Contents

List of contributors vii
Foreword by Paul F.A. Van Look xi
Acknowledgements xv

1 Introduction and overview 1
Shireen Jejeebhoy, Michael Koenig and Christopher Elias

2 Defining reproductive tract infections and other gynaecological morbidities 11
Janneke van de Wijgert and Christopher Elias

3 The social context of gynaecological morbidity: correlates, consequences and health seeking behaviour 30
Shireen Jejeebhoy and Michael Koenig

4 Reproductive health: men’s roles and men’s rights 82
Sarah Hawkes and Graham Hart

5 Study design for the measurement of gynaecological morbidity 106
Huda Zurayk

6 Alternatives to community-based study designs for research on women’s gynaecological morbidity 124
Michael Koenig and Mary Shepherd

7 Community interaction in studies of gynaecological morbidity: experiences in Egypt, India and Uganda 140
Shireen Jejeebhoy, Michael Koenig and Christopher Elias

Egypt: the Giza reproductive morbidity study 148
Hind Khattab

India: the Gadchiroli study of gynaecological diseases 163
Rani Bang and Abhay Bang

Uganda: the Rakai project 172
David Serwadda and Maria Wawer
<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Page</th>
<th>Title</th>
<th>Authors/Publications</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>8</td>
<td>Definitions of clinically diagnosed gynaecological morbidity resulting from reproductive tract infection</td>
<td>Christopher Elias, Nicola Low and Sarah Hawkes</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>9</td>
<td>Laboratory tests for the detection of reproductive tract infections</td>
<td>Jane Kuypers and World Health Organization Regional Office for the Western Pacific</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>10</td>
<td>Laboratory methods for the diagnosis of reproductive tract infections and selected conditions in population-based studies</td>
<td>Mary Meehan, Maria Wawer, David Serwadda, Ronald Gray and Thomas Quinn</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>11</td>
<td>The value of the imperfect: the contribution of interview surveys to the study of gynaecological ill health</td>
<td>John Cleland and Siobán Harlow</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>12</td>
<td>Qualitative methods in gynaecological morbidity research</td>
<td>Nandini Oomman and Joel Gittelsohn</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>13</td>
<td>Integrating qualitative and quantitative methods in research on reproductive health</td>
<td>Pertti Pelto and John Cleland</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>14</td>
<td>Interpreting results from different sources of data</td>
<td>Tom Marshall, Véronique Filippi, André Meheus and Aysen Bulut</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>15</td>
<td>Turning research into action</td>
<td>Ruth Dixon-Mueller</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Appendix A
Notes on contributors
Index