I should like to thank Dr Christopher Young of Pembroke College, Cambridge, for his advice and many helpful suggestions at various stages in the writing of this book. Thanks also must go to the numerous friends and colleagues who have responded to innumerable questions and have made many wise comments on the work in progress. In particular, I should mention Elke Baden-Harrington for her help in the final stages of the manuscript. As always, some of the best critics have been those I have taught over the years. If there is any practical wisdom in this book it is to them that I owe it.

Helen Barton at Cambridge University Press has been my unfailingly cheerful and helpful editor. Special thanks must go to my copy-editor, Caroline Drake, whose many perceptive questions have removed inconsistencies and helped to improve layout.

And last but not least, my thanks go to my wife for her support, encouragement and patience during the writing of this book.
