This is a digital representation of the extracted content, formatted for readability. It includes the index entries and is presented in a clear, natural text format. The entries are sorted alphabetically and cover a wide range of topics related to European law, including harmonisation, national sovereignty, private international law, product regulations, the 'race to the bottom', rejection, the Single Market, and social dumping. Other topics include Napoleon, national civil code, private law, regulations, states, and the interplay between national and European legal systems. The index also references key works such as "The European Civil Code: The Way Forward" by Hugh Collins, which is part of the Cambridge Legal Materials series. The Cambridge University Press and www.cambridge.org logos are present, indicating the source and availability of the book.
