

Contents

Preface and acknowledgements	page xi
1 Hermeneutics and the philosophical future of religious studies	I
1 The present contenders: the hermeneutics of recollection and the hermeneutics of suspicion	I
2 The hermeneutics of contemplation	4
3 Beyond interpretation to contemplation	8
4 Beyond frameworks and grids to concept-formation	17
5 Suspicion about suspicion	23
6 The hermeneutics of contemplation and Wittgensteinian Fideism	25
2 Bernard Williams on the gods and us	31
1 Hermeneutics and modernity	31
2 Assumptions about the gods	33
3 Questioning the assumptions	39
3 Hume's legacy	55
1 Hume and hermeneutics	55
2 Hume's first level of criticism	57
3 Hume's second level of criticism	65
4 Hume's third level of criticism	67
5 Hume's 'true religion'	69
6 Hume on miracles	73
7 Beyond design to a song of creation	78
8 Hume's one-sided diet	80
9 Hume and us	83

viii	Contents
4	Feuerbach: religion's secret?	87
1	Feuerbach and demystification	87
2	God among the predicates	92
3	God and the human species	99
4	Contradiction and contemplation	105
5	Death and finitude	112
6	Contemplating reactions to death	116
7	God and death	126
8	Conclusions about death	128
5	Marx and Engels: religion, alienation and compensation	130
1	Marxism and monism	130
2	Religion and ideology	140
6	Tylor and Frazer: are religious beliefs mistaken hypotheses?	146
1	Animism and intellectualism	146
2	Animism, souls and spirits	151
3	What rituals can be	162
4	Rituals and the mythology in our language	167
5	Rituals and explanations	177
7	Marett: primitive reactions	183
1	Marett and anti-intellectualism	183
2	Marett and suspicion	186
3	In the beginning was the dance	190
4	Marett's other course	195
8	Freud: the battle for 'earliest' things	199
1	Contemplation of 'earliest' things	199
2	'The unconscious' and conditions of intelligibility	202
3	Religion and the three conditions of intelligibility	204
4	Freud's monistic vision	208
5	Freud's monism and cultural movements	215
6	Freud's blind spots	218
7	Psychoanalysis and religion	226
9	Durkheim: religion as a social construct	229
1	Anti-animism	229
2	The science without a subject	232

	Contents	ix
3	Social solidarity: a case of logical inversion	235
4	Social constructs and independent realities	242
10	Lévy-Bruhl: primitive logic	247
1	‘Prelogical thought’	247
2	Can we understand magico-religious beliefs?	252
3	Lessons from Lévy-Bruhl	259
11	Berger: the avoidance of discourse	267
1	Pluralism and marketing religion	267
2	Berger’s sociological story	273
3	The fate of values and criticism	277
4	The fate of alienation and liberation	280
5	The language of sociology and the sociologising of language	285
12	Winch: trying to understand	289
1	Language, belief and reality	289
2	Understanding a primitive culture	294
3	Extending our understanding	304
4	Whose understanding?	311
13	Understanding: a philosophical vocation	318
1	A problem for contemplative philosophy	318
2	A philosophical imperative	320
	Index of names	327
	Index of subjects	329