

Menander in Antiquity

The comic playwright Menander was one of the most popular writers throughout antiquity. This book reconstructs his and his plays' afterlife from his lifetime until the end of antiquity, employing a broad range of sources such as portraits, illustrations of his plays, papyri preserving their texts and inscriptions recording their public reperformances. These are placed within the context of the three social and cultural institutions which appropriated his comedy, thereby ensuring its survival: public theatres, dinner parties and schools. Dr Nervegna carefully reconstructs how each context approached Menander's drama and how it contributed to its popularity over the centuries. The resultant highly illustrated book will be essential for all scholars and students not just of Menander's comedy but, more broadly, of the history and iconography of the ancient theatre, ancient social history and reception studies.

SEBASTIANA NERVEGNA is a Postdoctoral Fellow funded by the Australian Research Council. She is a member of the Department of Classics and Ancient History at the University of Sydney and works in the Centre for Classical and Near Eastern Studies of Australia (CCANESA). Her work on the history and iconography of Greek theatre has appeared in journals, major collections of essays and Companions. She is currently writing a monograph on the reception of Classical tragedy in the Hellenistic period.

This book began as a doctoral dissertation under the supervision of Eric Csapo. I am delighted to acknowledge all my intellectual debts to him and to thank him for his vision and for his faith in this project. He suggested that I should work on the ancient reception of Menander when I first met him many years ago and, although I have often doubted that I was the right person for this ambitious task, the worth of this project has always been clear in my mind. Over the years, I contracted several debts to many scholars who patiently answered my questions, generously shared their knowledge with me and supported my research in various ways: Anthony Alexander, the late Colin Austin, Alastair Blanshard, Raffaella Cribiore, Raffaele di Virgilio, Katherine Dunbabin, Frances Muecke, Hans R. Goette, J. Richard Green, Andrew Hartwig, Anthony Hooper, Richard Hunter, George Kovacs, Vayos Liapis, John Ma, Stavroula Markoulaki, Toph Marshall, Martin Revermann, Paul Roche, Catherine Rubincam, Stephen V. Tracy and Peter Wilson. For constant support and inspiration I owe extra thanks to my Sydney colleagues and especially J. Richard Green, who soon became like family to me. When I was writing and rewriting this book, I often thought about the man who taught me Latin and Greek when I was a schoolgirl, Raffaele di Virgilio. For all the things that I learnt from him and for all the encouragement that he gave me at a critical stage, I share with him every single achievement.

The four anonymous readers who assessed this book in two different stages provided valuable comments on both specific details and the overall argument. Michael Sharp, Jodie Hodgson, Josephine Lane and the entire team at Cambridge University Press were very helpful all along. My copy-editor, Fiona Sewell, deserves many thanks for her patient help and support. Warm thanks are due to all the museums, institutions and scholars that provided the figures for this book: Karen E. Richter and the Princeton University Art Museum; Daniel Graepler and the Archäologisches Institut der Universität Göttingen; Hans R. Goette; Jacklyn Burns and the J. Paul Getty Museum; Annemarie Kaufmann and all the editors of Antike Kunst; Stavroula Markoulaki; Jutta Schubert and the Akademisches Kunstmuseum in Bonn; the Musée Romain Avenches; John Humphrey, Jean-Pierre Darmon, Anne-Marie Manière-Lévèque and the Centre Henri Stern de Recherche sur la

I am extremely grateful to the Australian Academy of the Humanities for awarding me a very generous grant which covered the cost of most figures and related copyrights.

It is truly a pleasure to acknowledge all the financial support that I received over the years. The Azienda Comunale per il Diritto allo Studio dell'Università di Bologna sponsored my undergraduate education in Italy and the Ontario Graduate Scholarship took care of my graduate studies in Canada. I owe a huge debt of gratitude to the Kudos Foundation of Australia and to the Department of Classics and Ancient History of the University of Sydney, which nominated me the Kevin Lee Postdoctoral Fellow in 2009, and to the Australian Research Council, which has been funding my research over the last two years. I cannot thank them enough for bringing me to the beautiful Centre for Classical and Near Eastern Studies of Australia, where I finally found the research time and the peace of mind that I needed to finish this book and to work on new projects.

Many people have variously contributed to this book. I owe a great deal to all the people who were close to me at various times in Ortona, Bologna, Toronto, Mississauga, Ottawa, Melbourne and Sydney. They know who they are and they should also be reminded that, even if I have not seen many of them for a long time now, I have not forgotten all the things that we shared and all the love and support that they gave me. In a way, my family has been there all along. My mother, Maria Dragani, my beloved sisters, Anna, Carmela and Gabriella Nervegna, along with their entire families, have been on my mind all the time, everywhere I have been in all these long years.
