

CONTENTS

	Preface	page vii
	Using this book	x
	Notes for instructors	xii
	Acknowledgements	xiii
Part I	Bioethics and Ethics	1
	1 Biotechnology and bioethics: what it's all about	3
	2 Ethics in general: ethics, action and freedom	11
	3 Ethics in the context of society: ethics, society and the law	23
	4 Ethical theories: virtue, duty and happiness	32
	5 Identifying and evaluating arguments: logic and morality	50
	6 General arguments: it's unnatural, it's disgusting, it's risky, it's only opinion	72
Part II	At the Beginning and End of Life	91
Section 1	Cloning	93
	7 Therapeutic cloning: the moral status of embryos	95
	8 Reproductive cloning: science and science fiction	116
Section 2	Reproduction	137
	9 Reproductive freedom: rights, responsibilities and choice	139
	10 The resources of reproduction: eggs, sperm and wombs for sale	159
	11 Screening and embryo selection: eliminating disorders or people?	181
Section 3	Ageing and death	203
	12 Ageing and immortality: the search for longevity	205
	13 Death and killing: the quality and value of life	224

Part III	In the Midst of Life	247
Section 4	Our duties to ourselves	249
	14 Human enhancement: the more the better?	251
	15 Bio-information: databases, privacy and the fight against crime	273
	16 Security and defence: security sensitivity, publication and warfare	297
Section 5	Our duties to each other	319
	17 Food and energy security: GM food, biofuel and the media	321
	18 Bio-ownership: who owns the stuff of life?	348
	19 Human justice: the developed and developing worlds	371
Section 6	Our duties to nature	393
	20 Non-human animals: consciousness, rationality and animal rights	395
	21 The living and non-living environment: Spaceship Earth	418
	22 Reflection, speculation and points to ponder	445
	Index	457