagia, 54
palatability judgments, 19–20 parabrachial region: calcium deficiencies and ingestion of sodium, 48–9, 50f; and gustatory system, 30 parathyroid glands and parathyroidectomy, and behavioral changes in calcium ingestion, 15–16, 35–7, 38f, 39–40, 42, 48, 62, 100 parathyroid hormone (PTH): age and serum levels of, 115; and bone mass, 125; and calcium ingestion, 97, 99; and hyperparathyroidism, 128; and lactation, 75, 76, 77f; and pregnancy, 72, 73, 74f; and receptors in brain, 96–7, 98f parathyroid tumors, 128 perimenopause, and changes in calcium homeostasis, 120, 121 phosphate, levels of during pregnancy and lactation, 74f, 77f phosphorus: appetite and ingestion of, 54–6; grains as dietary source of, 25; and nutritional requirements, 115–16 physical activity, calcium ingestion and bone health, 125–6 physiology, and calcium ingestion, 135 pica, 52–4, 56, 80–2, 84 placenta, and transport of calcium, 73 plants, and calcium sensors, 143n4

Plouffe, L., 121
polyethylene glycol (PEG), 106
polyuria, 127
Power, Michael, 116
predictive homeostasis, 21 preeclampsia, 130 pregnancy: and animal studies of ingestive behavior, 65–72; calcium homeostasis and bone health after, 116–19; calcium ingestion and metabolic needs during, 5; and dietary calcium requirements, 110–12; food cravings and aversions during, 79–80, 81f; and hormonal regulation of calcium metabolism, 72–6; hypocalcaemia and hypertension during, 130–2; intake of calcium during, 78, 84; and pica, 80–2 premenstrual disorder, and calcium, 132 Prentice, Ann, 82, 110, 116
prolactin, 66, 76
proteins: and calcium-binding proteins, 102; specific hunger for, 17; and urinary calcium loss, 126, 127 PTH-related peptide (PTHrP), 74f, 75–6, 88, 96–7, 98f rats, and studies of calcium ingestion, 41–5, 48–9, 50f, 105 reactive homeostasis, 21 reproductive status, and dietary calcium requirements, 110–12. See also lactation; menopause; pregnancy reptiles, evolution of and calcium ingestion, 24 Richter, Curt, 10, 13–16, 35, 41, 91, 135

rickets, 112, 115
Rocky Mountain goats, 21
salt and mineral licks, 21, 45 Schulkin, J., 121
search, and mineral ingestion, 19 seawater, elements in, 2f selenium deficiency, 54 self-selection theory, and calcium ingestion, 15, 16–18 sexual dimorphism: and calcium ingestion, 60; and evolution, 11; and gonadal steroid hormones, 58–9 smoking, and bone health, 126
INDEX

sodium: calcium deficiency and ingestion of, 45–9, 50f, 57, 105; and calcium retention, 126; estrogen levels and extracellular-fluid regulation of, 62–3; gonadal steroid hormones and ingestion of, 59–61; hormones and ingestion of calcium and, 105–6; and ingestive behavior as adaptive response, 14–15; ingestive behavior and gustatory system, 28; and innate specific appetite, 18; lactation and intake of, 66; plants and calcium sensors, 143n4; pregnancy and ingestion of, 65, 66 South Africa, study of ethnicity and food cravings during pregnancy, 79 speciation and variation, and evolution, 11 Sri Lanka, and food cravings during pregnancy, 79 stress hormones: calcium deficiency and salt appetite in rats, 105; and calcium ingestion, 103, 105 stria terminalis, bed nucleus of, 108 sunlight, vitamin D and exposure to, 112, 113–14 supplements, dietary: and calcium, 110, 118–19, 121, 127, 130, 141; and vitamin D, 113, 124 sweets: menstrual cycle and craving for, 64; as sources of calcium, 7f, 141 taste: and calcium, 20, 30, 32–3; and facial expressions of infants, 19–20; four groups of, 28–9; functions of, 27–8; gender and reactions to sodium, 60; and taste-aversion learning, 17 taste buds, 28
thalamic gustatory region, lesions of, 37, 38f thiamine: deficiency of and learned appetite, 18; and ingestive behavior, 17 tissues, and distribution of calcium in human, 4f tongue, and gustatory anatomy, 28, 29

Tordoff, M. G., 47, 91, 105 transport, of calcium: calcium-binding proteins and calcium appetite, 102; and calcium homeostasis, 143n1; and cellular mechanisms, 108; and evolution, 3; from mother to fetus during pregnancy, 72–3 ultraviolet B radiation, 114 urbanization, and calcium or vitamin D deficiencies in diet, 112 vegetables, as sources of calcium, 7f, 140 vegetarian diets, and calcium ingestion, 126 vertebrates: amount of calcium in body of, 2; and evolution of calcium regulation, 3 vitamin D: and bone health, 123–4; and brain, 91–2; and calcium in diet, 112–15; and calcium homeostasis, 85–6; and calcium ingestion, 67–70, 92–6, 123–4; and calcium regulation in iguanas, 11, 12f; and colorectal cancer, 132–3; deficiencies of, 67–70, 95–6; and gene expression, 87f; and hypocalcemia, 129; increased concentrations of during pregnancy, 73; and preeclampsia, 130 wanting, and palatability judgments, 20 water: and concentration of calcium in ocean, 2, 24; estrogen levels and extracellular-fluid regulation of sodium and, 62–3; pregnancy and ingestion of, 70 women's health, and importance of calcium, 5, 138. See also lactation; pregnancy World War II, and healthy diets, 23
Zaire, and calcium intake during pregnancy and lactation, 82 zinc, and pica, 54