

MORAL RESPONSIBILITY AND THE PSYCHOPATH

Are psychopaths morally responsible? Should we argue with them? Remonstrate with them, blame them, sometimes even praise them? Is it worth trying to change them, or should we just try to prevent them from causing harm? In this book, Jim Baxter aims to find serious answers to these deep philosophical questions, drawing on contemporary insights from psychiatry, psychology, neuroscience and law. Moral Responsibility and the Psychopath is the first sustained, book-length philosophical work on this important and fascinating topic, and will be of deep interest and importance to researchers in these fields – not to mention anyone who has had to interact with a psychopath in their everyday life.

JIM BAXTER is Professional Ethics Consultancy Team Leader at the University of Leeds's Inter-Disciplinary Ethics Applied Centre. His recent research focuses on professionalism in banking and integrity in organisations.

Acknowledgements

This book has been several years in the making, and I am very grateful to Ulrike Heuer and Helen Steward, whose guidance, support and insightful challenges helped me throughout its development. Comments from Gerald Lang, Dorothea Debus and Richard Holton were subsequently hugely helpful in showing me how it could be further improved.

Hilary Gaskin has been a supportive, encouraging and, perhaps most of all, patient guide throughout the editing process.

I am thankful to the two anonymous reviewers of Cambridge University Press, without whose invaluable comments Chapters 1 and 6, in particular, would be in a much poorer state.

Also, thanks to Diana Sofronieva for her insightful comments on an early draft.

I am grateful to the Inter-Disciplinary Ethics Applied Centre at the University of Leeds for supporting my study both financially and through flexibility and understanding. Special thanks go to Chris Megone for his invaluable help and support throughout but also to my other colleagues at the Centre for creating an environment rich with intellectual stimulation and good humour.

Huge thanks go to my parents, Eddie and Rosemary Baxter for, on top of everything else, hours of looking after my children while I struggled to understand psychopaths.

Finally, thanks to my children, Elijah and Shoshana, who have taught me more than anybody else has, particularly about emotions and empathy.
