

Contents

List of tables	page xii
List of figures	xv
List of maps	xvi
Preface	xvii
A note on terminology, country names, and currency	xix
1 Setting the context: South Africa in international perspective	1
A unique historical endowment	1
The economy in an international perspective	3
The people and economy before 1652	13
2 Seizing the land: conquest and dispossession	22
European expansion into the interior	22
Abundant land and scarce labour	32
The roots of conflict	34
Defeat and dispossession of the Pedi by British and Boers	37
The final outcome – land allocation in South Africa from 1913	43
3 Making the labour force: coercion and discrimination	47
Black labour for white masters	47
The use of compulsion to obtain labour	51
Taxes, restrictions on movement, and other forms of pressure	55
African labour on white-owned farms	60
Migrant labour for the mines	62
The paradox of scarce labour and low wages	67
The deterioration of the reserves	70
4 Creating the colour bar: formal barriers, poor whites, and ‘civilized’ labour	74
Motivation and methods for creating a colour bar	74
The conflict with white mine-workers	77
The ‘poor white’ problem and the closing of the pastoral frontier	83
Labour policies of the Pact government, 1924–33	85
5 Exporting the gold: the vital role of the mineral revolution	90
Models of export-led growth	90
The special features of gold in South Africa	93
	ix

x	Contents
	The character and expansion of the mining industry	99
	Gold mining as the engine of growth	106
	Exploitation of African mine-workers	109
6	Transforming the economy: the rise of manufacturing and commercial agriculture	113
	Factories are few and unimportant	113
	The state, tariff policy, and the rise of manufacturing industry	116
	Expansion of industrial output and employment	121
	Faults in the foundation	127
	Inefficiency, low wages, and skill differentials	132
	The destruction of African farming and slow progress of commercial agriculture	135
7	Separating the races: the imposition of apartheid	143
	From triumph to disaster – an overview of the post-war period	143
	The political economy of developments after 1948	149
	Apartheid versus urbanization	151
	Trade unions, job reservation, and education	157
	Domination or development?	161
8	Forcing the pace: rapid progress despite constraints	165
	Three more windfalls for the gold mines	165
	Manufacturing: the unprecedented boom	172
	The expansion of the financial sector and the rise of Afrikaner capitalism	176
	State-directed industrialization	180
	Trends in employment, output, and productivity	184
	Weaknesses and constraints – the limits to growth	188
	A revolution finally comes to commercial agriculture	193
9	Hitting the barriers: from triumph to disaster	200
	From growth and stability to stagnation and inflation	200
	The decline of gold mining despite yet another windfall	203
	The expansion of coal and platinum	210
	Manufacturing's failure to achieve export-led growth	211
	The decline in fixed investment	221
10	Confronting the contradictions: the final crisis and the retreat from apartheid	224
	Sanctions, capital flows, and the balance-of-payments crises	224
	Changes in the labour market	230
	The retreat from apartheid	240
	The fallacy of 'cheap' labour	244
	Annexe 1: the people of South Africa	252
	The black population before 1900	252
	The white population before 1900	256
	The population in the twentieth century	256

Cambridge University Press
0521850916 - An Economic History of South Africa: Conquest, Discrimination and Development
Charles H. Feinstein
Table of Contents
More information

Contents	xi
Annexe 2: the land and the geographical environment	260
The land area and the geological legacy	260
Rainfall, soil, and vegetation	262
Diseases and pests	264
Agricultural regions	266
Annexe 3: the labour force and unemployment	269
The census benchmarks	271
Labour market ratios	273
Interpolation and classification by economic sector	276
Guide to further reading	277
References	287
Index	294