

CONTENTS

Foreword by Ian Bent	page x
Acknowledgements	xiii
1 Common-tone tonality	1
1.1 Introduction	1
1.2 Chromatic third relations	3
1.3 The concept of function	5
1.4 Scheme of third relations	8
1.5 Chromatic mediant affinity pairs	13
1.6 The individual chromatic mediants	15
2 Three examples of functional chromatic mediant relations in Schubert	18
2.1 Introduction	18
2.2 Der Musensohn	19
2.3 Die Sterne	23
2.4 Piano sonata D960, I	29
3 Key harmonic systems and notions of third relations from Rameau to Hauptmann	33
3.1 Musical intuition vs. theoretical consistency	33
3.2 Rameau and third relations	33
3.3 Anton Reicha	37
3.4 Gottfried Weber	40
3.5 A. B. Marx	45
3.6 Moritz Hauptmann	51
4 Hugo Riemann	61
4.1 The early theory	61
4.2 Principal harmony treatises 1880–1890	66
4.3 The root-interval terminology: diatonic relations	68
4.4 Terzschritte in key relations and modulation	74
4.5 Terzschritte within the key	77
4.6 Terzschritte initiating modulations: the prolongational explanation	84
4.7 Scheinkonsonanzen and Funktion	85

viii	Contents
	4.8 Vereinfachte Harmonielehre	86
	4.9 Third relations in functional theory	90
	4.10 Große Kompositionslehre	92
	4.11 Later works on harmony	93
	4.12 Interrelation of the function and root-interval concepts	98
	4.13 Mediant function	99
5	Twentieth-century theory and chromatic third relations	103
	5.1 Heinrich Schenker	103
	5.2 Arnold Schoenberg	118
	5.3 Opposition to theoretical acceptance of chromatic mediants	123
	5.4 Tovey's plain juxtaposition	124
	5.5 Other classification schemes	127
	5.6 Neo-Schenkerian and voice-leading approaches	128
6	Riemann's legacy and transformation theories	135
	6.1 Rules of harmonic progression	135
	6.2 Riemann's view of Weber	138
	6.3 The Lehre von den Tönvorstellungen and the Q and T operations	139
	6.4 Riemannian concepts and transformation theory	142
	6.5 A streamlined transformation system	151
	6.6 A dualistic transformation system	155
7	A chromatic transformation system	165
	7.1 A modified chromatic system	165
	7.2 Prime and mediant transformations	166
	7.3 Plain fifth and fifth-change transformations	169
	7.4 General transformation characteristics	171
	7.5 The SLIDE transformation	175
	7.6 Step progressions	176
	7.7 The augmented sixth	180
	7.8 Dualism	181
	7.9 Three short transformational analyses	186
8	Chromatic mediant relations in musical contexts	192
	8.1 Introduction	192
	8.2 Chromatic mediant relations with intermediate chords	192
	8.3 Chromatic mediant relations involving dominants	194
	8.4 Chromatic mediants as third-dividers	209
	8.5 Sharp mediant affinity pairs in larger complexes	214
	8.6 Major-third mediant affinity pairs: circles of thirds	217
9	Five analyses	235
	9.1 Comments on this chapter	235
	9.2 Chopin, Mazurka op. 56, no. 1	235

Contents	ix
9.3 Liszt, Consolation no. 3	240
9.4 Wolf, In der Frühe	246
9.5 Dvořák, Slavonic Dance op. 46, no. 6	250
9.6 Schubert, Die junge Nonne	254
9.7 Concluding remarks	263
Bibliography	264
Index	270
Compositions cited	275