HUSSERL AND THE PROMISE OF TIME

This book is the first extensive treatment of Husserl’s phenomenology of time-consciousness. Nicolas de Warren’s detailed analysis of texts by Husserl, some only recently published in German, examines Husserl’s treatment of time-consciousness and its significance for his conception of subjectivity. He traces the development of Husserl’s thinking on the problem of time from Franz Brentano’s descriptive psychology, and situates it in the framework of his transcendental project as a whole. Particular discussions include the significance of time-consciousness for other phenomenological themes: perceptual experience, the imagination, remembrance, self-consciousness, embodiment, and the consciousness of Others. The result is an illuminating exploration of how and why Husserl considered the question of time-consciousness to be the most difficult, yet also the most central, of all the challenges facing his unique philosophical enterprise.

NICOLAS DE WARREN is Associate Professor of Philosophy at Wellesley College.

Numerous friends and colleagues have supported my writing of this book in various ways.

For my years at Boston University and beyond, I am especially grateful to Daniel Dahlstrom for guidance and encouragement; Alfredo Ferrarin for his erudition and companionship; Erazim Kohak and Krystof Michalski for first showing me the way of philosophy.

I am grateful to Dieter Lohmar for time at the Husserl Archives in Cologne; Michael Kelly for conversation and corrections; Andrea Staiti, Lilian Alweiss, and Naveh Frummer for insightful comments on earlier drafts of this book; and Nolen Gertz for his sharp editorial eye.

Whether in print or in person, I have learned much about Husserl from colleagues: Rudolf Bernet, John Brough, Richard Cobb-Stevens, John Drummond, Burt Hopkins, Claudio Majolino, Dermot Moran, Tom Nennon and Robert Sokolowski.

I should also like to thank my departmental colleagues – Ann Congleton, Ifeanyi Menkiti, Catherine Wearing and Ken Winkler – for their breadth of mind and sound judgment as well as others who have prevailed in making Wellesley College a home for intellectual curiosity: Sarah Bishop, Thomas Cushman, Richard French, Tom Hodge, Jonathan Imber, Lidwien Kapteijns, Jim Noggle, Tim Peltason, Jim Petterson, Larry Rosenwald and Margery Sabin.

I am especially indebted to Ken Haynes for the generosity of his intelligence; Lisa Rodensky for teaching me in so many ways; Brendan Reay for the ancients and the moderns; Andy Kingston and David Polan for imparting the little that I know – and hear – of music; Luigi Caranti for our many Kantian disputations, especially those under the Italian sun; and Hilary Gaskin for her saintly patience.
I count myself fortunate in having in James Dodd both a friend and a colleague; there is very little here that did not mature in the company of his friendship during the past fifteen years.

Lastly, thank you to my parents, for being curious about and supportive of my intellectual endeavors; and to Clara, who saved me, on so many occasions, from myself.
