

Index

- Adams, Maurice 34
 Aden Volcanics 472–473
 Adirondack metamorphic rocks, magnetic cleaning 370–371
 aeolian deposits, test for paleomagnetism 161–162
see also paleowind studies
- Africa
 APW path for southern Africa 211–213
 fit to South America 317–320
 Karoo system surveys (1959) 208–213
 Karoo basalts 219–220
 Pilansberg dykes 28, 95, 208
see also South Africa
- Alaskan orocline, Carey's solution 304–308
- Alderman, A. R. 134
- Almeida, F. F. M. 239–240
- Almond, Mary 60–61, 104–106, 140
- alternating magnetic field (AF) cleaning 213–218
 method 213
- Andrade, E. N. da C. 310, 311
- Anglo-Welsh Curvette, Old Red Sandstone 87
- Antarctica
 Queen Maud's Land basalts 79–80 surveys 226
- Antrim basalts (Giant's Causeway) 24–25
- ANU see Australian National University
- Appalachian Orogeny 15, 17–20, 125
- Appalachian sediments 20–23 see also Rose Hill Formation, Maryland
- APW (apparent polar wander) paths xviii, 32, 95–96
 and paleowind studies 243–244
- Australia 208
 comparison with paleoclimatic data 206–207 comparison with paths from elsewhere 207–208
 Paleozoic glaciations 206–207
- Britain
 compared with North American Silurian pole 117–122
 Creer 95–96, 117, 120–122
 Irving 135–137
- Europe, Runcorn 130–131
- Japan 228
- North America
 Irving 135–137
 Runcorn 130–131
 paleoclimatically-based 77–79 rapidly spiraling (Hibberd) 380–383
 South America 220–222
 southern Africa 211–213
 use in paleogeographic reconstructions 251
see also polar wandering
- Arabian peninsula rotation 379
- Argand, E. 37, 140–141, 181–182, 292, 298, 299, 308, 374, 378
- Argentina, Neuquén lavas 219
- Arkell, W. J. 130, 397
- As, J. A. 214, 215–217
- attacks on the paleomagnetic case 364
 Billings attacks support for mobilism 400–402
 Cox's aberrant Siletz paleopole 371–378
 Graham's magnetostriction difficulty 364–371
 Hibberd's spiraling polar wander paths 380–383
 Jeffreys attacks paleomagnetism and mobilism 402–404
 Munk and MacDonald attack paleomagnetism 392–400
 prevalence of the three research strategies (RS) 404–406
 Stehli's Permian paleobiogeographic difficulty 384–389
see also reviews of paleomagnetism (Cox and Doell)
- Australia, APW path for 206–208
- Australian National University
 APW path for Australia 208
 Geophysics Department 131–134
 Irving's initial work 134–138
 Irving's move to 101–102, 104, 131–134
 paleomagnetism research 131–134 potassium-argon laboratory 473–474

- Australian National University (cont.)
 radiometric reversal timescale development 469–484
 Reynolds mass spectrometer 473–474
 axial non-dipole fields 260–261
- Babcock, H. W. 5
- Baglietto, Ing. 219
- Bagnold, R. A. 233–234, 235, 236, 240, 242–243
- Baker, H. B. 342
- Balsley, J. R. 366, 423–424, 480, 481
- Banks, M. R. 332
- barchan dunes 235–236
- basalts, volcanic origins 24–25
- Beacon Sandstones, Antarctica 222, 224
- Belousov, V. V. 232, 233
- Belshé, J. C. 122, 130, 234
- Berkeley teaching, influence on Cox and Doell 412–422
- Bernard Price Institute, South Africa
 208–209, 365
- Bigarella, Jao Jose 218
- Billings, M. P. 400–402
- Birch, Francis 351
- Black, Maurice 36
- Blackett P.M.S. 3, 111, 193, 330–331
 astatic magnetometer 59, 60
 at Manchester University 3–5 conversion to mobilism 154
 early life and career 3
 expansion of Manchester group 60–61 fundamental (distributed) theory of the geomagnetic field 3–5, 10–11, 38 Iberian Peninsula research 140–141 interest in India 58
 interest in paleoclimatology 138
 interest in paleomagnetism 10–11, 12, 13
 learning about geology 58
 magnetometer 1, 2, 38
 move to Imperial College, London 56 Nobel Prize in Physics 3
 on Fisher's defense of mobilism 69
 paleomagnetic research in India 138–140
 paleomagnetism research program 57–59
 phenomenological approach at Imperial College 263–274
 principle of uniformitarianism 271
 questions on dune studies 242–243 reaction to Irving's initial results 57 recruitment of Clegg for paleomagnetism group 59
 research group 1
 strong preference for mobilism 141–145
 support for continental drift 95
 support for paleomagnetists 147
 using paleomagnetism to test continental drift 58 views on other geomagnetic field theories 7
- Weizmann Memorial Lectures (Rehovoth, 1954)
 141–145
- Blundell, D. J. 223
- Bott, Martin 34
- Bradley, John
 criticism by New Zealand geologists 178–179 criticism of Runcorn's anti-mobilism view 169, 175–178, 179–182
 early life and education 178
 Euler's point theorem 191–192
 paper on paleomagnetism and mobilism 179–182
 support for continental drift 178–182
- bricks, magnetization during firing 24
- Bridgman, P. W. 316
- “brique naturelle” (Brunhes) 24–25
- Britain, tracing movement during the Phanerozoic 84–88
- British APW paths
 compared with North American Silurian pole 117–122
 Creer 95–96, 117, 120–122
- British group
 approach compared to Carnegie group 145–148
 reaction to paleomagnetic results 145–148
- British paleomagnetists fruitfulness of paleomagnetic work 89–90 potential to test continental drift 89–90 shift towards testing mobilism (1951–1953) 56–57
- Broken Hill, Australia 312–314, 316
- Brown, D. A. 178
- Browne, B. C. 28, 45, 47–48, 82–83, 88, 102, 103–104, 148
- Browne, Ida 203
- Browne, W. R. 134, 203, 204–205, 295, 348
- Bruckshaw, J. McG. 10, 14, 78, 97, 223
- Brunhes, Bernard 24–25
- Brunnschweiler, R. O. 335–336, 337
- Bryan, W. H. 201
- Brynjolfsson, A. 213
- Bucher, Walter 123, 125, 158
- Buddington, A. F. 366
- Bull, Colin 226
- Bullard, Edward C. 1, 6, 7–8, 10, 11, 81, 154, 165, 191, 457–458
- Butler, C. C. 5
- Caithness Flags (Devonian), northeast Scotland 38
- Caledonian Orogeny 125
 fold study by Irving 64, 65
 Cambridge magnetometer 63
- Cambridge paleomagnetism group, Runcorn as motivating force 88
- Cambridge University 1
 Cavendish Laboratory 3
- Campbell, C. D. 88, 97

- Canberra group, attempts at paleogeographies 247
see also Australian National University
- Carboniferous, paleomagnetic record of Gondwana 44
- Carey, S. W. 140–141, 178, 181–182, 191, 247 accelerating rate of expansion 325–326 account of seafloor generation and expansion 327–330
 appeal to mantle convection 320–322 commitment to Earth expansion 293, 297 commitment to mobilism 293 defense of mobilism 297
 early life 293–294
 education and career 294–296
 European Alpine oroclinal 308–309
 examples of rheid flow 312–314
 fit of Africa and South America 317–320
 Hobart symposium (1956) 333–346
 mantle convection as rheid flow 314–317 megashears 307
 opinion on influence on Hess 329–330
 orocline solution for India 302–304
 oroclinal 297 personality and views 290–293
 rapid expansion theory 293 reasons for switch to expansionism 325–326
 reconstruction of Laurasia 304–308
 reconstruction of Pangea 325–326
 rheidity concept 309–312
 rotation of Iberia 299–302
 solid but flowing mantle 309–312 support for Earth expansion 278–279 switch to expansionism 323–326
 unbending of the Alaskan orocline 304–308
 use of paleomagnetic data 330–335 views prior to embracing expansionism 320–322
- Carnegie Institution, Washington, DC 1
- Carnegie Institution group 2
 abandonment of the fold test 17–20 approach compared to British group 145–148
 geomagnetic field studies 12–14
 Hospers' arguments against self-reversal hypothesis 72–74
 Hospers' reply to arguments against field reversal 71–74
 reaction to paleomagnetic results 145–148
 rejection of continental drift 12–14, 19–20, 22–23
 rejection of geomagnetic field reversals 12–14, 19–20, 22–23, 70
 rejection of mobilism 19–20, 22–23 rejection of polar wandering 19–20, 22–23 testing of fundamental and core theories 12–14
- Casper sandstone, Wyoming 237–238
- Castor, K. E. 335–336
- Chaloner, W. G. 444
- Chandrasekhar, Subrahmanyan 5
- Chaney, R. 418
- Chang, Wen-You 228
- Chapman, S. 7, 9, 10–11, 41–42, 84
- Charlesworth, H. A. K. 70, 78
- China 228
- Clark, Bob 179
- Clegg, J. A. 1, 32, 46, 97–98, 193 builds new magnetometer at Manchester 59–60 conversion to mobilism 154
 early life and career 59
 finding rocks for paleomagnetic studies 61–62 India work 182–190
 mobilism-related projects 138–141
 paleomagnetic research in India 138–140
 paleomagnetic support for continental drift 104–106
 recruitment to Blackett's paleomagnetism group 59 rejection of magnetostriction 368 research in India 95, 198–200
 work on India 164–165
 work Triassic fine-grained redbeds 61–62
see also Imperial College group
- Cleveland dykes, reversal of magnetism 10–11
- cloud chamber 3, 5
- Coconino sandstone, Arizona 236–238
- cold-origin Earth (Urey) 287
- Collinson, D. W. 62, 63, 67, 83, 86, 87, 88, 111, 156, 213
- Colorado Plateau 146
 Runcorn's work in 1954 122–124
- Columbia River Basalts, U.S.A. 88, 89
- competition among scientists 484–486
 radiometric reversal timescale development 469–484
- Condon, M. A. 324–325
- conglomerate field test 13, 14–15
- consistency (dispersion) test of paleomagnetic stability 31–32
- contact metamorphism 23–25
- continental drift 17
 and paleomagnetism (Sahni) 43–44 and polar wandering 258–259 conversion of paleomagnetists to 154 dismissal of 11
 first published paleomagnetic support for 104–106
 general acceptance of 486–487
 glacial evidence for 36
 Hospers early view on 26–29
 Imperial College approach 263–274
 Imperial College group inclines towards 138–141 Irving's introduction to 35–37 mantle convection as mechanism 181 necessity to explain paleomagnetic data 258–259 Pre-Cambrian 41, 46
 pre-Wegenerian 207–208

- continental drift (cont.)
 rejection by Carnegie Institution group 12–14, 19–20, 22–23
 rejection by Runcorn 125–129, 130–131 support from Blakett 95 testing by Hospers 75–80
 using paleomagnetism to test 2, 41, 58, 75–80, 89–90
see also mobilism; paleomagnetic test of continental drift
- Coriolis force 5–7, 89, 97, 161–162, 239, 241, 243
- Cotton, Leo A. 295, 317
- Cowling, T. G. 6, 7
- Cox, Allan 233
 aberrant Siletz paleopole 371–378
 account of the general acceptance of mobilism 486–487
 attitude towards mobilism before 1958 412, 417–422
 changing attitude to continental drift 486–487 correspondence with Irving 450–465
 influence of Berkeley teaching 412, 417–422
 on Irving's criticism of Nairn 363
 radiometric reversal timescale development 469–484
see also reviews of paleomagnetism (Cox and Doell)
- Craigriannan (Torrionian) sandstones 39–41
- creep in rock (Paterson) 310, 311
- Creer K. M. 32, 46, 48, 97
 APW path for South America 220–222
 attempts at paleogeographies 252
 British APW path 95–96
 British APW path compared with North American Silurian pole 117–122 construction of Cambridge magnetometer 82–84
 conversion to mobilism 154
 development of APW paths for Britain 117, 120–122
 development of magnetic cleaning 214–215, 217 disagreement with Runcorn over continental drift 125–127
 education and initiation in research 80–82
 empirical outlook 192–194
 explanation of Runcorn's shift to mobilism 169, 175–178
 first published paper on paleomagnetic APW path 125–127
 graduate research plan 84–88 interpretation of Rose Hill Formation results 146–147
 invitation to join Runcorn's group 80, 81–82 move to Newcastle with Runcorn 155
 on Carey 292
 on Hibbard's spiraling polar wander paths 380–383
 reason for targeting South America 218 response to Cox and Doell's GSA review 438–439
 role in Runcorn's shift to mobilism 192–194
 search for suitable rocks for study 84–88 shows Bradley's manuscript to Runcorn 169, 175–178, 182–187
 survey of South America 95, 218–222 tracing Britain's movement during the Phanerozoic 84–88 criticisms of the paleomagnetic case see attacks on the paleomagnetic case
- Curtis, Garniss 413, 414, 470–471, 473–474
- dacite lava, self-reversing 20, 73
- Dalrymple, B. 460, 469, 470–471, 473, 476
- Daly, R. A. 315, 330
- Darwin, G. 390
- David, Sir Edgeworth 206, 317
- David, P. 24–25
- David, T. W. E. 204
- Deccan Traps, India 58, 63, 98–100, 128–129, 138–140, 198–200, 368
- demagnetization procedures 213–218
- Desmarest, Nicholas 24–25
- Deutsch, E. R. 139, 193, 198, 233
- Devonian Old Red Sandstone (Creer), Wales 86–88
- Diabaig Group 67
- Dickens, J. M. 335–336, 338
- Dirac, P. M. 285–286, 287
- distributed theory of the geomagnetic field 1
- Doell, R. R. 13, 20, 22–23, 233
 attitude towards mobilism before 1958 412–417
 influence of Berkeley teaching 412–417
 interaction with Irving 488
 on Cox–Irving correspondence 465
 radiometric reversal timescale development 469–484
 work on the Grand Canyon 124 see also reviews of paleomagnetism (Cox and Doell)
- dolerites 10–11, 133, 134–138, 140
- Donovan, J. 113
- Du Bois, P. M. 109, 110, 122, 154, 234, 340–341, 368
- du Toit, Alex 26, 41–42, 115–116, 127–128, 140–141, 191, 201, 222, 224–226, 247,
 293, 299
- dune formation by winds 235–236
see also paleowind studies
- Durham, J. W. 130, 418
- dynamo theory 173
- Early Cambrian Caerbwddy Sandstones, Wales 87
- Early Quaternary lavas, Iceland 75, 77–79
- Early Tertiary brown sandstones, England 85
- Earth expansion and continental drift (Egyed) 281–282
 and mantle convection 320–322
 Carey's support for 278–279, 293, 297, 323–326

- Carey's switch to 323–326
 Cox and Doell's view 279, 466–469
 Egyed's theory 278–290
 Heezen's support for 278–279, 288, 290
 Holmes' views on 278–279, 282–285 interest in relation to mobilism 278–279 paleomagnetic test of 285–290 rejection by mobilists 335
 Earth science research, Runcorn's cross-disciplinary philosophy 47–48 Earthquakes and Mountains (Jeffreys, 1950) 37
 Eckart, C. 389
 Edale shales, Derbyshire 38
 Egyed, L. 330
 correspondence with Holmes 278–279, 282–285 development of expansion theory 285–290 expansion and continental drift 281–282
 paleomagnetic test of expansion theory 285–290
 theory of slow Earth expansion 278–282
 Einarsson, T. 70–71
 Elsasser, W. M. 5–7, 89
 England
 Early Tertiary brown sandstones 85
 Jurassic sedimentary rocks 85
 Late Precambrian Wentnor series, Shropshire 87
 Permian basalts, Exeter 86, 87
 Triassic red Keuper Marls, Sidmouth 85
 Eocene lava flows
 Northern Ireland 70, 78, 79
 Scotland 78
 Eocene paleogeography 99
 Eocene sandstones, Colorado 15
 Euler pole 191
 Euler's point theorem 191–192, 252, 317
 European Alpine oroclinal 308–309
 Evans, J. W. 335–336, 337
 Everitt, C. W. F. 198
 Evernden, J. 470–471, 473–474, 482
 Ewing, M. 4
 excursions (short-term regional reversals), Graham 21–22 Exeter Volcanic Traps, Devon 86, 87
 Fedinsky, V. V. 233
 Fermor, L. 42
 Ferrar Dolerites, Antarctica 222 field reversals see geomagnetic field reversals field stability tests 13 consistency (dispersion) test 31–32 development by Graham 14–17 reversal test 32
 see also fold test
 fine-grained redbeds, suitability for paleomagnetic study 56–57, 61–62 Fisher, R. A. 2, 29–30, 47, 452, 459
 defense of mobilism 68–69
 new statistics 31–32, 104, 262–263, 422
 on Hospers' work 70–71 statistical analysis of Irving's data 40–41 support for Irving's work in India 45
 support for paleomagnetists 147, 148
 view of Blackett 69
 Fisher distribution 30
 Fisher statistics 31–32, 104, 262–263, 422
 fixism/mobilism debate 148 evidence from paleomagnetism xvii–xviii fixists, conversion to mobilism 154 Flavill, L. 63, 83
 fold test 13
 abandonment by Graham 17–20
 Graham 14–17, 146–147, 194, 371
 Folgerhaiter, Giuseppe 24
 fossil evidence
 Gigantopteris distribution 43
 Glossopteris distribution 43, 420
 Matigobolobina typus (ostracod) 19, 21, 71
 Stehli's Permian paleobiogeographic difficulty 384–389
 France 140–141
 Frenkel, J. 7
 Fryer, Jack 294 fundamental (distributed) theory of the geomagnetic field (Blackett) 1, 3–5, 10–11, 38
 mine experiment 9
 GAD (geocentric axial dipole) hypothesis xvii, 1–2, 31, 42
 and paleowind studies 241, 243–244
 axial non-dipole fields 260–261
 dispersion of the geomagnetic field 262–263 evidence for 88, 89
 Irving's support for 135, 137
 Jaeger's view 347
 paleomagnetic deviations from the present GAD field 263–274
 role in paleomagnetic defense of mobilism 259–263
 Runcorn's reply to Billings' criticism 401–402
 Runcorn's theoretical framework 89 search for support for 357–358 support from Antarctic survey 222 support from Argentina 219 support from Australian results 205–206 support from Hospers' results 70, 75, 80 theoretical support 97
 geocentric axial dipole hypothesis see GAD geographic north pole, positions in the past 78
 geomagnetic field, origin of (Runcorn) 97
 geomagnetic field dispersion consistency with GAD model 262–263 latitude dependence 262–263
 geomagnetic field reversals 2 Cleveland dykes 10–11
 discovery by Graham 15–20

- geomagnetic field reversals (cont.)
 Hospers' case for 70–75
 Hospers' results from Iceland 30–31
 Keuper sediments 85
 lavas 1–2
 Pacific Islands surveys 469–484
 radiometric reversal timescale development 469–484
 rejection by Carnegie Institution 12–14, 19–20, 22–23 reversal test of stability 32
 reversal timescale (Hospers) 74–75
 Silurian sedimentary rocks 12–13
- geomagnetic field theories fundamental (distributed) theory 1, 3–5 self-exciting dynamo theory 5–7 testing of 5
- geomagnetism 1–2
Geomagnetism (Chapman and Bartels) 7, 10–11, 41–42, 84
Gigantopteris flora 43
 Gilbert, C. 285–286, 287
 Gill, Edmund D. 335–336, 338
- glaciation
 evidence for continental drift 36 see also Permo-Carboniferous glaciation
 Paleozoic glaciations in Australia 206–207
 Glen, W. 412, 413–414, 417–422, 469
 global mobilism test 31–32
 global paleomagnetic surveying (1954–1956) 94–95
Glossopteris distribution 43, 420
 Gold, T. 128, 130, 173, 193, 340–341, 343, 391, 392
 Gondwana 218, 247, 251, 293
 du Toit's reconstruction 224–226 location of China 228
 paleomagnetic record 44
 Gondwana system 36
 Good, Ronald 444
 Gough, D. I. 9, 95, 166, 167, 193, 208, 212, 262–263, 365
 Graham, J. W. 2, 44, 79, 122, 147, 158, 233, 266, 411, 415
 abandonment of the fold test 17–20
 argument with Irving 457–458 development of field tests of stability 13, 14–17 discovery of reverse magnetizations 15–20
 early life and career 13
 excursions (short-term regional reversals) 21–22
 fold test 14–20, 146–147, 194, 371
 Irving's view of 460
 magnetostriation difficulty and its removal 364–371 refusal to accept mobilism 194
 Rose Hill Formation results 146–147
 self-reversals rather than field reversals 20–23 Silurian data from Rose Hill Formation 117–122 support for fixism 148
- Graham, K. W. T. 95, 193, 209, 251–252, 365
 Grand Canyon
 Doell's work 124
 Runcorn's work 122–124, 129–131
 graphical techniques for removing VRMs 230
 for testing magnetic stability 230
 Great Glen Fault, Scotland 68
 Green, D. H. 351
 Green, R. 134, 186, 258, 330–331, 332, 457
 APW path for Australia 208
 explanation for Runcorn's shift to mobilism 169
 work with Irving 208
 Griffiths, D. H. 96, 98, 139
 Griggs, D. T. 311, 316, 389
 Gusev, B. V. 466
 Gutenberg, B. 42, 79, 115, 144
- Hales, A. L. 9, 95, 193, 208–209, 365
 Hall, James 298
 Hamilton, W. 410, 484
 Harland, B. 33, 36
 Haruna dacite, Japan 20, 73
 Hawaiian Islands, reversal surveys 469–484 heat flow 133
 Heezen, B. C. 278–279, 288, 290, 330
 Hemingway, J. 63–64, 102
 Hess, H. H. 125, 154, 158, 169–171, 329–330
 Hibberd, F. H., rapidly spiraling polar wander paths 380–383 Hide, R. 32, 33, 68, 89, 155, 162
 Hill, D. 201
 Hill, M. 115
 Hills, E. S. 348, 351
 Himalayas
 Carey's orocline concept 302
 creation of 200
 Hobart symposium (1956) 247, 248–249, 278, 321, 323–325, 327, 333–346, 350
 Holmes, A. 26, 58, 116, 144, 145, 178, 210, 235, 236, 242, 322, 330 assessment of Egyed's expansion theory 278–279, 282–285
 on Carey 291
 report on Carey's thesis 295–296
 seafloor generation 329 views on expansion theory 278–279, 282–285
 Hopkins, D. 469
 Hospers, J. 1–2, 12, 20, 32, 47, 89, 97, 193, 415 arguments against self-reversal hypothesis 72–74 arrival in Cambridge (1949) 25, 27–29 award of doctorate 70 builds an "igneous" magnetometer 69–70
 calculation of paleomagnetic poles 76–79 case for geomagnetic reversals 70–75 commencement of Iceland surveys 27–29

- decision to work on paleomagnetism 27–29
 doctoral thesis 70 doubts about long-term stability of sedimentary rocks 79–80
 early life and education 25–26
 early view on continental drift 26–29
 early view on polar wandering 26–29 Eocene basalts from Northern Ireland 70 evidence for field reversals 30–31 first results from Iceland 29–31 influence of Runcorn 29 influence of work on Runcorn 32–33 inversions of the geomagnetic field 30–31 reply to Carnegie arguments against geomagnetic reversal 71–74 results from Icelandic lavas 75–79 results from Northern Ireland 79 return to Iceland 69–70 reversal timescale 74–75
 statistical analysis of paleomagnetic data 29–30 support for GAD hypothesis 70, 75, 80
 support from Runcorn 147 testing continental drift 75–80
 polar wandering 75–80
 Hough, J. L. 14
 Howard, Leo 202
- Iberian Peninsula 181–182
 Carey's oroclines 299–302
 rotation 140–141, 299–302, 378–379
 Icelandic lavas 1–2, 20
 Early Quaternary lavas 75, 77–79
 Hospers' paleomagnetic surveys 27–29
 Hospers' results from 29–31, 75–79
 Hospers' return to Iceland (1951) 69–70
 Miocene lavas 75, 77–79
 support for GAD hypothesis 70, 75, 80
 Idyllwild Conference, UCLA, 1954 122
 igneous baked contact test of stability 23–25 Imperial College group complementary approach to other groups 271 disagreements with other groups 272–274 inclination towards continental drift 138–141
 paleomagnetic deviations from the present GAD field 263–274
 paleomagnetic research in India 138–140
 phenomenological approach 263–274
 polar wandering 266–267
 principle of uniformitarianism 271
 surveys of India 198–200
 test of continental drift 267–271 inclination of the field, relationship to latitude 41
 India
 Blackett's interest in 58
 Carey's orocline solution 302–304 change in latitude 41
 Clegg's work 95, 164–165, 182–190
 Deccan Traps 58, 63, 98–100, 128–129, 138–140, 198–200, 368
 Imperial College group surveys 138–140, 198–200
 Irving's test of motion 44–45
 Irving's work 98–100, 128–129, 139, 164–165
 paleomagnetism and continental drift (Sahni) 43–44 pole variations and continental drift 198–200
 Tata Institute surveys 198–200
 using paleomagnetism to test drift 41
 Irving, E. 2, 3, 23, 32, 47, 83, 97, 166 admission as Ph.D. research student 46–48
 Antarctic survey 226
 APW path for Australia 208
 APW paths for Britain and North America 135–137
 Arabian peninsula rotation 379 argument with John Graham 457–458
 attempts at paleogeographies 247
 Blackett's reaction to his early work 46–47
 conversion to mobilism 154
 correspondence with Cox 450–465 criticism of Nairn 359–363, 451, 452 criticism of the GSA review 453–465
 delay in focusing on continental drift 45–46
 disagreements with Imperial College approach 272–274
 early education and undergraduate years 34–37
 empirical outlook 192–194
 explains the aberrant Siletz paleopole 375–378
 first work with Runcorn (1951) 37–41
 Fisher's help with statistical analysis 40–41
 Geofisica paper (1956) 134–138, 182–190
 Hobart symposium (1956) 335–336, 345
 initial work at Australian National University 134–138 interaction with Doell 488
 introduction to continental drift theory 35–37 investigation of polar wandering 258–259 magnetization of slump beds 64–65, 66–67
 magnetostratigraphic survey of the Torridonian 67
 method of paleocolatitude circles 254–257 move to ANU 101–102, 104, 131–134
 on Carey 291, 292, 323–325, 332–335
 on Hibbard's spiraling polar wander paths 380–383
 on Jaeger 346–351
 on magnetic cleaning 216–217
 on Munk and MacDonald 399–400
 on Stehli's Permian paleobiogeographic difficulty 387–389
 on the magnetostriction difficulty 369, 371 origin of magnetization of the Torridonian 62–67 Ph.D. thesis 101–104

- Irving, E. (cont.)
 radiometric reversal timescale development 469–484
 research assistant to Runcorn 34
 response to Cox and Doell's GSA review 438, 449–450
 role in Runcorn's shift to mobilism 192–194
 Runcorn's reaction to his early work 46–48
 Runcorn's view of work on India 128–129
 sedimentation processes and magnetization 65–67
 text book on paleomagnetic research 363 Torridonian work 98, 100–101
 translation of Khramov's book publications 228–229 use of paleoclimatic data 134, 135, 138
 using paleomagnetism to test continental drift 41
 view of John Graham 460
 work on India 44–45, 98–100, 128–129, 139, 164–165
 work with Ron Green 208
- Isle of Mull, Early Tertiary dykes 10–11
- isothermal remanent magnetization (IRM)
see viscous remanent magnetization (VRM)
- Jacobs, Jack 416–417
- Jaeger, J. C. 101, 104, 134, 140, 200, 202, 205, 228–229, 310, 317, 331–332
 Geophysics Department at ANU 131–134
 Hobart symposium (1956) 335–336
 potassium-argon facility at ANU 473–474
 Reynolds mass spectrometer at ANU 473–474 view on mobilism 346–351
- Japan
 APW path for 228
 rotation 379
- Japanese Antarctic research 223
- Jardetzky, W. 392
- Jeffreys, H. 37, 45, 125, 127, 173, 201, 208, 287, 312, 314, 317, 318–320, 326, 364, 389, 402–404
- Jodrell Bank observatory 59
- Johnson, E. A. 12–14
 spinner magnetometer 12
- Jones, O. T. 111, 125
- Joplin, G. A. 133, 134, 331–332, 473
- Jurassic Drakensberg basalts, South Africa 79–80
Jurassic Geology of the World (Arkell) 130
- Jurassic Karroo dolerites, South Africa 95
- Jurassic Rajmahal Traps, India 200
- Jurassic sedimentary rocks, England 85
- Karoo lavas, Zimbabwe 95
- Karoo system surveys (1959) 208–213
- Karoo basalts of southern Africa 219–220
- Kay, M. 339
- Kegal, W. 218
- Kennedy, G. C. 389
- Kern, J. W. 370–371
- Keunen, P. H. 25, 26–27
- Keuper Marls, Sidmouth, England 85
- Khramov, A. N. 94, 247, 462
 graphical methods for removing VRMs 230 graphical techniques for testing magnetic stability 230 on polar wandering 230 support for mobilism 228
 surveys in the USSR 228
- Kiaman Reversed Polarity Superchron 478, 479
- King, L. 79–80, 179, 247, 323–325, 332, 335–336
- King, R. F. 96, 98
- King, W. B. R. 38, 57, 58
- Knight, S. H. 237–238
- Köppen, W. 76, 77–79, 97, 99, 112, 116, 200, 247
- Kreichgauer, D. 77–79, 112
- Krishnan, K. S. 43
- Krishnan, M. S. 45
- Kuenen, Ph. H. 65
- Kuttung Series, Australia 205, 206
- La Tectonique de l'Asie* (Argand, 1924) 37, 298
- laboratory stability tests 13
- Laming, D. J. C. 238–239, 246
- Larmor, J. 6, 7
- Late Cenozoic Newer Volcanics, Victoria, Australia 205–206
- Late Paleozoic red sandstones (Colorado) 15
- Late Precambrian Torridonian (Irving) 84
- Late Precambrian Wentnor series, Long Mynd, Shropshire 87
- Late Tertiary Columbia River Basalts 88, 89
- latitude, and inclination of the magnetic field 41
- Laurasia 247, 251, 293
 Carey's reconstruction 304–308
- lavas, magnetization variation 1–2
- Lees, G. M. 318
- Lehmann, I. 6
- Leinz, V. 218
- lightning, effects on rock magnetization 365
- Littleton, R. 69
- London (Imperial College) symposium (1956) 247, 248–249
- Longacre, A. 4
- Longwell, C. R., Hobart symposium (1956) 335–346
- Lovell, B. 3, 59
- Lower Torridonian 67
- Lowes, F. J. 25, 32, 155
- Ma, Ting Ying 115–116
- Maack, R. 218, 248, 332, 335–336
- MacDonald, G. J. F. 364, 389, 417 attack (with Munk) on paleomagnetism 392–400 work with Munk 389–390
- magnetic cleaning 213–218

- Adirondack metamorphic rocks 370–371 methods 213
 magnetic field inclination, relationship to latitude 41 magnetic stability, graphical techniques for testing 230 magnetization and sedimentation processes 65–67
 magnetometers 4
 Blackett's 1, 2, 38, 59, 60
 Cambridge 63
 Clegg's at Manchester 59–60
 Creer's at Cambridge 82–84 development of new designs in Britain 89–90
 Hospers' "igneous" magnetometer 69–70
 Irving and Green's ANU construction 202
 mine experiment 9
 magnetostratigraphic survey of the Torridonian 67
 magnetostriction difficulty (Graham) 364–371
 Mam Tor limestone 38
 Manchester University 1, 3
 Manley, H. 28
 mantle, solid but flowing concept (Carey) 309–312 mantle convection
 and Earth expansion 320–322
 as mechanism of continental drift 181, 188
 as rheid flow (Carey) 314–317
 mass spectrometers 470–471, 473–474
 Massif Central, France 24–25
 Oligocene dykes, necks, and sills 78
 Plio-Pleistocene and Mio-Pliocene lavas 75, 77–79
Matigobolibina typus (fossil ostracod) 19, 21, 71
 Matthew, W. D. 338
 Matthews, G. 59
 Mawson, D. 310
 McDougall, I. 469–484
 McElhinny, M. W. 262–263
 McKee, E. D. 184–185, 236–238
 McKenzie, D. 389
 megashears (Carey) 307
 Menard, H. W. 169, 171–172, 389, 399, 401
 Mercanton, P. L. 79, 232
 Milankovitch, M. 77–79, 392
 Miocene Ellensburg Formation, Washington 15
 Miocene lavas
 Iceland 75, 77–79
 Pontfarcin, France 25
 Mio-Pliocene lavas, Massif Central, France 75, 77–79 missing-data difficulty in the case for mobilism 358–359 mobilism
 and Earth expansion 278–279
 attitude of Cox and Doell 411–422
 Blackett's strong preference for 141–145
 Carey's commitment to 293, 297 conversion of fixists to 154 defense by Fisher 68–69
 general acceptance of 486–487
 loss of interest in 1–2 rejection by Tuve and Carnegie group 19–20, 22–23 use of paleomagnetism to test 2, 28, 43–44, 75–80 see also continental drift; paleomagnetic case for mobilism; paleomagnetic support for mobilism mobilism/fixism debate 148 evidence from paleomagnetism 15–16
 Munk, W. H. 364, 389 attack (with MacDonald) on paleomagnetism 392–400 changing views on polar wandering 390–392 work with MacDonald 389–390
 Murphy, T. 12–14
 Nagata, T. 106, 223, 228
 Nairn, A. E. M. 95, 122, 138, 210–213, 234, 235, 248, 365
 APW path for southern Africa 211–213
 attempts at paleogeographies 252
 criticism by Irving 451, 452 disagreement with Irving 359–363 study of China 228
 Nance, John 158 natural remanent magnetization (NRM) of rocks 1 stability concerns 213
 see also paleomagnetism
 Néel, L., self-reversal hypothesis 20–22, 97, 146, 194, 230
 Hospers' reply to self-reversal proposals 72–74
 Nehru, Jawaharlal 138
 Neptunism 25
 Neuquén lavas, southern Argentina 219
 New Red Sandstone (Triassic) (Clegg) 61–62, 84
 New Zealand geologists, disagreement with Bradley 178–179
 Newcastle, Runcorn's move to 155–156
 Newcastle group
 attempts at paleogeographies 247
 complementary approaches of various groups 271
 disagreements with Imperial College approach 272–274
 paleowind studies 239–240, 241–242, 243–246
 studies of North America 239–240
 Newer Volcanics, Victoria, Australia 205–206
 Nichols, G. D. 97
 Nieuwenkamp, W. 26
 Noakes, L. 204
 North America, Runcorn's work in 122–124, 129–131, 154–155 see also specific formations and locations
 Northern Ireland
 Eocene lava flows 70, 78, 79
 Hospers' results from 79

- oceanic crust
 Carey's account of creation 327–330
 Carey's account of destruction 322
- oceanic trenches 322
- Oligocene dykes, necks, and sills, Massif Central, France 78
- Oligocene-Miocene tholeiite dykes, northern England 78
- Opdyke, N. D. 3, 37, 122, 138, 154–155, 262–263
 explanation for Runcorn's shift to mobilism 169, 172–174
 paleoclimatologic test of paleomagnetism 155, 156–162
 paleowind studies 234–238, 239–240, 241–242, 243–246
 working with Runcorn 156–162
- Öpik, A. A. 324–325, 335–336
- Oregon Coast Range, rotation of 377–378
- oroclines (Carey)
 European Alpine oroclinal 308–309
 reconstruction of Laurasia 304–308
 reconstruction of Pangea 297
 rotation of Iberia 299–302
 solution for India 302–304
 unbending of the Alaskan orocline 304–308
- Our Wandering Continents* (du Toit) 41–42
- overprint (secondary magnetization) 85 removal through magnetic cleaning 213–218
- Pacca, Igor 218
- Pacific Islands, reversal surveys 469–484
- Paleozoic geomagnetic field 20–23
- paleobotany 43
- paleoclimatic data
 comparison with APW path for Australia 206–207 polar wander paths based on 77–79 test of paleomagnetism 155, 156–162, 271
- paleoclimatology 96 relationship to paleomagnetism 134, 135, 138
- paleocolatitude circles method (Irving) 254–257
- paleogeographies
 attempts by Newcastle and Canberra groups 247 based on paleomagnetic data 247 hemispheric uncertainty 250–251 longitudinal uncertainty 248–249, 251, 254–257 reconstruction of Köppen and Wegener 200
 use of APW paths 251
- paleo-islands, paleowind studies 246–247
- paleomagnetic case for mobilism
 finding support for the GAD hypothesis 357–358 maintaining standards of research 359–363 missing-data difficulty 358–359 quarrels among supporters of mobilism 359–363 removing difficulties during development 355–359 research strategies 355–356
see also attacks on the paleomagnetic case
- paleomagnetic data deviations from the present GAD field 263–274 field tests 2 reliability testing 2 reliable recording in rocks 2
- paleomagnetic data analysis
 statistical analysis 29–30
 Fisher distribution 30
 Fisher's new statistics 31–32, 104, 262–263, 422
- paleomagnetic global mobilism test 31–32
- paleomagnetic poles, Hospers' calculations 76–79
- paleomagnetic results, differing reactions of British and Carnegie groups 145–148
- paleomagnetic studies
 Cleveland dykes 10–11
 finding suitable rocks 61–62
 use of Blackett's magnetometer 1, 2
- paleomagnetic support for mobilism (1956–1960) 197–198
- APW path for Australia 208
 attempts at paleogeographies 247
 increasing necessity for continental drift 258–259
 Karoo system surveys (1959) 208–213
 magnetic cleaning of paleomagnetic data 213–218 new support for the GAD model 259–263
 paleowind studies 233–247
 phenomenological approach at Imperial College 263–274
 pole variations in Indian rocks 198–200 pre-Wegenerian drift 207–208 surveys of Antarctica 226 surveys of China 228
 surveys of India 198–200
 surveys of Japan 228 surveys of South America 218–222 surveys of the USSR 228–233
- paleomagnetic test of continental drift 89–90
- APW path for North America and Europe 130–131
- APW paths for Britain (Creer) 117, 120–122
- Blackett's strong preference for mobilism 141–145
- British APW and North American data compared 117–122
- differing reactions to paleomagnetic results 145–148
- emergence of the case for mobilism 94–95
- first published support for continental drift 104–106
- global paleomagnetic surveying (1954–1956) 94–95
- Imperial College group research 138–141

- Irving's work at ANU 134–138
 January 1954 Birmingham meeting 96–98
 paleomagnetic research in India 138–140
 Runcorn's attitude to polar wandering 122–124
 Runcorn's rejection of continental drift 130–131
 Runcorn's rejection of mobilism 125–129
 Runcorn's support for polar wandering 128, 129–131
 Stage I 95, 104–106
 Stage II 95, 117
 Stage III 95–96, 108, 117–122, 138–141
 Stage IV 96, 134–138
 paleomagnetic test of expansion theory 285–290
 paleomagnetism
 and continental drift (Sahni) 43–44 and paleosecular variation 2
 at Australian National University 131–134 clash of results and ideas 12–14 concerns about reliability of data 356–357
 early work of Runcorn and Irving 37–41 empirical and theoretical outlooks 192–194 post WWII research groups 1–2 relationship to paleoclimatology 134, 135, 138 research challenges in a newly developing field 355–359 role in the fixism/mobilism debate 15–16 testing continental drift theory 41, 58, 75–80 using to test mobilism 75–80
Paleomagnetism (Irving), review by Cox 465–466 Paleomagnetism and Stratigraphic Correlation (Khramov) 228–229 paleopoles 95–96
 comparison of British and North American results 130–131 paleosecular variation 2, 262–263
 paleowind studies
 and APW paths 243–244 dune studies 235–236
 early work 233–238
 Newcastle contribution 243–246
 Newcastle studies of North America 239–240
 Opdyke 234–238, 239–240, 241–242, 243–246
 paleo-island lee and windward shores 246–247
 Royal Astronomical Society meeting (1957) 240–243
 Runcorn 239–240, 241–242, 243–246
 support for mobilism 233–247
 test for paleomagnetism 161–162 work in Britain in the 1950s, 238–239
 Paleozoic geomagnetic field 15, 17–20
 Paleozoic glaciations, Australia 206–207
 Pangea 44, 247, 251, 281–282, 293, 325–326
 Parry, J. 154, 155, 173, 175
 Paterson, M. S. 133, 310–311, 317
 Pederson, Snowy 203
 Permian basalts, Exeter Volcanic Traps, Devon 86, 87
 Permian paleobiogeographic difficulty (Stehli) 384–389
 Permo-Carboniferous glaciation 127–128, 142, 187–190, 205, 341–343, 420
 Phanerozoic, tracing Britain's movement during 84–88 Phemister, T. C. 38
 phenomenological approach at Imperial College 263–274
 Pickering, Jim 38
 Pilansberg dykes, southern Africa 28, 95, 208
 plate tectonics 248, 257, 335, 470
 Pleistocene varved clays (Connecticut) 15
 Plio-Pleistocene lavas, Massif Central, France 75, 77–79
 polar wandering 95
 and continental drift 258–259 attempts to distinguish from drift 258–259
 Hospers early view on 26–29
 Imperial College group studies 266–267
 rejection by Carnegie Institution group 19–20, 22–23
 Runcorn's support for 97, 98, 122–124, 128, 129–131
 testing by Hospers 75–80
 see also APW (apparent polar wander) paths Pontfarenin lavas, France 25
 Poole, F. G. 245
 potassium-argon facility at ANU 473–474
 pottery, magnetization during firing 24
 Pre-Cambrian continental drift 41
 see also Pilansberg dykes; Torridonian Sandstone Series Principles of Geology (Gilluly, Waters, and Woodford, 1951) 419–421
Principles of Physical Geology (Holmes) 58, 144, 145
 Purple Sandstone, northern Punjab 43–44
 Quaternary, polar wandering 76–79
 Queen Maud's Land (Antarctica) basalts 79–80
 Raasch, G. O. 246–247
 Radakrishnamurty, C. 198–200, 368
 radiometric reversal timescale development 469–484
 competition among scientists 469–484
 Rajmahal Traps, India 200
 Ramsey, W. H. 280
 red beds (fine-grained red sandstones and siltstones) 2 early paleomagnetic studies 37–41 suitability for paleomagnetic study 61–62, 89–90 red-purple fine grained sandstones, suitability for paleomagnetic study 86–88 Reiche, P. 235, 236–238
 research standards in paleomagnetism 359–363

- research strategies (RS), prevalence in the drift debate 404–406
- research strategy 1 (RS1)
- alternative interpretations 429
 - Carey's orocline solutions 299, 307, 308
 - definition xviii
 - dilatation theory (Egyed) 280
 - Egyed's expansion theory 284–285
 - fit of continental margins 320
 - magnetostriction difficulty 368
 - paleomagnetic case for mobilism 355–356, 357, 359
 - paleowind studies 243, 244
 - polar wandering and drift 385, 387
 - polar wandering without drift 341
 - prevalence in the drift debate 404–406
 - statistical methods 448
- research strategy 2 (RS2)
- attack on the GAD hypothesis 400
 - Carey's fit of continental margins 339
 - Carey's orocline solutions 308
 - data unreliability difficulty 428
 - definition 16
 - explanation for Indian pole variations 198–200
 - geomagnetic reversals 21
 - Hospers' case for geomagnetic reversals 71–74
 - identifying ancient sand dunes 398
 - magnetostriction difficulty 368, 369
 - paleomagnetic case for mobilism 355–356, 357, 359
 - paleowind studies 244–245
 - polar wander paths and drift 380–383
 - polar wandering 393, 394
 - polar wandering and drift 384, 386, 387
 - polar wandering without drift 341
 - prevalence in the drift debate 404–406
 - questioning mobilistic interpretations 428
 - stability of magnetization in rocks 365
 - theoretical difficulty 461
 - unreliability difficulty 448
- research strategy 3 (RS3)
- alternative interpretations 429
 - Carey's orocline solutions 299, 307
 - definition 16
 - fit of continental margins 320
 - Hospers' case for geomagnetic reversals 73
 - paleomagnetic case for mobilism 355–356
 - paleowind studies 244–245
 - polar wander paths and drift 381, 382
 - polar wandering and drift 384
 - prevalence in the drift debate 404–406
- reversal test of stability 32
- reversal timescale (Hospers) 74–75
- reversals see geomagnetic field reversals
- reviews of paleomagnetism (Cox and Doell)
- AG review (1961a) 410
 - AG review analysis 434–438
 - attitude towards mobilism before 1958 411–422
 - Cox–Irving correspondence relating to 450–465
 - Cox reviews Irving's Paleomagnetism 465–466
 - Creer's response to the GSA review 438–439
 - earlier attitude to the paleomagnetic case for mobilism 431–434
 - genesis of GSA and AG reviews 422–424
 - GSA review (1960) 410
 - GSA review analysis 424–431
 - Hamilton on 410
 - influence of the GSA review 410–411
 - influences on their approach 411–422
 - Irving becomes critical of the GSA review 453–465
 - Irving's response to the GSA review 438, 449–450
 - later reflections on the GSA review 444–447
 - reflections on the GSA review assessment 438–444
 - Runcorn's response to the GSA review 438, 447–448
 - views on expansion 279, 466–469
- Reynolds, J. H. 470
- Reynolds mass spectrometer 470–471, 473–474
- rheid flow
- examples of (Carey) 312–314
 - mantle convection as (Carey) 314–317
- rheidity concept (Carey) 309–312
- rift valleys, Carey's account of 327–330
- Ringwood 346, 351
- Robertson, Bill 203
- Robertson, E. I. 10, 14, 78
- Roche, A. 73, 75, 78, 89, 216
- Rochester, G. D. 5
- Rose Hill Formation, Maryland 15–17, 20–23
- Graham's Silurian data 117–122
 - interpretations of results 15–17, 20–23, 146–147
 - magnetization 17–20
- rotations
- Arabian peninsula 379
 - Iberian peninsula 140–141, 181–182, 299–302, 378–379
 - implications of 378–380
 - Japan 379
 - Oregon Coast Range 377–378
- Royal Astronomical Society meeting (1957) 240–243
- RS see research strategies
- Runcorn, S. K. 223
- APW path for North America and Europe 130–131
 - assistant lectureship in physics at Manchester University 3
 - attempts at paleogeographies 252
 - attitude to polar wandering 122–124
 - axial non-dipole fields 260–261
 - cross-disciplinary research in Earth science 47–48

- decision to work on paleomagnetism 32–34
 delay in focusing on continental drift 45–46
 disagreement with Creer over continental drift 125–127
 disagreements with Imperial College approach 272–274
 early life and career 2–3
 first work with Irving (1951) 37–41
 Grand Canyon survey 129–131 hiring of Irving as research assistant 34
 Hobart symposium paper 340–341
 Idyllwild Conference, UCLA, 1954 122
 influence of Hospers' work 32–33 influence on Hospers 29
 interest in paleoclimatology 138
 interest in paleomagnetism 10–11
 interest in reversals 33
 interest in secular variation 2, 11, 32–33, 37–39 invitation to Creer to join his paleomagnetic group 80, 81–82 mines experiment 9
 model of the Earth's magnetic field 89 motivating force for Cambridge paleomagnetism group 88 move to Cambridge in 1950 1–2
 move to Newcastle 234
 move to University College of Newcastle upon Tyne 95 North American survey 122–124, 129–131 offer of Ph.D. research position to Irving 46–48
 on Carey 292
 on Fisher's defense of mobilism 68–69
 on Irving's Ph.D. dissertation 103–104
 on Stehli's Permian paleobiogeographic difficulty 384–387 origin of the geomagnetic field 97 paleomagnetic group at Cambridge 29–30 paleomagnetism research group 25
 paleomagnetism's case for mobilism 246
 paleowind studies 239–240, 241–242, 243–246
 problem of analysis of Hospers' data 29–30 recruitment of Nairn 210
 rejection of continental drift 125–129, 130–131
 reply to Billings' attack on the GAD hypothesis 401–402 research 88–89
 research group 1
 research philosophy 88
 response to Cox and Doell's GSA review 438, 447–448
 return to Cambridge (1950) 12, 25, 29 sampling in the Colorado Plateau (1954) 122–124 support for Irving's work 44–45
 support for paleomagnetists 147–148
 support for polar wandering 97, 98, 128, 129–131 testing geomagnetic field theories 5, 9 theoretical framework for the GAD hypothesis 89 time at Manchester University 5 view of Irving's Indian results 128–129 work in the United States 97 Runcorn's shift to mobilism 154 arguments in support of continental drift 187–190
 Bradley's criticism of Runcorn 175–178, 179–182
 Canadian paper 162–165, 167–168, 177–178, 182–187 change to support for continental drift 162–165
 Creer shows him Bradley's manuscript 169, 175–178, 182–187
 Creer's explanation 169, 175–178
 Dutch paper 162–165, 182–190
 Euler's point theorem 191–192
 false accounts of why he changed his mind 169–172 geophysical difficulties 192–194
 Green's explanation 169 implications of seeing Bradley's paper 182–187 knowledge of Clegg's India work 169, 182–190 knowledge of Irving's Geofisica paper 169, 182–190 Menard's explanation 169, 171–172
 move to Newcastle 155–156
 new paleoclimatologic test of paleomagnetism 155, 161–162 Opdyke's explanation 169, 172–174 opinions on why he changed his mind 168–169 opinions which he valued 193–194 own reasons for change of mind 165–168, 182–187
 paleomagnetic group at Newcastle 155–156 reluctance to accept mobilism 192–194 return to North America 154–155 Sullivan's explanation 169–171 theoretical difficulties 192–194
 VRM and longitude 167–168, 172, 187
 Westoll's influence 156, 169, 172–174 work with Opdyke 154–155, 156–162
 Russian Platform 94, 229–230
 Rutherford, Ernest 3, 59
 Rutten, M. G. 26, 27, 29, 378–379, 457–458
 Sahasrabudhe, P. W. 198–200, 368
 Sahni, B. 43–44
 Saline Series of the Salt Range, northern Punjab, dating of 43–44
 Schuchert, C. 307–308
 Schuster, A. 4–5
 Schwartz, E. J. 379
 Sclater, J. 404
 Scotland
 Caithness Flags 38
 Caledonian orogeny (mid-Paleozoic) 64, 65, 125

- Scotland (cont.)
 Eocene lava flows 78
 Great Glen Fault 68
 Hebridean basalts 24–25
 Isle of Mull Early Tertiary dykes 10–11
 Stac Fada, Wester Ross 64–65
see also Torridonian Sandstone Series seafloor generation, Holmes' account 329
 seafloor generation and expansion, Carey's account 327–330 seafloor spreading 171, 329–330, 364, 470 secondary magnetization (overprint), removal through magnetic cleaning 213–218 secular variation 2, 16, 63, 472–473
 Bullard's interest in 10, 11
 Runcorn's interest in 2, 11, 37–39
 sedimentary rocks magnetization studies 12–14 question of long-term magnetic stability 79–80
 sedimentation processes and magnetization 65–67
 seif (longitudinal) dunes 235–236
 self-exciting dynamo theory 5–7
 self-reversal hypothesis (Néel) 20–22, 97, 146, 194, 230 Hospers' reply to 72–74
 self-reversing Haruna dacite 20, 73
 Serra Geral Formation, South America 219–220
 Shepard, F. 65, 389
 Shimizu, Y. 223
 Sholpo L. Ye. 229
 Shotton, F. W. 235, 236, 238–239, 240, 242–243, 244
 Siberian Platform 229
 Siberian Traps 233
 Siletz River Volcanics (Cox) 371–378
 Silurian deepwater mudstone, Cumbria 38
 Silurian formations, magnetization surveys 17–20
 Silurian Rose Hill Formation see Rose Hill Formation
 Silurian sedimentary rocks, magnetization studies 12–13
 Simpson, G. G. 338
 Slichter, L. B. 88, 122, 123, 124
 Snively, P. 372
 South Africa
 Jurassic Drakensberg basalts 79–80
 Jurassic Karroo dolerites 95
 Pilansberg dykes 28, 208
 South America
 APW path (Creer) 220–222
 Creer's research 95 fit to Africa 317–320 survey 218–222
 Spain see Iberian peninsula specularite 66
 spinner magnetometers
 Johnson 12
 Vincenz 29
 Squantum Tillite 135, 420
 Stac Fada, Wester Ross, Scotland 64–65
 Stacey, F. D. 368–370, 371
 statistical analysis
 Fisher's new statistics 31–32, 104, 262–263, 422
 of dispersed data 1–2
 of paleomagnetic data 29–30, 40–41
 Stehli, F. 384–389
 Stephenson, P. J. 223
 Stevens, G. 178–179
 Stirton, R. A. 335–336, 338
 Stoer Group 64–65, 67
 Stott, P. M. 368–370, 371
 Strahow, N. M. 281
 stress, effects on magnetization 364–371
 Stubbs, Peter 60–61, 104–106, 140–141, 198
see also Imperial College group
 Suess, F. E. 298, 308
 Sullivan, W. 169–171
 Supai Formation 167, 172, 245
 Swann, W. F. G. 4
 Tarling, D. H. 379, 469–484
 Tasmanian dolerites 134–138, 140
 Tata Institute of Fundamental Research, Bombay (Mumbai) 198–200
 Termier, G. 281
 Termier, H. 281
 Tertiary dykes, U.K. 10–11
 Tertiary polar wandering 76–79
 Tethys Sea 308–309
 Tharp, M. 288, 330
The Earth (Jeffreys) 364, 402–404
The Geography of Flowering Plants (Good, 1953) 444
The Internal Constitution of the Earth (Gutenberg, 1951) 144
The Physics of Blown Sand and Desert Dunes (Bagnold) 233–234, 235, 236
The Road to Jaramillo (Glen, 1982) 412, 413–414, 417–422, 469
The Rotation of the Earth (Munk and MacDonald) 364, 392–400 thermal cleaning (TH) 213–218
 method 213
 tholeiite dykes of northern England (Oligocene-Miocene) 78
 Thomas, G. A. 335–336, 338
 Thompson, W. O. 236–238
 Tibetan plateau
 Carey's orocline concept 302
 creation of 200
 tile test see fold test time average field, form of 15
 Torreson, O. E. 12–14, 17–20, 146
 Torridon Group 67

- Torridonian Sandstone Series, Scotland
38–41, 97
- Irving's magnetostratigraphic survey 67
- Irving's work on 84, 98, 100–101
- origin of magnetization 62–67
- paleomagnetic results 46
- Precambrian geomagnetic field as aligning force 63, 65–67
- transform faults 364
- Triassic New Red Sandstone (Clegg) 61–62, 84
- Triassic red Keuper Marls, Sidmouth,
England 85
- Triassic red marls 97–98
- Turnbull, G. 122, 130, 222
- Turner, F. J. 413, 414, 419, 449
- Tuve, M. A. 12–14, 17, 18–20, 22, 71, 146–147
- Twenhofel, W. H. 238
- uniformitarianism, principle of 271, 415
- Unites States Geological Survey, radiometric reversal timescale development 469–484
- Upper Torridonian 67
- Urey, H. C. 287
- USSR surveys 228–233
- Uyeda, S. 20, 73
- Valencio, D. 219
- Van Bemmelen, R. W. 26–27, 29, 379
- Van der Lingen, G. J. 379
- Van Hilten, D. 379
- Veldkamp, J. 378–379
- Vening Meinesz, F. A. 26–27, 128, 171, 193, 316–317
- Verhoogen, J. 124, 371–372, 413–414, 417–418, 419, 449, 470
- Vilas, J. 219
- Vincenz, S. A. 29, 78
- Vine, F. 102
- Vine–Matthews hypothesis 329–330, 364, 460, 469
- viscous flow in rock 310, 311, 312–314
- viscous remanent magnetization (VRM) 167–168, 172, 187
- concerns for paleomagnetists 213
- graphical methods for removing 230
- removal through magnetic cleaning 213–218
- Voisey, Alan H. 335–336, 338–340
- Wales
- Devonian Old Red Sandstone (Creer) 86–88
- Early Cambrian Caerbwdy Sandstones 87
- Watkins, N. D. 233
- Watson, G. S. 104, 134
- Wegener, A. 26, 37, 41–42, 77–79, 112–113, 115–116, 127, 191, 200, 218, 232, 233,
247, 281–282, 293, 318
- Eocene paleogeography 99, 100
- Pre-Cambrian continental drift 41, 46
- Werner, B. G. 25
- Westoll, S. 154, 156, 158, 172–174, 234–235
- influence on Runcorn 156, 169, 172–174
- Wilson, C. T. R. 3
- Wilson, H. A. 4, 364
- Wilson, J. T. 416–417
- wind directions in the past see paleowind studies
- Wood, Robert Muir 170
- Zijderveld, J. D. A. 214, 215–217, 378–379
- Zimbabwe, Karoo lava, 95