Richard Rorty

Arguably the most influential of all contemporary English-speaking philosophers, Richard Rorty has transformed the way many inside and outside philosophy think about the discipline and the traditional ways of practicing it. Drawing on a wide range of thinkers from Darwin and James to Quine, Wittgenstein, Heidegger, and Derrida, Rorty has injected a bold antifoundationalist vision into philosophical debate, into discussions in literary theory, communication studies, political theory, and education, and – as a public intellectual – into national debates about the responsibilities of America in the modern world.

The essays in this volume offer a balanced exposition and critique of Rorty's views on knowledge, language, truth, science, morality, and politics. The editorial introduction presents a valuable overview of Rorty's philosophical vision. Written by a distinguished roster of philosophers, this volume will have an unusually wide appeal outside philosophy to students in the social sciences, literary studies, cultural studies, and political theory.

Charles Guignon is Professor of Philosophy at the University of South Florida.

David R. Hiley is Provost and Professor of Philosophy at the University of New Hampshire.

Contemporary Philosophy in Focus

Contemporary Philosophy in Focus offers a series of introductory volumes to many of the dominant philosophical thinkers of the current age. Each volume consists of newly commissioned essays that cover major contributions of a preeminent philosopher in a systematic and accessible manner. Comparable in scope and rationale to the highly successful series Cambridge Companions to Philosophy, the volumes do not presuppose that readers are already intimately familiar with the details of each philosopher's work. They thus combine exposition and critical analysis in a manner that will appeal both to students of philosophy and to professionals, as well as to students across the humanities and social sciences.

Acknowledgments

For offering valuable suggestions and for help in preparing this volume, many thanks are due to Kevin Aho, Indrani Bhattacharjee, Craig Bradley, Michael Gibbons, Christopher Kirby, Bruce Silver, Joanne Waugh, and Eric Winsberg. We are deeply grateful to Terry Moore of Cambridge University Press for his continuing support for this volume and for his patience through seemingly interminable delays.

Parts of Jean Bethke Elshtain's essay previously appeared in The Politics of Irony: Essays in Self-Betrayal, edited by Daniel W. Conway and John E. Seery. We are grateful to St. Martin's Press for permission to reprint these passages.

We have a special debt of gratitude to Dick Rorty. Through the years he has shown boundless generosity and kindness to colleagues around the world, as well as to students, fans, and critics. As recipients of this kindness at important points in our careers, we cannot think of a better person to dedicate this book to than Dick Rorty himself.
