The Cambridge Companion to the Age of Constantine offers students a comprehensive one-volume introduction to this pivotal emperor and his times. Richly illustrated and designed as a readable survey accessible to all audiences, it also achieves a level of scholarly sophistication and a freshness of interpretation that will be welcomed by the experts. The volume is divided into five sections that examine political history, religion, social and economic history, art, and foreign relations during the reign of Constantine, a ruler who gains in importance because he steered the Roman Empire on a course parallel with his own personal development. Each chapter examines the intimate interplay between emperor and empire and between a powerful personality and his world. Collectively, the chapters show how both were mutually affected in ways that shaped the world of late antiquity and even affect our own world today.

Noel Lenski is Associate Professor of Classics at the University of Colorado, Boulder. A specialist in the history of late antiquity, he is the author of numerous articles on military, political, cultural, and social history and the monograph Failure of Empire: Valens and the Roman State in the Fourth Century AD.

CONTRIBUTORS

BRUNO BLECKMANN is Professor of Ancient History at the University of Münster. His many publications on Constantine include the outstanding introduction Konstantin der Große.

SIMON CORCORAN is Senior Research Fellow in the Department of History, University College London. His The Empire of the Tetrarchs: Imperial Pronouncements and Government AD 284–324 is now a standard work.

GEORGES DEPEYROT is a member of the Centre de recherche historique of the CNRS in Paris. His numerous publications on late Roman economic history include Les monnaies d’or de Dioclétien à Constantin I (284–337).

H. A. DRAKE is Professor of History at the University of California at Santa Barbara. A long-time Constantinian scholar, he has recently published Constantine and the Bishops: The Politics of Intolerance to critical acclaim.

MARK EDWARDS is University Lecturer in Patristics and a Fellow of Christ Church Oxford. His masterful translations include Constantine and Christendom and Optatus: Against the Donatists, both excellent companions to this volume.

JAS ELSNER, a Fellow of Corpus Christi College Oxford, has published widely on Roman and Late Antique Art, including his sweeping Art and the Roman Viewer: The Transformation of Art from the Pagan World to Christianity.

HUGH ELTON is the Director of the British School of Archaeology at Ankara. His Warfare in Roman Europe: AD 350–425 is the best study of its kind.
ELIZABETH KEY FOWDEN is an independent scholar who has published broadly on Late Antiquity, including her brilliant The Barbarian Plain: Saint Sergius between Rome and Iran.

ROBERT M. FRAKES is Professor of Roman History at Clarion University. His many publications include the important revisionist study ‘Contra Potentium Iniurias’: The ‘Defensor Civitatis’ and Late Roman Justice.

CAROLINE HUMFRESS is Lecturer in Ancient History at Birkbeck College London. Her work on late Roman law and society has culminated in her monograph Orthodoxy and the Courts in Late Antiquity.

MARK J. JOHNSON is Professor of Art History at Brigham Young University. He has published a number of major articles on Late Antique and Byzantine architecture.

CHRISTOPHER KELLY is University Lecturer in Classics and Fellow of Corpus Christi College Cambridge. He has recently published the masterful Ruling the Later Roman Empire.

MICHAEL KULIKOWSKI is Associate Professor of History at the University of Tennessee. His important study, Late Roman Spain and Its Cities, will soon be joined by a book on the Goths.

A. D. LEE is Senior Lecturer in Classics at the University of Nottingham. His excellent source collection Pagans and Christians in Late Antiquity is a useful complement to this volume.

NOEL LENSKI is Associate Professor of Classics at the University of Colorado. He has published widely on late Roman history, including the monograph Failure of Empire: Valens and the Roman State in the Fourth Century AD.

SAMUEL N. C. LIEU is Professor of Ancient History at Macquarie University in Sydney. He has published extensively on Constantine, including two volumes co-edited with D. Montserrat, From Constantine to Julian: Pagan and Byzantine Views and Constantine: History, Historiography and Legend.
Acknowledgments

This book represents a collective effort in the very best sense and thus leaves many people to thank. My greatest debt of gratitude is surely owed to the contributors, who were hard-working, prompt, and efficient. Second to these comes Beatrice Rehl, editrix extraordinaire, whose patient pressure makes things get done. The volume was also shaped in a profound way by the comments of six readers who reviewed two drafts of the original proposal and who helped change many of my wrongheaded ideas into better ones. Much of the editing for this volume was done while I held an Alexander von Humboldt Fellowship at the Institut für Alte Geschichte of the Ludwig-Maximilians-Universität in Munich in 2003. I am thankful to the the AvH Stiftung for providing me with time and to the Institut for providing me with facilities and assistance. Especially generous with their time and advice were Prof. Jens-Uwe Krause and Dr. Christian Witschel, both of them learned colleagues and true friends. While in Munich I also benefited from several conversations with Bob Frakes over many a Bierchen. Many of the photos for this book were taken during two brief stints in Italy funded by the University of Colorado’s Graduate Committee on Arts and Humanities. During the first of these, Darius Arya kindly chauffeured me to many sites on his vespa. Several coins featured in the photographs come from Colorado University’s (CU) newly acquired Wink Jaffee Collection, whose donor was of tremendous assistance to me on matters numismatic and historical. CU also funded undergraduate Jesse Vader who helped me assemble Constantinian laws. In the spring of 2004 Ray Van Dam hosted a seminar on “Constantine and His Age” at the annual meeting of the Association of Ancient Historians that brought together several of the contributors for a very helpful discussion of our work. Thanks are due to him and the audience, which included many luminaries of Constantinian studies, several of whom offered useful comments and suggestions that have shaped some of our ideas. I should also like to thank Ariel Lewin.
Acknowledgments

for inviting me to a conference at Matera in 2004 where I was able to air some of my work, and Vincenzo Aiello, Daniela Motta, Pietrina Pellegrini, and Umberto Roberto, whom I met there and who put me onto new bibliography and approaches. Most of the drawings and the stemmata were done by the magnificent Dave Underwood, and many of the graphics are the work of Tim Riggs, who also patiently taught me how “to photoshop.” The prose of my chapter has been markedly improved by the careful editorial hand of Faith Orlebeke. Stepping back from this book, it is easy to see that I owe more to my family than anyone, to my parents and brothers, and my children Paul, Helen, and Chloe. Their love and encouragement are serious ingredients in this mix. My wife, Alison, who has weathered this book with many other storms over the past three years, is the true hero in my story. She deserves more credit than all the others combined.
