

Contents

List of Figures	page xiv
List of Maps	xv
List of Tables	xvi
Documents and Document Summaries	xvii
Preface	xix

PART I VALUES AND POLICIES IN AMERICAN FOREIGN AFFAIRS

1	America’s Traditions in Foreign Policy	3
	Values, Beliefs, and Foreign Policy	4
	The United States: A New Democratic State	8
	The Role of Isolationism in American Foreign Policy	11
	The Role of Moral Principle in American Foreign Policy	25
	Concluding Comments	34
2	America’s Global Involvement and the Emergence of the Cold War	36
	The Postwar World and American Involvement	37
	America’s Globalism: The Truman Doctrine and Beyond	46
	Elements of Containment: Regional Security Pacts	49
	Elements of Containment: Economic and Military Assistance	53
	Elements of Containment: The Domestic Cold War	56
	Korea: The First Major Test of Containment	60
	The Cold War Consensus	64
	The Public and the Cold War Consensus	69
	Challenges to the Cold War Consensus	71
	Concluding Comments	78
		ix

x Contents

3	After the Missile Crisis and the Vietnam War: Realism and Liberalism in Foreign Policy	80
	Challenges to the Cold War Consensus at Home	80
	Vietnam	85
	Realism and Liberalism As Foreign Policy Concepts	93
	Realism and the Nixon Administration	94
	The Nixon–Kissinger Worldview in Operation	99
	Liberalism and the Carter Administration	104
	The Carter Worldview in Operation	108
	Realism in the Last Year: A Response to Critics	119
	Concluding Comments	122
4	The Return and End of the Cold War: The Reagan and Bush Administrations	123
	Realism and the Reagan Administration	123
	The Reagan Worldview in Operation	128
	Challenges to the Reagan Foreign Policy Approach	133
	Policy Change: Accommodation with the Soviet Union	134
	Policy Continuity: The Reagan Doctrine and the Third World	138
	Policy Changes toward the Third World: The Philippines, the PLO, and South Africa	141
	Realism, Pragmatism, and the George H.W. Bush Administration	143
	Bush’s Foreign Policy Approach	145
	Political Change and Eastern Europe	149
	After the Cold War: Bush’s Policy toward Central Europe	153
	After the Cold War: Bush’s Policy toward the Soviet Union	154
	The Search for a New World Order?	156
	Challenges and Responses to the New World Order	165
	Concluding Comments	166
5	Foreign Policy after the Cold War and 9/11: The Clinton and Bush Administrations	168
	Post–Cold War Foreign Policy: The Clinton Administration	169
	The Clinton Administration’s Evolving Approaches to Foreign Policy	172
	The Legacies of the Clinton Administration’s Foreign Policy	182
	The International System at the Dawn of a New Century	187
	Before and after 9/11: The Foreign Policy of the George W. Bush Administration	189
	The Values and Beliefs of the Bush Administration: Prior to September 11	189
	Classical Realism and the Bush Approach	192
	The Impact of September 11	194
	The Values and Beliefs of the Bush Administration: After September 11	197

Contents xi

Formalizing the Bush Doctrine: The National Security
 Strategy Statement 202
Policy Implications of the Bush Doctrine toward the World 205
After Reelection: A New Foreign Policy Approach? 215
The Iraq War and Opposition to the Bush Foreign Policy 218
Concluding Comments 225

6 Changing Foreign Policy Directions: The Obama and Trump Administrations 227
Values and Beliefs of the Obama Administration 227
The Obama Worldview in Operation 232
Criticisms of the Obama Approach and Its Application 258
Values and Beliefs of the Trump Administration 260
The Trump Worldview in Operation: Key Adversaries 264
The Trump Worldview in Operation: Allies and Partners 277
Concluding Comments 285

7 A Foreign Policy of Restoration?: The Biden Administration 287
Values and Beliefs of the Biden Administration: A Liberal
 Internationalist Approach 288
Initial Foreign Policy Priorities and Executive Orders 289
Biden’s Worldview in Operation: Regional Actors 293
Biden’s Worldview in Operation: Functional Issues 310
Evaluating the Biden Approach 318
Concluding Comments 324

PART II THE PROCESS OF POLICY MAKING

8 The President and the Making of Foreign Policy 327
Constitutional Powers in Foreign Policy 329
A Cyclical Interpretation of Foreign Policy Dominance 333
Executive Dominance after World War II: The Imperial Presidency 335
Concluding Comments 377

9 Congressional Prerogatives and the Making of Foreign Policy 379
Commitment Making 380
War Powers 383
Controlling the Purse Strings 395
Congressional Oversight 404
Mechanisms of Congressional Influence 417
Congressional Change and Future Foreign Policy Making 421
Concluding Comments 427

xii Contents

10	The Diplomatic and Economic Bureaucracies: Duplication or Specialization?	428
	Bureaucratic Politics and Foreign Policy Making	429
	The Department of State	432
	The National Security Council	451
	Bureaucracies and Foreign Economic Policy Making	462
	Concluding Comments	477
11	The Military and Intelligence Bureaucracies: Pervasive or Accountable?	479
	The Department of Defense	479
	The Intelligence Community	495
	CIA “Special Activities” and Policy Influence	512
	Accountability and Covert Actions	516
	Changes in Accountability from Iran–Contra to Today	521
	The Department of Homeland Security	525
	Policy Coordination among Competing Bureaucracies	531
	Concluding Comments	537
12	Political Parties, Bipartisanship, and Interest Groups	538
	Political Parties and the Bipartisan Tradition	539
	The Limits of Bipartisanship through the Vietnam Era	542
	Bipartisanship and Congressional Foreign Policy Voting	545
	Partisan Divisions: From the Cold War to Today	549
	Partisan Politics and the Future	555
	Interest Groups and the Foreign Policy Process	557
	The Impact of Interest Groups	570
	Concluding Comments	593
13	The Media, Public Opinion, and the Foreign Policy Process .	594
	The Pervasiveness of the Media	595
	The Role of the Media in the Foreign Policy Process	599
	The Media’s Impact on the Public	613
	Public Opinion and Foreign Policy: Alternate Views	615
	Foreign Policy Opinion: Uninformed and Moodish	615
	Foreign Policy Opinion: Structured and Stable	628
	An Alternative View of the Public Mood	634
	The Impact of Public Opinion on Foreign Policy	645
	Concluding Comments	654
	PART III CONCLUSION
14	American Foreign Policy Values and the Future	657
	A Nation Divided	658
	Value Differences within Elites	658

Contents	xiii
Value Differences between Elites and Masses	662
A New Foreign Policy Consensus?	664
Concluding Comments	676
Index	677